Ottawa Studies Steps To Avoid Labor Crises

Long Range Scheme On National Issues

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament must establish permanent machinery to handle crucial labor strikes in essential industries instead of acting from crisis to crisis, Labor Minister John Nicholson said Thursday.

Shortly after the minister had made his surprise announcement of the end of the west coast dock dispute, he was thinking ahead to the next round.

Permanent machinery should be geared to apply only to labor-management disputes "in which safety, security and the national interest are involved," Mr. Nicholson said.

His comments were prompted by similar suggestions in the House in light of the recurring labor crises, suffered by the country in the past year.

OTHER THREATS

In the last 24 months there have been three major work stoppages in the transportation field alone, and others have been threatened.

Mr. Nicholson cautioned, however, against trying to rush through major and permanent changes for essential industries in the present "crisis atmosphere."

"But I think the time has come for a change," he said.

Earlier in the Commons Prime Minister Pearson had dealt with questions on the same subject.

Social Creditor A. B. Patterson (Fraser Valley) said it was essential that a set of procedures must be established "to safeguard the national economy by preventing a repetition of these situations which have taken place first in railways, then Air Canada and now shipping."

Mr. Pearson noted that a task force has already been set up under the direction of Dean Woods of McGill University to inquire into this whole area.

He hoped it would report as soon as possible so the government would be in a position to plan long-range action.

Mr. Nicholson indicated this report might take longer than originally anticipated.

Although an interim report might come in six months, he felt a comprehensive review would take a year or more.

This would enable Canadians at all levels to consider carefully the possibilities of more orderly methods in a calmer atmosphere than exists at the moment, Mr. Nicholson said.

CALM STUDY

Canadian labor legislation enjoyed a high reputation throughout the world and it would be unfortunate if important changes were made hastily without adequate study, he added.

Once the task force reported, Mr. Nicholson said the government could then produce amendments "that would make it unnecessary for Parliament to act from one crisis to another several times in the same year."

Dock Men Tackle Backlog

Cargoes began moving in B.C. ports this morning for the first time in 10 days.

The 200 striking dock foremen called off their walkout and waterfront employers resumed hiring of longshoremen.

Seventy ships in Vancouver and other coastal ports were being worked today.

"We've got just about everybody available out handling cargo this morning," said one union spokesman.

In Victoria, 173 men were dispatched for work at Ogden Point, Cowichan Bay, Crofton and Chemainus.

Only ship at Ogden Point was the Grecian Emblem ,where 10 men are loading wheat for Japan.

The back-to-work move ended further layoffs in industries dependent on the docks. About 2,000 workers at pulp, sawmill and plywood plants had been laid off when storage space ran out.

About 3,000 longhoremen were working the ships today.

FORMULA

Details of the formula announced in the House of Commons Thursday and accepted by both sides were not divulged.

The foremen went on strike 22 days ago seeking recognition and bargaining rights. Their picket lines halted work for five days before a court injunction removed them.

When work resumed, employers accused longshoremen of deliberately working slowly, but the Internation Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union blamed lack of proper supervision.

FIRED AGAIN

For a week, longshoremen were fired and then rehired only to be fired again. Then the B.C. Maritime Employers Association refused to call out any more men until given a promise of no slowdowns.

Last weekend, Labor Minister Nicholson proposed a formula which would have allowed grievance procedures and formation of a foremen's unit outside the ILWU.

The foremen accepted this, but employers took this to mean a kind of collective bargaining which they oppose because they consider foremen to be part of management.

FIRST FORMULA

In Ottawa, Edward Strang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers Association, told a Times reporter the formula accepted Thursday represents "an entirely different concept" from Mr. Nicholson's first formula.

Instead of any kind of foremen's association, the procedure would provide bilateral negotiations between indiviudal foremen and employers with a final appeal to arbitration.

"What is outlined now is not a collective agreement," he said.

"It offers a means of expressing grievances, if a foreman wishes, in the normal way with his employer.

"If he is not satisfied with his discussions with his employer he than has an opportunity of having his case arbitrated."

NUCLEAR BOMB THREAT IN VIET WAR URGED

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—California Republican Governor-elect Ronald Reagan said today that the United States should use the threat of nuclear warfare to win peace in Viet Nam.

REAGAN
. . . campaign of fear

He told a reporter that his view of the war could be summed up this way:

"I think you win."

He disagreed with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's view that the war might just "fade away" and added: "I don't believe a great power like us should be meeting the enemy on his terms."

He said the nation should use its "full resources" to fight the war. Asked if he meant we should use nuclear weapons, he replied:

"No one, of course, wants to use these weapons but the enemy should never be told we won't. He should go to bed every night fearful that we might."

More Wheat Sold In China Contract

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 35,300,000-bushel sale under Canada's long-term wheat agreement with China was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

The new contract will bring to approximately 93,300,000 bushels the amount of wheat ordered by China under a three-year agreement which took effect Aug. 1.

Under terms of the agreement, the Chinese will take from a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels to a maximum of 280,000 bushels.

As usual, the wheat board gave no dollar value to the sale. On the government's reckoning that every bushel of wheat sold is worth $2 to the economy, the new sale would be worth more than $70,000,000.

FERRY TOLL SET AT 235

ATHENS (AP)—Shipping officials revised the toll in the sinking of the Greek ferry Heraklion to 235 dead or missing today and expressed fear that a number of unlisted passengers may have been aboard.

Hope was fading that there would be more survivors than the 46 brought in by darkness Thursday.

MARJORIE FARBER
. . . hypnotized?

Wife 'Froze' Trying to Kill Her Husband

FREEHOLD, N.J. (UPI) — Wracked with sobs and wrenching out the words, Mrs. Marjorie Farber related today how she "froze" when she tried to kill her husband under the hypnotic urgings of Dr. Carl A. Coppolino.

Still pretty at 52, the brunette widow of retired army Lt.-Col. William E. Farber told the Coppolino murder jury that the doctor-hypnotist repeated to her over and over again: "He's got to go. He's got to go."

Mrs. Farber said that at Coppolino's direction, she loaded a syringe at 3 a.m. on July 30, 1963, with a drug obtained by Coppolino and jabbed it into the leg of her sleeping husband.

She said she started to depress the plunger but "froze," unable to go through with it. The trial continues.

$26 Million Pipeline Proposed for North

The provincial cabinet today authorized construction of a $26 million natural gas pipeline across the north central zone of the province but demanded the promoting companies put more of their own money into it.

A Public Utilities Commission certificate was approved permitting Pacific Northern Gas Co. Ltd. to build the line from Summit Lake, north of Prince George, to Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

The company also has the right to install distribution systems in the 13 communities along the line but must obtain franchise agreements from the municipalities by Feb. 1, 1968.

PNG was formed as a partnership of two major firms, Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. and Great Northern Gas Utilities Ltd., which originally told the PUC they intended to put up $3 million, sell another $1 million public shares and borrow the remaining $22 million.

Because of uncertainties involved in the project, the PUC certificate ruled they must cut the borrowings by raising their investment to at least $4 million and selling at least $3.5 million in shares.

Construction of the line must be completed by Sept. 1, 1968, or PNG would forfeit a $200,000 deposit.

A shopping list that would horrify most Canadian householders—but it is one that is made up daily at Unitarian Service Committee field projects in India.

In the Kodai district, where the items on this list were to be distributed, conditions are so bad that they are almost unbelievable.

Children there often cannot walk at the age of three and four. They have never had enough to eat, and without USC projects, backed by Canadian aid, they never will have.

One pitifully scrawny Indian mother made a 175-mile trek to a USC dispensary with her three-and-a-half-year-old son on her back.

She walked all the way.

When the child was checked in to the hospital, he weighed only 14 pounds.

Situations like this are not isolated. USC workers discover them almost every day.

With courage and determination they do what they can to alleviate the suffering of poverty-stricken Indians.

But always more is needed.

Victorians may help by sending contributions to the Share With Asian Children Fund, care of the newspaper. Donations may also be made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas Street.

DICKEN'S CHARACTERS are appearing on shop windows in Oak Bay village. Idea of local businessmen, the art work has been done by talented students from Oak Bay Senior Secondary School. Two 17-year-old, grade 12 students, Maureen Macphail and Maureen Danes, made $80 from the work. And they have also won commissions for more. Here Val Everby looks in window of the Oak Bay Flower Shop. Typical of the sort of decorations used is the drawing of Scrooge at the local bank.

'Two-Faced' Policy Rapped by Zambia

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Zambia took the lead today in presenting African demands for a total oil embargo against Rhodesia that would strike out at South Africa and Portugal as the principal suppliers.

Simon M. Kapwepwe, Zambian foreign minister, delivered a bitter attack in the United Nations Security Council on British proposals for selective mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia, and an offer to consider a limited oil embargo.

He described the British proposals as worthless and said that if the white-minority regime in Rhodesia is not toppled a racial war between black and whites will ensue.

He accused Britain of "abominable dishonesty" and following a "two-faced policy of appeasement to kith and kin while seeking to placate black Africa with patronizing handouts."

He said Zambia, a neighbor

British UN Action 'Not End of Road'

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he does not regard Britain's call for mandatory UN sanctions as the end of hopes for a negotiated settlement to the Rhodesian independence crisis.

Reporters asked the Rhodesian leader as he reached his office this morning if proposals outlined to the UN Security Council in New York Thursday night by George Brown, British foreign secretary, meant the end of the road for negotiations.

Smith replied: "No, I don't believe you ever get to the end of the road."

Asked whether he will carry out his threat and declare Rhodesia a republic now that Britain has taken the issue to the United Nations, the prime minister said: "We have not given this any serious thought. I think what we've got to do is to let the dust settle."

MUM ON LIST

Asked to comment on the list of exports Britain has asked to be sanctioned, Smith declined comment, saying he had not yet seen the list.

Brown asked the Security Council to order a worldwide ban on imports of a dozen commodities vital to Rhodesia's economy including tobacco, copper, sugar, iron ore and asbestos.

CUBA CLASSIC EXAMPLE OF INEFFECTIVENESS

Economic Sanctions Have Never Worked

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The history of sanctions in international affairs offers no comfort to those seeking to overthrow the Rhodesian rebel regime of Ian Smith by such mandatory economic penalties. They never have worked.

Since the days before 1914 there has been no evidence that any delinquent nation has been forced by punitive economic measures alone to change its ways.

The United Nations never has voted mandatory sanctions against any country. The League of Nations invoked such penalties only once.

Outside these world organizations, numerous efforts have been made by individual countries and by alliances to take coercive measures short of war.

One example in recent times is the trade embargo against Cuba by the United States and some of its Latin American neighbors. This was aimed at the overthrow of the Communist regime of Fidel Castro. But he is still in power, even though the Cuban people, undoubtedly have felt an economic pinch.

The United Nations has voted punitive measures in several cases. But they have been in the form of recommendations to the member nations and therefore do not qualify as sanctions under generally-accepted legal definitions.

Both the assembly and the Security Council have recommended limitations on trade with Rhodesia and South Africa—the latter because of its racial policies—but study groups report little or no results. Business is booming in South Africa despite repeated UN condemnations.

The one instance in which the League of Nations voted sanctions came in 1935 after Italy's invasion of Ethiopia. In separate votes, the league assembly ordered an arms embargo, a financial ban and a boycott of all imports from Italy. The sanctions did not include an oil embargo, and they failed to halt Italy's operation. The next year Italy announced the annexation of Ethiopia and the league cancelled its sanctions.

Legal experts agree that one of the major weaknesses of international law is that it lacks the power of enforcement. The UN charter provides for the use of military force to implement sanctions, but the organization itself has no armed forces and the members have shied away from sanctions mainly because they might require enforcement.

Thieves Will Do Lots Of Puffing

Five city firms were broken into overnight and over 200 cartons of cigarettes stolen from one of them.

Police are also investigating two house burglaries reported Thursday. In Oak Bay, a dentist's office was robbed overnight and about $15 taken.

In almost every case thieves smashed rear windows to get in.

At the Busy Bee Store, 1134 Hillside, over $600 worth of cigarettes and $30 cash was taken.

Camera equipment of unspecified value was taken from King's Auto Repairs Ltd., 2504 Government.

Cigarettes and coins were missing this morning after a dispensing machine was smashed open at the Pink Mouse Cafe, 2901 Douglas.

Nothing appears to have been taken after Gordon Fish Ltd., auto parts firm at 1319 Quadra, and Coast Power Machines (1960) Ltd., 2520 Government, were entered.

About $12.50 in cash and $3 worth of stamps were stolen from the office of Dr. J. C. Foote at 2295 Oak Bay Ave.

It is not known if anything was taken from the home of Lt.-Cmdr. S. E. V. Fillieul, 1007 Joan Cres., after burglars climbed to a first-floor roof and broke a bathroom window. Several rooms were ransacked.

A direction-finding machine and $16.50 in cash were taken from the house of J. R. Blower, 3011 Balfour, while the occupants were out Thursday afternoon.

Maritime Employers' Association in Vancouver also said the basis for settlement is not the same as proposed last weekend and does not establish any collective bargaining arrangement.

In Vancouver, foremen voted unanimously to accept the settlement proposals including:

- The labor minister will appoint an industrial inquiry commission whose terms of reference includes the minister's formula, accepted by foremen earlier, "and the maintenance of the status quo pending the results of the inquiry";
- Both sides agree to drop all litigation;
- Work will be resumed immediately.

The president of the longshore union's Canadian area, Roy Smith, said "the foremen have achieved the victory after a long, hard struggle."

He said the termination of the strike "marks the winning of recognition achieved by the trade union movement long ago. The right of association and to grieve was fundamental to the foremen's struggle."

In Ottawa, it was reported that Mr. Strang agreed to a revised grievance formula if an inquiry commission would also be included.

A telegram was sent to the union in Vancouver and 20 minutes before the Commons opened Thursday the union said it would accept the conditions if the employers would abandon legal action against it.

Mr. Strang accepted and the clincher came from the union only five minutes before Mr. Nicholson entered the Commons.

The government was planning legislation — temporarily held up because one MP did not give assent — under which a public administrator would have been given control of the docks and instructions to get them back into operation "at the earliest possible time."

PM Promises Ombudsman Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—The possible appointment of a federal ombudsman to protect individuals against unfair bureaucratic actions has been discussed with the provinces, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons today.

He said the question bears "a direct relationship to the provinces" and promised to make a statement next week.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said four provinces have announced plans to name provincial ombudsmen in recent months. He asked when the federal government would act.

Mr. Thompson recalled that the throne speech at the opening of the 1965 session of Parliament promised a royal commission inquiry into the possibility of naming an ombudsman.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, noting that the United Nations will observe Human Rights Day Saturday, asked whether the government has approached the provinces on the possibility of inserting the 1961 Bill of Rights into the Canadian constitution.

Mr. Pearson said there have been no discussions on this subject.

Mr. Diefenbaker complained that the Queen's Printer has stopped printing illuminated scrolls bearing the Canadian Bill of Rights, which bear his signature, and said there are many demands for the document.

Mr. Pearson said he will check with the Queen's Printer about the situation.

of Rhodesia, is prepared to go all the way in supporting sanctions against South Africa and Portugal, and that any embargo that excludes oil is "absolutely worthless."

PROPOSE FORCE

He also said use of force is the only sure way to bring down the regime of premier Ian Smith.

Replying to Kapwepwe today, Foreign Secretary George Brown of Britain said he was shocked by attempts to attribute to Britain "false motives, hypocrisy and racism." He added that he was compelled to deny such charges as "unworthy and untrue."

He appealed to the council to debate the British resolution on its merits, and reiterated Britain's willingness to accept a limited oil embargo.

The council set its next session for Monday.

RUSK ARRIVES AND BOMBERS KEEP BUSY

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of B-52 bombers struck Viet Cong position in South Viet Nam today in three raids that ranged from near Saigon to the northern edge of the country.

As the huge high-altitude bombers flew in from their Guam base, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk arrived in Saigon and discounted chances of a prolonged pause in American bombing raids over North Viet Nam.

"We can't just stop half the war," Rusk told reporters. "They've got to stop their half of it."

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Rain and gales spread over the outer coast of B.C. this morning in advance of the first in a series of Pacific disturbances. Precipitation over the inner south coast will begin as wet snow then change to rain this afternoon. Cold Arctic air which covers most of the interior of the province will retreat slowly northward as milder air flows in from the Pacific. The first storm in the series will cross the north coast this evening and the south coast before dawn Saturday. Intermittent snow preceding it will spread inland this afternoon and evening. Generally cloudy weather and milder temperatures are forecast for all sections for the weekend.

WOMEN BAND TOGETHER

Cereals First Target In Combined Protest

OTTAWA (CP)—Ready-to-eat breakfast cereals sold by "gimmicks" will be left on supermarket shelves by members of the Canadian Consumers' Protest Association in a three-week boycott beginning Dec. 15.

Mrs. Lawrence Wilson president of the new association said at a press conference Thursday housewives will be asked not to buy cereals which beam their advertising at toddlers through cartoon characters of offers of toys.

After Jan. 5, 1967, another product or produce counter will be announced for selective shopping.

The association was formed at a conference of leaders from regional consumers' groups Wednesday and Thursday. Of the 50 delegates, 22 represented about 50 organizations from Halifax to Winnipeg. A Vancouver delegation was stranded in Toronto when bad weather cancelled airline flights.

A brief from the national organization will be presented to the parliamentary food prices committee in January, Mrs. Wilson said.

The five - women national board of directors represent centres from Halifax to Winnipeg. They have been elected for six months. The site for an annual meeting planned for next June has not yet been decided.

The protest groups which began by refusing to shop in supermarkets now have worked out a positive program aimed at lowering food prices.

In a summary of regional briefs presented to the conference, a federal department of consumer affairs, possibly including a price review board, is recommended. The summary asks for federal and provincial tax policy revision, especially on provincial sales tax.

SAYS LAW A JOKE

Commenting that present anti-combines and food and drug legislation is "a joke" the summary urges the government to introduce a bill with teeth in it to regulate food industries.

Venturing into economic and trade policy, the housewives' summary said abolishing all tariffs on foodstuffs would encourage needed competition in the food business.

Ontario, Quebec, Winnipeg, Saint John, N.B., and Halifax, said in statements at the end of the press conference they planned to start membership drives in their communities.

The regional groups will retain their own names and identity, but contribute about 10 per cent of their finances to the national headquarters.

'POWERLESS' TO CURB ABUSES

OTTAWA (CP) — The constitution may strangle any federal attempt to eliminate abuses, confusion and deception in the packaging and sale of food, the parliamentary food-price inquiry was told Thursday.

Most areas of possible legislation lie within provincial jurisdiction, according to witness R. A. Chapman, head of the health department's food and drug directorate.

In setting standard sizes and weights, getting rid of cents-off labels and cracking down on deceptive packaging, the federal authority would be virtually powerless on its own.

Only hope may be agreement by the provinces to introduce legislation matching federal statutes, he said.

This would require separate agreement between Ottawa and each provincial government; any differences in the laws at the provincial level would not be over-ridden by the federal legislation.

He said the food and drug directorate can initiate criminal law proceedings over breaches of Food and Drug Act regulations concerning food, but only when an abuse endangers health or constitutes fraud.

The difficulty of proving fraud effectively prevents the government from taking action.

Pigeon Club Show Set For Weekend

Esquimalt is only a few miles away as the pigeon flies.

But about 500 local pedigreed birds needn't worry. They'll be taken there by solicitous owners for a weekend show sponsored by the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club.

The birds will compete in 22 classes, graded from unraced pigeons to experienced birds which have flown 600 miles in race time.

A grand champion will be selected for best bird in show.

Junior club members will compete in separate classes. There will be no entry charge for the competition.

Judging will take place Saturday morning at the Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street. Birds will be on display to the public for the remainder of the show.

Awards will be presented Sunday at 1 p.m.

Seattle pigeon fancier Gerry McBride will be one of two show judges.

The New Voices

TWO PARALLEL DEVELOPments in Ottawa encourage hope that a satisfactory evolution of what has become "the Quebec problem" may now be under way. One is a policy of compromise whereby the French-speaking province will receive special treatment of a kind which can also be extended to the other provinces, and hence preserve national unity without encroaching on Quebec sensibilities. The other is the emergence of a Quebec voice in Ottawa—as represented by Mr. Marchand and Mr. Trudeau, and their colleagues, Messrs. Sauve, Pepin and Pelletier—which advises moderation and seeks a united Canada in which Quebec will play an important part: a province different yet fully participating in Confederation.

It would be unfortunate if English-speaking Canada were to overlook the trend of the Marchand-Trudeau school and remember only the extremist statements which used to come out of Quebec with almost daily frequency. How much support among the people of Quebec the new French spokesmen in Ottawa can command is not yet clear even to them, but there is a definite movement in many quarters, perhaps a relieved recognition that Quebec can continue its historic Canadian entity and still preserve its unique features of language, culture and outlook.

Mr. Trudeau believes that the Quebec essence can be maintained under the BNA Act as it stands. He feels that the constitution provides every facility whereby Quebec "can exercise the most extensive powers over the souls of French Canadians and over the territory where they live." To him and his fellow moderates, as to English-speaking Canada, a political two-nation concept is unnecessary, unwanted and unworkable.

It is notable that Premier Johnson, strong though some of his statements have been in regard to a separate identity for Quebec, has lately given less of the impression of one province in a contest against all the others, and more of the appearance of one province among several in a common contest against Ottawa. This was particularly noticeable in his recent statements on federal-provincial financial relations. He left the last conference as one of a group rather than as a lone contender against the rest of the nation.

This concept has been aided by Ottawa's readiness to devise plans and programs which permit a reasonable degree of flexibility. While there must be a point at which the opting-out principle has to be halted, if truly national functions are to be implemented, there are many phases of educational and welfare programs which may profitably be left to provincial jurisdiction as provided for in the BNA Act. It is here that Quebec can establish a measure of independence which will not be in conflict with the practices and interests of the rest of Canada.

The Quebec spokesmen who seek this outcome to the French-Canadian revolution — for the explosion of Quebec nationalism can hardly be otherwise described — deserve the recognition and support of English-speaking Canada. Their moderate and constructive approach to the problem holds the key to a fair and lasting solution. In their quiet beginning they embody renewed hope of a diversified yet united Canada, a country rich in variety which can still boast of dominion from sea to sea.

Not by Bread Alone

MISS JUDY LAMARSH, WITH thousands of other Canadians, feels that the people of this country should know a great deal more than they now know about our social and human problems.

This is the justification she submits to parliament for plans to increase the annual allocation to the Canada Council by about $7 million, to a total of $17 million next year.

The secretary of state notes that funds provided in the past for the National Research Council and the National Medical Council have permitted far more research in their respective fields than has been possible with the money given to the Canada Council for studies which are its responsibility.

"The government is convinced," she told the House last week, "that this situation requires remedial action. Canada faces major problems of an economic, political and sociological nature which can be met only through adequate research—and this research must be done here in Canada. If we are to succeed in solving the social problems peculiar to Canada, we must ensure that we obtain the knowledge essential to grapple with these problems."

Here is full recognition of the fact that Canadians cannot live by bread alone—as it is represented in the development of research in the fields of natural sciences. Beyond the physical needs, there is also the need for Canadians to learn better how to live with themselves and with others. The extra funds should help in approaching a solution to that problem.

Shake Hands With a Millionaire

GREATER VICTORIA WILL congratulate a new, if composite, millionaire on Tuesday and have every reason to feel proud of helping to make the million.

The day has been chosen by the Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped to mark payment of the millionth dollar that has gone in wages to employees in the last nine years. The returns to each person who has worked for the agency have not placed him in the upper income brackets financially. They have, however, given to those with some incapacity a sense of fulfilment in living—the opportunity to earn in spite of a disability. The dollars have been important. The intangibles of being able to perform a useful and gainful task have been, perhaps, far more important to the people engaged.

Those associated with the Enterprises—Fred Blakeney, whose inspiration and effort led to the founding, the Victoria Rotary Club which gives it sustained support, and all who have made it possible to train the handicapped for work that has brought them some income—deserve the community's appreciation.

If there is an air of self-congratulation in the community's reaction, because it has provided many of the materials and the market for products, so much the better. It is entitled to a small measure of pride also because the Goodwill Enterprises flourish.

Go to the Polls

WITH A THREE-WAY CONtest for Victoria's mayoralty and vigorous competition for council and school board seats in the city and the neighboring municipalities, there is every reason why the voters of the area should turn out in large numbers tomorrow.

The strength of a community lies in its collective voice as exercised through the democratic ballot. Voters have a right, and many men and women have suffered or died to keep it alive in the world. They also have a responsibility, for apathy can be a more serious threat to freedom than active tyranny.

Every eligible citizen should add his or her voice to the public consensus by voting tomorrow. Candidates deserve the encouragement that only a heavy poll can give, while Oak Bay in its fluoridation referendum can give a lead to the region that will open new avenues of health and twentieth century thinking.

"To put it in layman's terms . . . You're nuts . . ."

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Quebec Skating on Thin Ice

MR. DANIEL JOHNSON'S latest challenge to Ottawa is a political monkey wrench dressed up as a constitutional issue. The Quebec premier inserted into the throne speech an announcement that the provincial government plans to take over the field of old age security. This, of course, immediately preceded the introduction of the federal government's guaranteed income measure, which would supplement existing old age pensions.

Western

It is apparently Mr. Johnson's view that Quebec has now served notice of its intention to preempt the field and that Ottawa should accordingly retire since the provinces, it is held, have constitutional priority in this matter.

Mr. Johnson's commitment is obviously a limited one: it commonly happens that a particular item appears year after year in throne speeches before it is finally enacted into legislation.

Internal Politics

There is a strong suspicion among usually well informed observers that Mr. Johnson's primary concern is to deprive the provincial Liberals of federal support in a 1967 election. Mr. Lesage will doubtless find it difficult to oppose a project so much in line with the nationalist claims advanced by his own administration. But if he supports the Johnson position, he is bound to aggravate the present difficulties dividing provincial and federal Liberals. The less help Mr. Lesage secures from the federal organization, which is strong in Quebec, the better will be Mr. Johnson's chances at the polls.

But the alleged constitutional issue looks very weak.

There have been two versions of Article 94 A of the British North America Act, which deals with old age pensions.

As originally enacted in 1951, the article reads: "It is hereby declared that the Parliament of Canada may from time to time make laws in relation to old age pensions in Canada, but no law made by the Parliament of Canada in relation to old age pensions shall affect the operation of any law present or future of a provincial legislature in relation to old age pensions."

It is quite possible that this wording would not have covered the present federal scheme. A Creditiste argued on Monday that the proposed payments are not in essence pensions but social assistance since they are calculated in relation to other income. But the amendment of 1964 seems to cover this point. It changes the wording as follows: "The Parliament of Canada may make laws in relation to old age pensions and supplementary benefits, including survivors' and disability benefits irrespective of age, but no such law shall affect the operation of any law present or future of a provincial legislature in relation to any such matter."

Supplementary

The proposed federal payments are supplementary benefits by legal description (guaranteed income supplements) and in actual fact. Thus the only question can be whether or not they interfere with Mr. Johnson's future plans for pensions.

Obviously they do not. They are in no way dependent on what Quebec does or chooses not to do. Mr. MacEachen plainly stated that, in the calculation of the income supplements, "social assistance payments from municipal, provincial and federal governments are not considered as income." If Mr. Johnson wishes to pay pensions to senior citizens of his province, he is not debarred from action by anything the federal government is doing or proposes to do.

It is true that he would have to raise the money himself but, under the constitution, he is perfectly free to do this. On the other hand, he obviously cannot force Ottawa to cede tax fields to the province because, as a stickler for the constitution, he well knows that federal power extends to "the raising of money by any mode or system of taxation."

Thus there would only be an issue if he could actually show that the federal program will affect the operation of a provincial pensions law in a manner not now evident.

May Go to Court

If there is such an issue, he can of course go to the Supreme Court of Canada, which is still very much in business. But Mr. Johnson, in language reminiscent of that once used by Mr. Jean Lesage, claims that a court ruling would be unacceptable; that there is not at the present time any court in Canada able to settle constitutional matters. Accordingly, he threatens to hold a provincial referendum which manifestly would settle nothing in so far as the federal right is concerned.

There is a basic contradiction in Mr. Johnson's argument. He holds on the one hand that the federal government must abide strictly by the letter of the constitution. But the constitution makes provision for a Supreme Court and this court has been interpreting the constitution for a great many years. Nothing has been enacted which in any way diminishes its powers. Thus Mr. Johnson has absolutely no constitutional warrant for denying its jurisdiction and his aversion to the court suggests a distinct lack of confidence in his own case.

Hazardous Highway

This week we have witnessed yet another tragic accident on Pat Bay Highway in which a fine young boy lost his life. It has been the cause of terrible heartbreak and suffering for his family and all who knew him. Now that the first shock has passed there is mixed with our grief a sense of anger that nothing is done to make that highway safer to drive on at night.

Although the Pat Bay Highway is engineered as a secondary road it is carrying a tremendous load of traffic to and from the ferry. At many of the intersections there is no safe way for a car to get out of the stream of traffic and turn off. Many of these intersections are in complete darkness so that someone unfamiliar with the highway does not even know they are there. All intersections on the highway should be well lit.

We consider that another factor that contributes to accidents is speed. Motorists are all over-driving their vision and simply do not see quickly enough to cope with an emergency.

Let us have a reduced speed limit on Pat Bay Highway after dark until such time as the highway is engineered to handle its present load. — Mrs. P. Larson, 5156 Santa Clara.

Bank Act Puzzle

According to your editorial of December 1 the note of protest to Ottawa by Washington, because of the attempt to limit the growth of the Mercantile Bank, brings into the open a quarrel which could have momentous consequences for this country. I am sure everybody will agree with that conclusion.

What is puzzling is how can the government just single out one bank, which has obtained a charter and will abide by the regulations of the Bank Act, for discriminating legislation. Are we to think that the Bank Act did not give Ottawa control over the nation's monetary policy? It certainly looks like it, since an amendment is now proposed to the act against one bank because of foreign ownership. If the Bank of Canada had real control it would not matter if a bank was provincially owned or by outside interests. They would have to abide by the directives. — E.G.

The Pearson Touch

I wonder if others caught that interesting bit of by-play between hockey periods last Saturday night? Prime Minister Pearson and Jean Beliveau were being interviewed and Jean was commenting on the pressure he was under to score his first goal. The Prime Minister gave a short laugh and said, "I know something about pressure. Forget it!"

Books could be written about this complex man and none would be as revealing as that cryptic remark. It illustrates his essential balance and complete lack of self-interest. When history is written Mr. Pearson will emerge as the most underrated prime minister of all time. No doubt he does not expect recognition and we are indeed fortunate to have his services in this period of uncertainty when a cool head is required rather than a Madison Avenue image. — E.W.H.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Harbinger of a Purge?

CHIANG CHING, wife to Mao Tse-tung, is emerging with a vengeance from the total obscurity which once cloaked her. One might say she has now become, not Mrs. Mao, but Madam Mao, for her new role is reminiscent of the part played by Madam Chiang Kai-shek in the war years in Chungking. From no rank at all, Madam Mao has abruptly ascended to the twenty-fifth place in the carefully graded Chinese hierarchy. She has been made deputy leader of the cultural revolution group under the central committee, and she has also become the cultural advisor of the Chinese Communist army.

Alsop

Furthermore, she has apparently been given the special task of purifying the ranks and rectifying the errors of the chief cultural institutions — the theater, the opera and the like — of the city of Peking. A few days ago, in a speech wonderfully combining shrillness with self-satisfaction, she called for a thorough clean-up of the capital's leading opera troupe; and this ludicrous oration was broadcast by the state radio as a major pronouncement.

One can imagine the pleasure that Madam Mao is deriving, from controlling the destinies and censoring the morals of China's most successful stage personalities. For she began her own career as a third rate, sadly unsuccessful actress in Shanghai; and it was her lack of success on the stage, as much as anything else, that impelled her to join the Communists, which led to her marriage to Chairman Mao.

There is plenty of human comedy in the new role of Madam Mao but it is also a political fact of profound interest and significance. It is the strongest possible proof, in fact, that there was a complex palace intrigue at the root of the present turmoil in China.

Flattered

Significantly, Madam Mao's emergence as a leading personage has been paralleled by the ascent to the pinnacles of power of another member of Mao's household, Chen Po-ta, the former chief of the sacred chairman's personal secretariat. In the speech above-cited, Chen Po-ta was on the short list of those Madam Mao singled out for admiring mention, which included, besides Chen, only Marshal Lin Piao, Chou En-lai, and the secret policeman, Kang Sheng.

From such indicators, one can begin to guess, with a certain confidence, at the real course of events that produced the present hardly credible situation. It is clear to begin with, that in the autumn of 1965, Mao discovered that his paranoiac views no longer commanded majority support among the leaders of the party apparatus and army.

In the same speech, Madam Mao appeared to refer to this event in a curious passage on minorities and majorities, in which she argued that a majority was not really a majority if it was composed of anti-Maoists. It is also pretty certain that towards the beginning of December, 1965, Mao fell seriously and lengthily ill. In these circumstances, one can imagine the feelings of his household-clique.

As their only possible saviour, they reached out, one may guess, to the powerful defence minister, Lin Piao, whose co-operation was assured by the promise that Mao would make him heir-apparent. The acquiescence of Chou En-lai was secured, and Kang Sheng, the secret policeman, was made an ally. Lin Piao in turn added to the group the locally powerful Canton boss, Tao Chu, who had always been close to him.

Still Indecisive

Such is the full list of the key persons who have been leading the Maoist counter-attack on the whole governing structure of Communist China. That they started as a small minority attacking a massive majority is made clear by a single, simple fact. The counter-attack has not yet fully succeeded, after many lurid months of struggle.

In Peking, calls are being published for show trials of the counter-attack's first victims, the former boss of Peking, Peng Chen, and the former army chief of staff, General Lo Jui-ching. But even in Peking, the remaining leaders of the former majority of the party, Liu Shao-chi and Teng Hsiao-ping, appear to be successfully resisting the long, loud and insistent clamor for their removal. And local leaders sympathetic to Liu and Teng are known to remain in control of somewhere between half and two-thirds of China's provinces.

This extraodinary drama of an openly divided China, whose highest leaders are daily and viciously denounced in posters plastering the walls of the capital, can hardly continue indefinitely. One side or the other must win, or there must be a compromise.

If Madam Mao and her friends are the final winners, there must be a purge, and probably a very bloody purge, of the party apparatus and army leadership. No other upshot seems possible. But even the most sanguinary purge is unlikely to make Maoism endure in China for very long after Mao himself has ceased to endure.

Looking Back

From The Times of Dec. 9, 1906:

Huddling together on the poop of the water-logged barque Columbia, watching the seas carry away masts and rigging and counting the minutes that separated them from death on the rocky coast off Cape Beale, 10 men crouched for shelter in the grey morning yesterday while a brave woman fought her way through the storm over 12 miles of broken land from the Cape Beale lighthouse to the Bamfield Creek cable station to send aid to them.

The government vessel Quadra was on its way in minutes.

Soviet Education Getting New Look

THE ECONOMIST

Russia's system of general education is to be overhauled. A declaration published on November 19 gives the outline of the proposed reform.

In accordance with the established educational precept that one should praise before criticizing, the declaration begins with a record of what has already been achieved. This is undeniably impressive. A few figures are enough to show how much has been achieved by a country in which 50 years ago only a tiny part of the population was literate.

Last year more than 68 million people, nearly a third of the total population, were engaged in some form of regular study. Of this total, more than 13 million were trying to improve their professional or technical qualifications by attending adult education classes; 3.6 million were at universities; 3.3 million were at technical colleges; and the rest, some 47 million boys and girls, were attending primary or secondary schools.

But the system is now described as old-fashioned and bursting at the seams. It is to be given a new look and provided with new syllabuses, new buildings and new methods.

For the average Russian the best news is that by 1970, the last year of the current economic plan, 10-year education, from 7 to 17, should be compulsory throughout the Soviet Union. This always used to be the objective until Mr. Khrushchev decided that pupils should start work after eight years of school, and that priority at universities should be given to those who graduated by way of the factory or the office.

In principle, the reform was democratic; it was designed to narrow the gap between academic study and work, between the intellectuals and the working people. In fact, Mr. Khrushchev was suspected of less noble motives, including a desire to weed out potentially tiresome students and thus check the ferment spreading among the young.

Being Dropped

In any case his reform was a flop, and it is now being quietly dropped.

But the search for links between learning and practical life is not. More than ever, polytechnical education is the aim. By this is meant a method of education in which theory is combined with practice, and learning with everyday life.

Pupils should, if possible, learn the laws of science and of society in laboratories and factories. Means should also be found to get them accustomed to working in the kind of jobs they are likely to get when they leave school. This used to be the objective in the early days of the Soviet regime, but it was abandoned during the Stalin era, when Russian schools reverted to more traditional methods.

In theory, the goal of polytechnical education was revived ten years ago, though little progress has been achieved so far. The present leaders are apparently more in earnest; as a token of this, each school will now have a deputy head in charge of extra-mural activities. There is also to be more time for music and the visual arts and a greater use is to be made of such aids as the cinema and television.

But with such an enlargement of the syllabus one wonders how it will be possible to keep the school week to the prescribed maximum of 24 hours in the lower forms and 30 hours in the higher ones.

Some of the reasons why so little progress has been made so far in modernizing education can be guessed from the criticisms in the declaration of November 19.

First, there is the shortage of premises; school building has not kept pace with the spread of education. For the first time the authorities feel able to propose that the number of pupils per class should be limited to 40 and to 35 in the highest forms.

Teacher Problem

Second, there is the problem of teachers. Although they at last got a salary rise last year, they are as underpaid as in other countries. (Some of the recommendations — for example, that a teacher in the countryside should be provided with accommodation — are a reminder how tough the life of a Russian teacher can be.)

Material obstacles, however, are not the only explanation for a certain conservatism in Soviet teaching. The Russians are rightly proud of the spread of education in their country and of the social transformation this has brought about. Any visitor to Russia can quote examples of drivers or chambermaids whose children are lecturers or doctors.

The revolution has undoubtedly given a chance to boys and girls who in the old days would not have dreamed of getting beyond the educational minimum. But there has not been any comparable jump in the system of teaching. The reason is not just the shortage of buildings and teachers.

In the first years of the Soviet regime, when the material difficulties were very great, the Russians took an active interest in anything that was new, progressive or experimental in the teaching world. Stalin, for obvious reasons, had no liking for teaching methods which might develop the pupils' critical faculties.

The present system, with its gold medals and other distinctions for successful pupils, probably reflects the continuing hierarchical nature of post-Stalinist society. The new policy is unlikely to result in radical changes because it is primarily designed to consolidate and improve the existing system, not to venture into uncharted territory.

'The Degree of Affluence That Leads to Degeneration'

By GERALD CLARK

(Fifth in a series on the increase in anxiety, discontent and confusion about values in Canadian life today.)

To Dr. Hans Selye, who has achieved world-wide acclaim for his work on stress, the main issues come down to a loss of spiritual values, of ideals, of "gods".

He agrees there are new forces in our lives causing disquiet, but does not agree with the reasons set out by Marshal McLuhan: More important than the impact of modern communications, he believes, is the rise itself of the affluent society.

"There is a degree of affluence that leads to degeneration," he says.

Clark

In labor-management fights, notwithstanding the case presented by trade union leaders, there is a message: "We have no other gods, so we have to beat the other man who possesses more than we do. It is what happens when a person always works on his own behalf. The more you become self-centred, the more you destroy stabilizing influences."

This, in turn, leads to the kind of restlessness that now exists.

Selye, who for 35 years has pursued the theory that stress is the true origin of degenerative diseases, defines it not as nervous tension alone but as "the rate of all wear and tear used by life."

At the Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery at the University of Montreal, he directs research teams approaching the problem from two points of view: The chemical and the philosophical. Many of the chemical changes in the body due to stress have now been identified — involving, for instance, compounds such as cortisone.

But the philosophic part, tying in emotion, is more difficult. No drug or simple answer has been found because, as Selye observes, "there is no single philosophy for everyone; you have to develop your own."

Stress Needed

Selye has never pretended that avoidance of stress is desirable.

On the contrary, he says: "Stress is a part of life, and you should know how to live with it. The absence of stress is death." But within this framework, you must still strike a balance — and here is where man falls short.

Selye refers to the history of animals. Early species gained distinction by achieving size. But animals that grew enormous bodies, and small brains, became so cumbersome and ill-suited for the world around them that they perished. Man, says Selye, is evolving in just as disproportionate a way, except that he has an enormous brain for a small body.

"Man's greatest weapon is his brain," says Selye. "But he is developing it to such an extent that he can destroy himself. He becomes so good at figuring out everything intellectually that he forgets the other gods."

In talking of "other gods," Selye starts with, and keeps referring back to, his childhood in Vienna. In those days, "to die for Emperor Franz Josef was the right thing." Today? This kind of ideal has vanished.

Only for Wealth

Selye deplores the passing of many of the old "stablizing influences" in the last 50 years. He says: "Monarchies have disappeared; loyalty to a nation is dismissed; the figure of God is questioned. Americans come up to Canada to dodge the draft, Canadians go down to the States to earn 30 per cent more. Loyalty to king, devotion to God and nation used to be strong. Now young people feel, 'What should we work for except wealth?' "

While man becomes self-centred in the wrong ways, part of the problem is that altruism by itself does not work either. In theory, it may be fine to be selfless but, in practice, human nature does not permit it.

So we should develop what Selye calls "a philosophy of gratitude." Put another way, "man's egosim must be altruistic."

If this sounds like a paradox, Selye argues that it is not, really. He contends that you have to set out to gather gratefulness while doing what satisfies you: "Nobody will blame you for egoism if your attitude inspires gratitude in others."

DR. HANS SELYE

. . . 'we have lost faith'

That is, discovering a new drug, or teaching a class, accumulates the thanksgiving of those who benefit from the medicine or the education.

This gratitude "is not like cash in the bank that can be damaged by inflation." An Einstein who is thrown out of his country, or quits, has no difficulty finding immediate acceptance elsewhere. And when it comes to teachers, Selye asks rhetorically: "Who would hurt Mr. Chips?"

He has his doubts about all the specific points raised to explain "ruthlessness." He does not believe that prolonged adolescence or schooling is significant. Nor does he think it dislocating if a greater percentage of middle-aged people are alive than at the turn of the century; he regards middle age as a stabilizing influence.

He returns constantly to his main point: We have lost faith. Where such faith or loyalty exists, you find stability.

Faith In China

It exists to a large measure in China with people saying they are willing to die for Mao Tse-tung; it is the same kind of faith as when Selye, the boy, was prepared to sacrifice himself for Franz Josef. An ideal, he emphasizes, adds to stability.

"What I deplore in young people," he says, "is their attitude of not being sure of anything. They tear apart every ideal."

But the phenomenon is not confined to our kind of society versus other ideologies. Within communism itself there is a breakdown. If China in the East retains a mystique, European communism is suffering from the same malaise as the Western world as a whole.

Selye quotes Ignazio Silone, the author and playwright who was one of the founders of the Italian Communist Party but who later quit it. Silone, in a recent book, complained that life is too easy. He came to the disenchanted conclusion that even Communists want to be paid for what they are doing; they no longer are content to work for slogans.

(To be concluded.)

Dead Sea Scrolls Custody Wrangling Finally Settled

By PATRICK SEALE

BEIRUT, Lebanon — More blood has boiled and scholarly ink been slung over the Dead Sea scrolls than over any other archaeological discovery in modern times. It is therefore agreeable to report an amicable settlement of a wrangle closely affecting the future care and custody of the Scrolls in Jordan.

On Dec. 1, the Palestine Archaeological Museum, the home of the scrolls, passed into the hands of the Jordan government from a board of international trustees which had run the museum for the past 18 years.

The Palestine Archaeological Museum is one of the finest museums in the world. Sober archaeologists say it is second only to the Metropolitan in New York and the British Museum. They speak with delight of its laboratories, darkrooms and work space. The handsome sandstone building, set in a four-acre olive grove, houses a unique collection of remains of some 75,000 years of human habitation in Palestine. The atmosphere is of peace and scholarship.

Last August the Jordan government suddenly declared that it was taking over the museum from the board of trustees. The moving spirit behind the nationalization was Anwar Al-Khatib, the powerful governor of Jerusalem, who claimed it as a triumph for Arab nationalism.

Lacked Funds

The Jordanian charge was that the trustees — to whom the British had handed over the museum in the last hectic weeks of the Mandate in 1948 — had done little more than "keep the place clean." Funds were lacking to expand the library. New archaeological finds went instead to the government museum in Amman or to museums on the sites at Jerash and Petra.

For all its beauties, the Palestine Archaeological Museum had become a fossil. For 18 years it had stood still, faithfully preserved, as in aspic, since the day the British left Palestine. It had become a tourist attraction rather than a centre for live research.

None of the distinguished scholars on the board of trustees contested the right of the Jordan government to nationalize the museum. But some of them — taken aback by the sudden decision — expressed concern. Would the Jordanians be able to run this treasure-house? Would they keep up the standards? Was there not a danger, it was whispered, that the endowment fund — presented with the building by John D. Rockefeller Jr. in the thirties — might be milked for other purposes? Would the splendid olive grove be sold off?

There was particular indignation at suggestions in the Jerusalem press — believed to have been inspired by the director of antiquities, Dr. Awni Dajani — that the trustees had not done their job properly and that some museum treasures had been "lost."

Stung by these allegations, Miss Kathleen Kenyon, principal of St. Hugh's College, Oxford, and a former director of the British School of Archaeology in Jerusalem, exploded with wrath against her former pupil, Dr. Dajani, accusing him of incompetence, or worse.

Passions Stilled

But these passions have now been stilled. The governor said that the King had approved the granting of medals to the trustees. And Miss Kenyon flew to Jerusalem to represent the British Academy at the final meeting of the board of trustees.

The Academie Francaise was represented by Pere Benoit, a leading New Testament scholar from the Ecole Biblique in Jerusalem. Henri Seyrig, a classicist and Near Eastern archaeologist (father of Delphine Seyrig of Marienbad fame) represented the French Foreign Ministry's Commission de Fouilles. Dr. John Marks of the American Schools of Oriental Research was there as were councillors from the British and American embassies.

The trustees had prepared a document releasing them from all further responsibility which they wanted the government to sign. But Aref Al-Aref, the new government-appointed director-general of the museum — a delightful septuagenarian, thrice mayor of Jerusalem — was reluctant to sign without a detailed inventory being presented.

This is where the scrolls, which have hotly divided Biblical scholars since their discovery, reared their head once more. In the museum vaults lie boxes of tens of thousands of scroll fragments, many smaller than a sixpence. The bigger bits have of course, been deciphered, numbered and catalogued. But not the myriad crumbs.

The mood on all sides is conciliatory. To still doubts about its capacity to mange the museum, the Jordan government has been approached for an annual grant of $600,000 to help revive the Jerusalem Museum as a great force in Near Eastern archaeology.

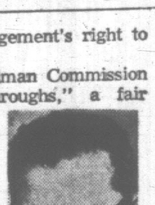
What Are Management Rights In Wake of Freedman Report?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

Are there limits on management's right to manage?

In the wake of the Freedman Commission Report on railway "run-throughs," a fair number of statements have appeared from both company and union sources on the question of the "residual" rights of management to introduce changes related to technological advances. What is largely excluded from the narrow range of the debate is the much wider concern of organized labor with the unilateral decision-making of management affecting working conditions.



Fisher

Andy Andras, director of the legislation department of the Canadian Labor Congress, provides some perspective on this in a paper presented to the recent National Conference on Labor Legislation in Ottawa. These are some of his points.

Crowe

Although the issue of residual management rights occupies a large part of the attention of organized labor, it is by no means new. As an issue it began when trade unions were first organized and upon the conclusion of the first collective agreement. The very existence of a trade union and its participation in the determination of conditions of employment spells out a reduction of the unimpeded control which management had previously enjoyed.

Technological change has brought the matter to a head with its far-reaching effects on employment, occupations, job location and the very existence of communities. These extensive changes, which represent virtually a new industrial revolution, create profound concern among workers.

The plain fact is that the area of decision-making has been increasingly shared by trade unions. The purpose of a trade union is to convert the government of an enterprise from an autocracy into a semblance of industrial democracy. It is to supplant unilateral decision-making powers of management by a bilateral arrangement involving both union and management.

Unions have never conceded there could be any absolute boundary surrounding the subject matter of the collective bargaining process. The position of unions has been that any aspect of the work environment which impinges upon the workers and their lives is a proper subject for negotiations and inclusion in the collective agreement.

More than this, unions challenge the concept of an absolute right to manage. The modern corporation exists in a network of legislative interventions which give an air of unreality to the concept of an absolute right. It is a matter of degree and of public judgment. The union represents an extension of the dilution of management rights sanctioned by law.

Mangement insists that what is not "given away" in the agreement belongs to management alone. It is precisely this attitude which has been the cause of industrial disputes recently and which threatens to be a focal point of conflict in the future.

Long experience in labor-management relations has taught unions the distinction between consultation and negotiations. The hard fact is that consultation, like conciliation, is not binding on the parties. Negotiations, if successful, result in an agreement.

On the railway "run-through" issue Justice Freedman recommended notice of intent of action by management accompanied by adequate details, arbitration if need be to assess the affect of the proposed change upon working conditions. He endorsed the appropriateness of strike action rather than compulsory arbitration as a means of dispute settlement where there is a breakdown in negotiations.

This is a strong statement by Mr. Andras. But it reflects faithfully the best thinking on the question in the labor movement.

OBSESSION WITH THE PAST ENDANGERS SPAIN'S FUTURE

By MARK FRANKLAND

MADRID—The new Spanish Constitution revealed here by General Franco was bound to start off discussions abroad about Spain's political progress. From the editorial reaction of European and American papers, it appears that many people have concluded that Spain will move—if not now, then after Franco's death—towards something roughly recognizable in the West as democracy.

The visitor from Western Europe can scarcely record this possibility as the most striking part of the Spanish scene. Quite the reverse. The visitor is far more likely to be struck by the completely anti-democratic nature of official Spanish political thinking.

One Franco-supporting Spaniard produced a version of this national ideology which brought out very clearly the romantic-masochistic interpretation of the Spanish character on which it appears to be based.

Divided People

"The Spaniards," he said, "are a divided people. They have their heads in the clouds and their feet in mud. They are capable of great spiritual loyalty, be it to God or to an ideal. This side of the Spanish character is represented in art by El Greco.

"But when it comes to everyday living, the Spanish are completely unsentimental. They do not try to escape from the harshness of life: cruelty, disease, hunger, lust, deformity — all are seen clearly and accepted. Hence the realism of Spanish painting: for example, the row of portraits of dwarfs painted by Velasquez, with no attempt to soften their ugliness, that hang in Madrid's Prado Museum.

"And it is this second side of their nature that comes into play in Spanish politics," he went on. "It prevents the Spanish from accepting artificial rules of political behaviour such as exist in Britain. An English politician, defeated in an election, will wait for the next chance to be elected. A Spanish politician would refuse to accept the result and scheme to reverse it by any means he could, including violence.

Look at History

"Anyone who does not accept this analysis of the Spanish character has only to look at Spanish history, and in particular at the Civil War. You can see, then, how ridiculous it is to demand that Spain should copy political methods which take no account of the Spanish character."

No one has made more of this interpretation of national character than Franco.

But to the outsider, this justification of Spanish authoritarianism by national character seems unconvincing. In the first place, no serious historian would argue today that there is such a thing as a permanent national character. The character of a people changes with changing social and economic conditions. And ironically Franco's tough rule has made considerable economic development possible in Spain.

Withdrawal of labor from the land, industrialization (the million Spaniards working in Western Europe are a part of this), all mean that Spain like other countries before her, is beginning to destroy some of the economic conditions which underlay her savage past. The disciplines of modern economic and social life must tell on people previously formed by the erratic and violent conditions of the Spanish countryside.

Spanish fascism, or whatever you care to call the political theory behind Franco's regime apparently takes no account of this. Its supporters still insist on deducing a straight line of cause and effect between Goya's "Horrors of War" drawings and their own "Horrors of Politics" speeches.

The foreign visitor can only comment that this obsession with the past seems to be in danger of becoming simply sentimental, because it has increasingly less relevance to the present. And it is clearly a poor training for the Spaniards who must cope with the country's problems once Franco is gone.

ALL-CANDIDATE MEETING

Saanich Sewage Problems High on Campaign List

By TERRY IZZARD

Saanich council candidates spent most of their time talking about local sewerage problems at an all-candidates' meeting Thursday night.

Only 70 people turned out for the orderly meeting in Mount View High School and hecklers were noticeably absent.

Seven men are seeking four vacant council seats in Saturday's election — well below normal for Saanich, indicating an off-interest year.

With only five minutes to speak, candidates, including four school board hopefuls, had little chance to elaborate on their platforms.

But all managed to raise the controversial sewer issue.

Highlights of their speeches:

Lionel Speller, 3628 Saanich, a chauffeur at Veterans' Hospital: He promised to inform the public of what was going on if elected, criticizing present council for making so many decisions in committee.

On the question of sewers, he commented: "The sooner Saanich gets a new sewer system, the better."

He also criticized council for "consistently refusing" applications by industry to locate in Saanich.

Referring specifically to the rejection of an application by Eaton's to build a store and warehose, Mr. Speller said:

"We should welcome them here and they will reduce the tax burden on home owners."

Alan Newberry, 4274 Parkside, elementary school principal, completing his first one-year term:

"The future," he said, "holds for us problems, and priorities — mainly recreation and sewers."

Recreational facilities are needed for a wide age range, he said.

Turning to sewers, he said: "I'm sure all council members are in favor of a regional sewer system."

'DESPERATE'

Coun. Newberry also raised the question of hospital financing — "a desperate situation, inflicted by the provincial government, is regional hospital financing.

"We're going to have to accept now some of the financial responsibilities for hospitals. We have to solve this problem."

On the other hand, he commented: "Taxes are not low in Saanich and we cannot go about borrowing money to complete projects."

Of attracting industry to Saanich, Mr. Newberry said: "We should have industry in Saanich — but in the right place. They should not come here and pollute the municipality.

"They'll come in on our terms."

Douglas Brown, 3895 Scolton, purchasing agent for Oak Bay municipality, unsuccessful a year ago:

Touching on the problem of fire facilities, he said the No. 2 firehall at Elk Lake is inadequate and should be replaced.

While doubting if the Saanich fire force should be doubled, as has been proposed, he agreed more personnel are needed.

On sewers, Mr. Brown said it was regrettable a consolidated referendum had been deferred.

Coun. Harold Todd, 1402 Andrews, a letter carrier completing his ninth term as a councillor:

Disagreeing with Mr. Brown, Coun. Todd said time was needed to study sewer recommendations. "Nobody knows the cost or who's going in on it.

"The regional board of this district will come up with these answers this year."

Referring to the shortage of hospital beds in the area, he said: "I think this coming year, councils of this area and the provincial government will have to get together and see if something can be done about it.

"We need a new one (hospital) in the vicinity of Royal Oak."

Coun. Ed Lum, 4879 Patricia Bay Highway, a motel owner, completing his first two-year term:

He said the Mount Tolmie reservoir will be started this year along with the Mackenzie Avenue project.

Chairman of the recreation committee, he said playground areas in the municipality had increased 20 per cent in the last year.

Of sewers, he said: "All councils accept that the sewer problem should be dealt with on a regional basis."

But, he said, each area tax structure is different and each area must make up its own mind if it wishes to enter the system.

Raymond Hayes, 3751 Savanah, an insulator at HMC Dockyard, ran unsuccessfully last year:

He said he couldn't understand the rejection by some council members of a large store and warehouse in the municipality (Eaton's).

"We should welcome these firms," he said. "It would bring in more tax dollars to lighten the burden of the home owner."

Mr. Hayes also plugged for completion of a four-lane Pat Bay Highway now and a new Gorge Bridge.

He also called for a federal-provincial-municipal board to solve the pollution problem.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, 2873 Austin, a shipyard storeman who served as reeve, councillor and police commissioner since 1936:

In one short sentence he summed up the reasons for deferring implementation of the sewer report:

"There is no surer way to defeat a project than to appear before the electorate with a half-baked project and unable to answer questions on it."

He said the municipality was going to have the sewers and face the increased sewer tax.

MEDITATE IN SILENCE

GLENROTHES, Scotland (AP) — This town's musical toilets were silenced Thursday.

The new public toilets in the town centre were opened a few weeks ago.

To provide soft music, a tape recorder was installed and the charge for using the toilets was increased to three pence from one pence.

Then the performing rights society, which protects composers and musicians from exploitation, advised the council that playing of the taped music came under the heading of a public performance. It demanded a licence fee.

FOOD-PRICES PROBE

Higher Taxes Spending Curb Hit By Labor

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada does not have inflation in any normal sense of the term, the Canadian Labor Congress said Thursday.

Any severe government restraint now "runs the risk of plunging the economy into recession," the CLC argued in a brief to Parliament's food-price inquiry being conducted by the Commons-Senate committee on living costs.

". . . If inflation is understood to mean strong, general, and prolonged upward price movements of such a magnitude as to wreak havoc on economic expectations, destroy business confidence, and weaken Canada's international position, then we must say that Canada has not been suffering from inflation in that sense.

"We do not feel that Canada's record of price performance has been such as to call for major restraining action by government in the form of higher taxes, major cutbacks in government expenditure, deferment of social security programs, and so on."

SAYS COSTS STABLE

The congress claimed that labor costs have been remarkably stable in Canada, matching the U.S. performance and better than other major industrial countries.

Consumer prices are due to settle down, said the brief, Several indicators point to an economic levelling off, and it will take a lag of several months before consumer prices follow the same trend.

The CLC pointed to an 11-percent drop on consumer spending between the first and second quarters of 1966, concentrated noticeably in sales of new motor vehicles.

Housing starts have taken a sharp drop since 1965 and steel production is slowing.

This year's large wage gains have been neither typical nor persuasive throughout the labor force, said the congress. Most larger increases were spread out over two or three years.

PROBE JOB REJECTED

CALGARY (CP)—Edwin J. Madill, former U.S. consul-general here, today asked the Alberta government to withdraw his appointment to the prairie royal commission on living costs.

His action followed a move by Liberal MLA Bill Dickie of Calgary Glenmore, who Thursday night sent a telegram to Alberta Lieutenant-Governor Grant MacEwan asking him to block the appointment.

Mr. Dickie's telegram suggested it was "unfair" to ask Mr. Madill to serve on the three-province commission "as he is on a retirement pension from the U.S. government."

AND THERE'S AN INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION THERE TOO!

Continental Shelf Opens Wide Issues

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

There's a new release on the Socred hit parade this week called "Buccaneer Bob," sung to a popular drugstore-cowboy tune, which goes:

"Home, home on the shelf
"Where the squid and the porpoises play,
"Where never is heard
"A federal word,
"And our title's not clouded today."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner last week wasted no time in washing off the dust of three hard weeks on the byelection campaign trail by drafting a cabinet order as a springboard for a breathtaking swan dive deep into international waters.

These are very deep waters indeed.

On June 10, 1964, the world's first codified international law on the subject went into force when Britain became the 22nd nation to ratify the Convention on the Continental Shelf that was formulated during the 1958 Law of the Sea Conference convened by the United Nations in Geneva.

Canadian High Commissioner in London George Drew was the first to sign the convention—and, indeed, he spearheaded the discussion that led to drafting of the terms at Geneva. Another 44 delegates signed although only 22 states formally ratified their agreement within six years.

The first two articles of this convention make it clear that international law will recognize only the Canadian federal government's jurisdiction over our continental shelf whatever any province may say or do.

●

Here's what they say:

"Article I

"For the purpose of these articles, the term "continental shelf" is used as referring (a) to the sea bed and subsoil of the submarine areas adjacent to the coast but outside the area of the territorial sea, to a depth of 200 metres (about 650 feet) or, beyond that limit, to where the depth of the superjacent waters admits of the exploitation of the natural resources of the said areas; (b) to the sea bed and subsoil of similar submarine areas adjacent to the coasts of islands.

"Article II

"1. The coastal State exercises over the continental shelf sovereign rights for the purpose of exploring it and exploiting its natural resources.

"2. The rights referred to in paragraph one of this article are exclusive in the sense that if the coastal State does not explore the continental shelf or exploit its natural resources, no one may undertake these activities or make a claim to the continental shelf, without the express consent of the coastal State.

"3. The rights of the coastal State over the continental shelf do not depend on occupation, effective or notional, or on any express proclamation."

(All four conventions produced at the Law of the Sea Conference refer to national entities as coastal States to distinguish them from landlocked States.)

●

Alvin Hamilton, then minister of natural resources, made it clear to the House of Commons in a July 25, 1958, speech on the conference that, although barely reported in the press this first world agreement in history on the rules to apply to the continental shelf "is of particular significance to Canada.

"In the long term, this agreement may have consequences of far-reaching importance to Canada in the development of underwater oil and mineral resources," he continued.

"It is not without significance that it was a proposal put forward by Canada . . . that led to the adoption of the Convention on the Continental Shelf nor is it without significance that it was a Canadian proposal to the final plenary session that led to a prohibition against reservations to the three main substantive articles in the convention."

The Convention's first article, makes in inapplicable to the "territorial sea" which, for failure of another convention at the same conference, still remains recognized as the three-mile limit so far as all-inclusive control is concerned and here there is room for argument between the provincial and federal governments.

And this, more than the supposed "mystery letter" about some proposed sea bed research project, may be the real reason for the provincial cabinet's action.

Remember, it is locked in an argument with the federal government over jurisdiction of offshore mineral rights which is to be decided by the Supreme Court of Canada early next year.

The B.C. claim to the territorial sea rests on an interpretation that it has a historic right to it from colonial days implied by the Proclamation of Union of the two colonies 100 years ago which defined its boundaries as:

"To the South by the territories of the United States of America, to the West by the Pacific Ocean and the frontier of the Russian territories in North America (Alaska panhandle today), to the North by the 60th parallel of north latitude and to the East from the boundary northwards, by the Rocky Mountains and the 120th meridian of west longitude, and shall include Queen Charlotte's Island and all other islands adjacent to the said territories . . . and Vancouver Island and the islands adjacent thereto."

(Ridiculous as it may sound, this very loose definition still is the legal source of today's ultra-exact surveys of our boundaries with the most delicate and precise instruments — which were used in delineating our northern boundary only in the past two years although the measurements still have to be adopted by legislation.)

●

The province argues that the three-mile territorial sea limit belonged to the colony when it signed itself into Confederation in 1871 and the terms of union (which strangely didn't bother defining what B.C. was) gave back to the province control of mineral resources within its territory, including this territorial sea.

A claim that, by the same unwritten but implied grounds, the continental shelf also was brought into Confederation by B.C., would be consistent with this argument —indeed, its absence would weaken the ease.

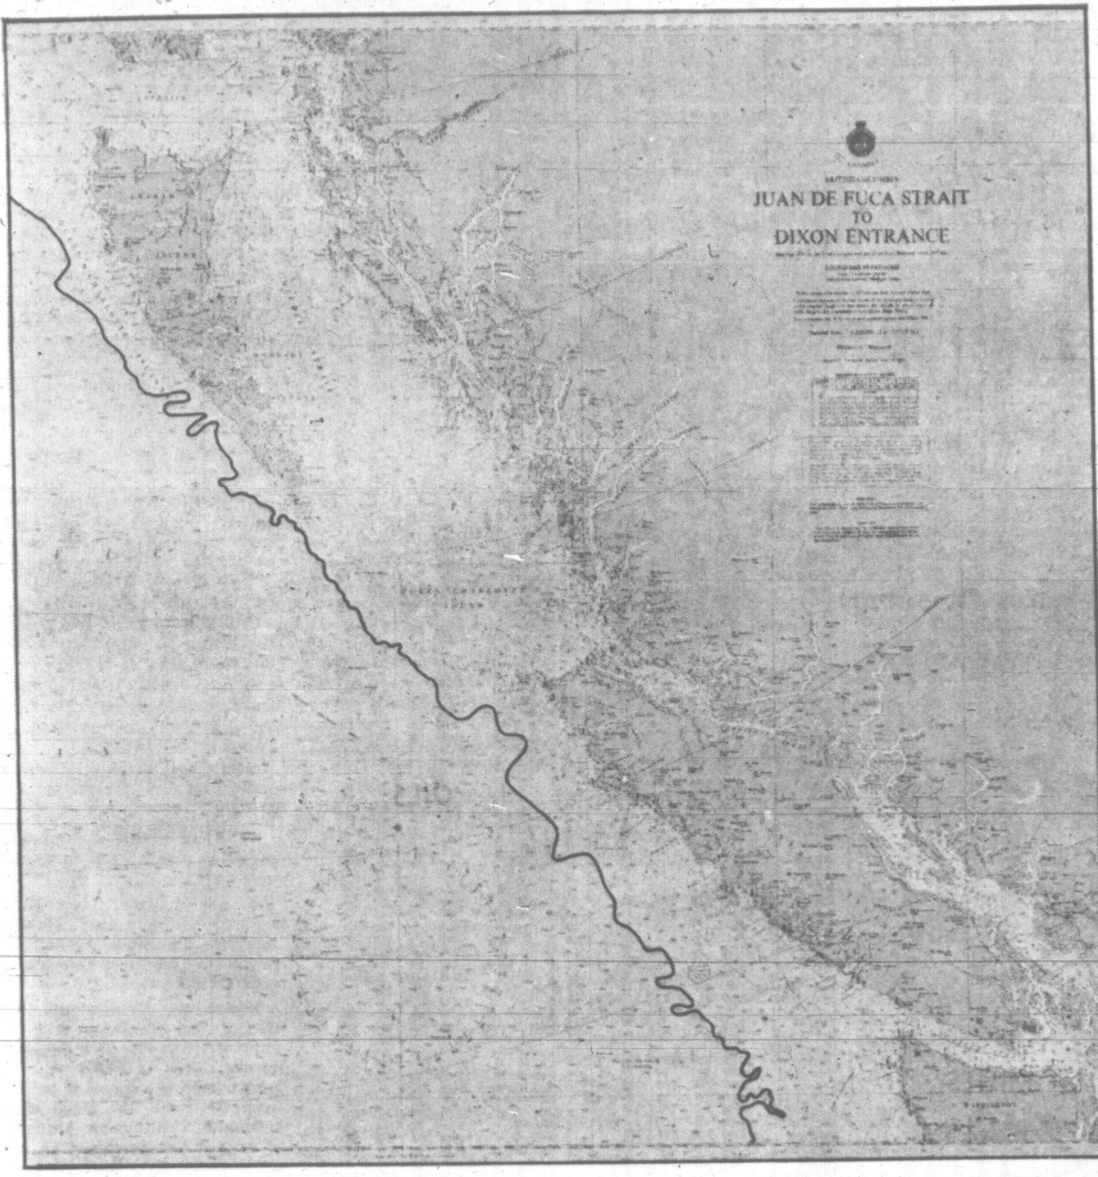
So, even if an international protocol invalidates the claim, the province must at least pretend the shelf belongs to it in order to enhance the plausibility of its submission to the Supreme Court.

That this is not a carefully documented and long-held conviction of the province is shown by the fact that the cabinet order came as a complete surprise to senior government officials and, apparently, even to the lawyers that are preparing B.C.'s case before the Supreme Court.

●

So hasty was the decision to pass the order that the next cabinet meeting had to adopt a supplementary order to dispel the instant fears of existing foreshore leaseholders that the new reserve would infringe on their rights.

The idea to make the claim sprang directly from Mr. Bonner. And when he explained its significance to reporters he apparently didn't even know the geographical fact that the shelf along the west side of this continent is one of the narrowest in the world.



OUTERMOST LIMIT of our continental shelf is delineated by the line on this chart showing its relative narrowness. The shelf itself is a gently undulating submarine plateau extending outward from the B.C. shore to an edge at approximately the 650-foot depth before angling down to the 3,500-foot depth where the line is drawn at the base of its slope and the beginning of the Pacific ocean's true basin.

The provincial government's own atlas of natural resources — produced in 1956 — shows that the continental shelf is barely 100 miles wide at its broadest point along the Queen Charlotte Sound instead of up to 300 miles as he told reporters.

Instead of the 100,000 to 150,000 square miles his calculations added to the province's area, our continental shelf is only about 25,000 square miles in size — considerably smaller than "the big country" riding of Cariboo itself.

However, Mr. Bonner rejoins that the cabinet order itself only asserts the province's jurisdiction over the shelf and does not purport to define the province's boundary.

In the next breath, he says the continental shelf mentioned in the order always was our boundary and if only the tide had gone out far enough it would have been obvious from the start.

●

Well, he can't have it both ways.

Either it was or was not our colonial boundary and if the court finds that the union proclamation read by Governor Frederick Seymour a century ago does not define, in a legal sense if not in direct wording, the continental shelf as a boundary then the generally-accepted view that rights not specifically held by the provinces are held by the federal government would apply.

Mr. Bonner remonstrates that it is impossible to conceive of "a part of Canada being west of B.C."

But Section 4 of the British North America Act would make this administratively possible because it says: "The Parliament of Canada may from time to time make provision for the administration, peace, order and good government of any territory not for the time being included in any Province."

Mr. Bonner, an adroit debater who relies more on diverting quips than on solid research, has an ingenious answer to Section 3 of the British North America Act which says:

"The Parliament of Canada may from time to time, with the consent of the legislature of any province of the said Dominion, increase, diminish or otherwise alter the limits of such province . . ."

Why, maintains the attorney-general, "we never consented to Parliament diminishing our boundary which always has been the continental shelf."

●

Aside from the fact that this smacks of retroactive rewriting of history, it flies in the face of the thesis of a world-recognized authority on the subject.

M. W. Mouton, a captain in the Royal Netherlands Navy and a doctor of law, wrote a 367-page treatise, The Continental Shelf, which won the 1952 Grotius Prize of the Institute of International Law that led to this subject being and gave impetus to the move made a separate study at the Law of the Sea Conference six years later.

He points out that the extent of continental shelves weren't even known until the advent of the echo sounder in 1920 and until now have only been of any significance to fishermen who learned that some coastal areas were more productive than the ocean centre.

At page 269, he refutes directly the arguement used by Mr. Bonner.

"This theory seems to us quite unacceptable. The continental shelf is a relatively new conception," he wrote.

"How could rights concerning a geographical formation exist before people were aware of its existence?

"Or do we have to assume that the rights were born at the same time that the soundings of scientific deep-sea research expeditions . . . started to draw the 100-fathom isobath on the charts?"

●

(Even if the latter doubtful assumption is made, that would give the continental shelf to the federal government because it was charted after the province joined Canada.)

Capt. Mouton made the point that only a new international law, growing slowly over the years by unchallenged individual nation proclamations or by the conventions of an international conference, could decide the rights to the continental shelf.

He also documented the nucleus of an internationally-recognized law of custom by listing the 19 countries and their dependencies who, unilaterally or bilaterally, claimed control over their continental shelves between 1945 and 1950 alone. These included the United States and United Kingdom.

Since the Geneva Convention on the Continental Shelf went into operation, the exploitation rights to the bottom of the North Sea have been divided, by surveyed boundaries, among Britain, Netherlands, Denmark, West Germany and Norway along lines required by the Convention. A similar division is being negotiated, however slowly, by Arab states and shiekdoms that border the Persian Gulf.

In all these cases, international recognition has been extended only to the continental shelf claims of sovereign states, not to those of provinces.

LITTLE KNOWN ABOUT DEEP-SET VEHICLE'S ACTIVITIES

Pisces Operations Forced Action?

The extensive but little known activities of a Vancouver-based deep-sea submersible research vehicle may have been the peg on which was hung the provincial cabinet order placing a crown reserve on the continental shelf.

Allan Trice, president of International Hydrodynamics Ltd. of Vancouver, today said various provincial departments were aware of its work at extreme depths on lease-contracts to U.S. government agencies.

"We had discussed some time ago sending a letter offering our services to the provincial government but I'm not certain whether or not it was sent," he said.

"We did send a letter last Monday as a result of all this publicity about the continental shelf and the government's interest in exploration projects there."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who drafted the order claiming the continental shelf for the province last week, says the move was precipitated by a mystery letter to Premier Bennett that a Sealab-type of underwater operation was being considered off the B.C. coast.

Mr. Bonner said he could not remember who sent the letter and Premier Bennett fended off reporters' inquiries by saying "there must be some mystery in politics."

"It was in the genuine belief of an impending use of the sea bed that I decided we had to make the order," Mr. Bonner insists.

To a direct question whether the letter came from International Hydrodynamics, Mr. Bonner responded "I don't know."

Mr. Trice's firm built a two-man battery-driven vehicle that has made over 100 dives in this area in the past six months — the deepest going to 2,500 feet in Jervis Inlet.

Named the "Pisces" — after a constellation of stars — it weighs seven tons, is 17 feet long and has a potential maximum operational capability of 5,000 feet underwater "but we haven't gone far enough yet to test it at that depth," Mr. Trice said.

He said last month the Pisces, under contract to the U.S. fishery agency, made 29 dives in the Seattle area to familarize them with its potential in carrying out surveys and experiments for the fishery agency.

"We also have a contract with the U.S. Navy to do some work for them in the torpedo range off Nanoose Bay in the Gulf of Georgia which was to start this week but has been delayed to next week," said Mr. Trice.

The Pisces cost $250,000 to build but considerably more is expected to be spent on it to equip it with a mechanical "arm" and other refinements.

What's Happening to Automobile Insurance Rates in 1967?

1. Are rates going up?

A survey of insurance companies indicates that the premium level of automobile insurance will go up slightly. On a national basis, it will increase less than one per cent. Locally and provincially, there will be wide variations.

For example, in Prince Edward Island, rates will be decreased quite substantially for most drivers. There will be smaller decreases in most parts of Quebec and British Columbia. The changes in Newfoundland and Ontario will be quite small while in other provinces the increases will range around ten per cent. In a number of local areas, increases may be higher.

2. Why the difference?

In most parts of Canada, the number of insurance claims has not increased as rapidly as in recent years but the average cost of each claim has increased substantially. This is due to a number of factors such as the increased cost of hospital care, some increases in medical costs, higher wages to mechanics and body shop employees, and higher compensation to injured persons.

3. Why the improvement?

Better safety legislation and law enforcement, better streets and highways and better driving habits are contributing to the improvement in claims. With costs rising steadily, continuing improvement in driving habits is necessary.

4. What will happen to individual rates?

A great deal depends upon the individual. Depending on a number of factors—if he has bought a new car, had a claim, reached the age of 25 etc.—his rate could go up or down despite the slight change in the general rate levels. Your insurance agent, broker or company representative can give you precise details when the new rates start going into effect beginning January 1st.

5. How About Young Drivers?

The insurance industry is giving more and more attention to young drivers since their problems will become greater in the next few years as more young people reach driving age. In 1967, insurance companies will be using a new rate system for men under 25 who drive their own cars.

Studies indicate that young men at the bottom of this age group, those 16, 17 and 18 years old, are most frequently involved in accidents. The record gets gradually better as the driver nears the age of 25. As a result, during 1967 many companies will be charging more for younger drivers, but less for those who are 23 and 24.

6. Will discounts for driver training still apply?

Yes. Nearly every insurance company in Canada now allows a discount to young drivers who have completed a driver training course which meets Canadian Highway Safety Council standards. For a young person driving his own car, the savings can soon pay the total cost of an approved driver education course.

7. If my rates go up, why? I haven't had an accident for 15 years.

If you were sure that you weren't going to have an accident, you wouldn't buy insurance. And if the insurance company was sure, it would charge you less. About one driver in seven will make an insurance claim during 1967; that driver might be you. And if you do have an accident it will probably cost more than a similar accident in 1966.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds featured modest activity today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Routine trade saw flax hold to a narrow range showing an underlying firmness aided by higher linseed oil prices on the continent.

Fair hedging sales appeared in flax and rapeseed. Rapeseed prices reflected declines in the Chicago soybean market.

Oilseeds received some stimulation from the resumption of shipping at the Pacific Coast.

BCT Announces 60c Dividend

VANCOUVER (CP)—A quarterly dividend of 60 cents a common share of British Columbia Telephone Co. was announced today by the board of directors.

The dividends will be payable Jan. 1 to shareholders of record Dec. 16, the announcement said.

Quarterly dividends were also announced for outstanding cumulative preference and preferred shares, but the amount was not disclosed.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Dull Session Marks Vancouver Trading

Trading was dull on the Vancouver stock exchange before noon today with declines outpacing advances.

Declines outnumbered gains about two to one on the mining board with Highmont heading the list. It lost .10 on 9,400 shares to $1.81 at noon. Western Mines fell .10 to $4.35, Rolling Hills, off .03 to .33, Peel slipped .02 to .13 and Westcoast Resources dropped .04 to .76.

Granduc was the big gainer, climbing .15 to $3.75 on 1,800 shares. Native jumped three to .67.

In the oils, Futurity was off .06 to .64 and Central Del Rio fell .12 to $13.37.

Volume to 11 a.m. was 295,051 shares.

AT TORONTO western oils reversed their downward trend in closing trade on the exchange today. The oil index advanced .19 to a high of 132.74 after falling .43 earlier in the day.

Canadian Superior reached a 1966 high of 31½, up 1¾. Scurry Rainbow gained ⅝ to 20⅞.

Industrials rose slightly. Hudson Bay Co. was up ⅛ to 15½ and Pembina Pipe reached a high, gaining 1 to 11½.

Among speculatives New Imperial advanced 21 cents to 2.31 on 106,000 shares.

AT NEW YORK the market rallied in late trading to register a gain.

As profits were taken IBM slumped seven points, United Aircraft, Homestake, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont and Polaroid a point or more each.

Norton Co. followed up its rise of 13⅛ Thursday with a jump of 4⅜ to 46½ on a delayed opening block of 45,000 shares, later trimming a couple of points from the rise. The stock was swamped with buyers because of news it has developed an inexpensive method putting sound tracks on home movies.

Carborundum climbed nearly four, Douglas Aircraft more than 3.

AT MONTREAL the recent sharp rally weakened slightly as investors followed the pattern of the New York Exchange.

Gains still held a slight edge over losses, however.

AT LONDON the market was dull today. Rhodesia still was an unsettling factor. Another influence was the latest report from the Bank of England, which lowered hopes of an early end to the "freeze."

Business was at a low ebb, with most leading shares tending to ease.

Dollar stocks improved with Wall Street, although there were a few laggards, including Brazilian Light and Power. Canadian Pacific and International Nickel added four points each and Noranda was firm. Canadian banks improved.

Natural Gas Well Find By Banff Oil

CALGARY (CP)—Banff Oil Ltd. announced today discovery of natural gas at a wildcat well in the Rainbow area 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

J. C. Randolph, Banff president, said in a prepared statement that gas was found in the Keg River formation at a well the company is currently drilling, Mobil Kitu 6-23.

Mr. Randolph also said the development well, in Range 8, west of the 6th Meridian, "is indicated to be a successful followup" to the discovery well one-half mile north.

Interests in the wells and the lands upon which they are being drilled are held 50 per cent by Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., 45 per cent by Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd., and five per cent by Banff Oil Ltd.

BUILD A REWARDING CAREER SELLING IBM OFFICE PRODUCTS

This is an opportunity for individuals who have a keen desire to become successful professional salesmen in the fast-growing office products field.

In IBM's Office Products Division, the challenge is to discover and implement ways of improving the flow of vital communications through an office. "It's called "word processing" — the use of modern equipment to increase output, making more productive time available to time-conscious business and professional men.

As an IBM Office Products salesman, you are assigned your own exclusive territory (following completion of a comprehensive training program). There you maintain direct, executive-level contact with IBM's present and prospective customers, analysing their typing, dictating and in-plant printing requirements, and make recommendations on what equipment should be installed.

The environment is challenging; the rewards and opportunities for promotion are attractive.

Industry Awaits Word On More Housing Money

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Significance of Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's promise of more housing money next year has yet to register here.

Mr. Sharp said Wednesday there would be more government money available for home building than there was this year, which would produce a substantial surge, especially in a depressed construction industry.

But the local office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., having been given no hint of the amount of money Mr. Sharp expects to budget, could offer no comment.

It had been anticipated that most of any increase in mortgage funds made available for home construction would come from private lenders.

And a recent CMHC interest boost, plus Bank Act changes, are expected to do that.

If there is more direct government lending as well, the available funds could go a long way toward meeting the pressure for new housing accommodation almost everywhere in Canada.

Besides that, the demand for lumber and forest products associated with house building will help the depressed B.C. lumber manufacturing and whole log industry.

Still, it is the export market that really counts in that industry, to which news of the U.S. government's action on home construction will be especially welcome.

The American industry—and primary producers in Canada—will benefit by $750 million additional government money for new homes.

Further reductions in long-distance telephone rates are proposed by Trans-Canada Telephone System.

Long-distance calling between Canada and U.S. points separated by at least 900 miles would be the first area of reduction proposed by the Canadian and U.S. telephone industry.

Most substantial savings would be on station-to-station calls at night and on Sunday. Starting date would be Jan. 15.

Ore reserves at Mount Washington Copper Co. Ltd. operation of Forbidden Plateau have fallen short of original expectations.

Mining was shut down Nov. 7 after handling 400,000 tons of ore taken from an open pit mine some 18 miles from Courtenay.

Grades of the concentrate dropped during the last two months of operation, and company president John B. Bailey said the 10 months to Nov. 1 almost broke even.

It had been estimated there were 600,000 tons of 1.4 per cent copper ore, with small gold and silver values.

The best month's operation was July when 20,797 tons of 1.16 per cent ore were treated.

Mr. Bailey said a report is in the offing on the company's outside exploration program.

Non-resident members of the club may join for $50 up to Jan. 1 when the fee will be hiked $25.

Underground Wiring For Gorge Section

A $100,000 move to bury unsightly overhead telephone and electricity wires along part of the Gorge will start soon.

The underground wiring project has been approved by the cabinet between Craigflower and Gorge bridges and will form part of the Capital Improvement District Commission's beautification plan for the area.

Nearing completion is the first stage of shoreline beautification costing close to $100,000 which will eventually run between Craigflower Bridge almost to Gorge Bridge.

The beautification plan includes rock wall, promenade, landscaping and lighting.

The underground wiring move is an extra not included in original plans to make the Gorge more attractive.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said underground wiring is "The icing on the beautification cake."

He added that "I can't be more enthusiastic about any other current project in Saanich."

The drive along the Gorge "will be a source of pride of the residents in the immediate area and a feature point for Victorians and visitors alike."

Tax Dodgers Aim of New Ottawa Setup

OTTAWA (CP) — The long tax-collecting arm of the federal government will be re-organized to make it stronger against tax dodgers, Revenue Minister Benson has announced.

He said in a statement that three new branches will be set up in the taxation division of his department. An assistant deputy minister will be named soon to head each branch. The new branches will be:

Compliance: This branch will supervise the uniform application of income tax and Canada Pension Plan regulations, and develop new weapons to combat "tax avoidance schemes."

Operations: This branch will manage the actual collection of personal and corporate income taxes, estate taxes, the old age pension tax and contributions to the pension plan.

Planning and research: This branch will plan long-range changes in tax policies and laws and study administrative methods.

B.C. MP IN COMMONS

Claims Cowichan Scuttled By Aetna Stock Dealings

OTTAWA (CP)—Frank Howard, NDP—Skeena, accused a Vancouver firm, Aetna Investments Ltd., in the Commons Thursday of juggling stock dealings in an unscrupulous way so that "a few fellows in the know" made hundreds of thousands of dollars.

He said the controlling principal in the company is a man named Mark Tanz, who was "also prime operator, both directly and behind the scenes, in a company which this House incorporated a week ago today—Canada Health and Accident Insurance Company."

Mr. Howard said Aetna Investments had engaged in a financial relationship with Cowichan Copper, a mining company at Jordan River.

"It juggled its financial relationships in stock purchases and sales on the stock market in such an unscrupulous way, I submit, that a few of the fellows in the know in Aetna Investments Ltd. made a few hundreds of thousands of dollars profit.

"The other shareholders of Aetna Investments came off with nothing.

"Cowichan Copper got scuttled in the deal and the people who work for that company together with those engaged in small business in and around that community (Jordan River) are on the verge of going bankrupt because of these unscrupulous activities by Aetna Investments."

Mr. Howard said that when MPs are confronted by a person with "as unsavory a reputation as Mark Tanz" the sponsors of incorporation bills in the House were placed in an awkward position."

The West Coast MP said that if the company intends to operate its business "in an unethical way, as certainly Mark Tanz and his associates do, they would certainly not appraise the sponsor of the bill of that intention."

Ian G. Wahn (L—Toronto St. Paul's) asked Mr. Howard whether he was prepared to "repeat those slanderous remarks outside the privilege of this House?"

Mr. Howard replied: "I have not at any time used my position in this House to say things I'm not prepared to say outside the House."

THROUGHOUT B.C.

Claims Staking At Record Pace

A record doubling last year's mark is indicated in the overwhelming number of mineral claims staked in B.C. this year.

Claims staked to early November totalled 81,000 and with nearly two months of winter staking reports to come in by the end of 1966, the figure could exceed 82,000.

Last year there were an unprecedented 41,317 claims staked in this province, dramatic evidence of the pace of mining exploration activity that has hit widely distributed parts of coastal, northern and interior B.C.

WILL CONTINUE

And according to conversation between mining men and the provincial mines department the rate of activity will carry over into 1967.

As long as world industry's demand continues for such metals as copper, silver and molybdenum, prospectors, geologists and miners will be spurred toward increasing production.

At a meeting of the Northwest Mining Association in Portland last week, B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines manager Thomas Elliott predicted mineral production for the current year would be worth a record $300 million.

The cost of exploration during the year to date has been $25 million as 70 large companies, some 15 oil-gas firms and many smaller companies engage in the hunt.

NEW COMPANIES

More than 425 new mining companies were incorporated in B.C. this year.

A great deal of activity is centred on copper and molybdenum, which rank fourth and seventh, respectively, in the list of values of B.C. mineral production for 1965, the latest available.

Of the $280 million realized by B.C. mineral production that year, zinc, contributed $48.7 million to top the list.

Oil and gas was worth $44 million, lead $43 and copper $32.7 million. Iron was next with $21.26 million, asbestos $14.5 million and molybdenum $12.4 million.

Ailver ranked eighth with a value of $6.9 million, gold was worth $4.4 million and nickel, cadmium, barite, sulphur, flux, gypsum and others trailed for an additional $10.8 million.

MAIN SUPPLIER

Mr. Elliott thinks molybdenum will bring in $50 million in just a few years as B.C. becomes one of the world's principal suppliers.

He also recognizes the benefit to this and other mineral development from outside money put up as risk capital, 50 per cent of which comes from the U.S.

Increasing amounts are coming from Britain, Japan and others, Mr. Elliott said.

Daily ore milling capacity in B.C. today is 73,000 tons with another eight mills coming on line for a total 114,000 tons.

Mr. Elliott feels capacity stands to reach 250,000 tons in view of explorations on more low-grade deposits that could bring 16 more properties into production.

He pointed to four areas in which forces are working to rein back on mining development and he urged that they be checked.

The first is an "erroneous impression by some Canadians that sufficient capital can be found in this country to adequately discover and develop all its resources.

RESTRICT CAPITAL FLOW

"This group, while fortunately in a minority, would take action that would ultimately restrict the flow of risk capital into Canada. In my opinion this would have a disastrous effect on our mining industry and Canada's economy," he said.

Second is agitation by some people to have parks set aside so that no mining can take place.

"Mines are few and far between and we must dig ore where the good Lord put it. We cannot plant mines as the forester plants trees or the farmer his crops.

"It is our responsibility to mine the ore wherever it occurs with minimum damage to the natural beauty of our province," Mr. Elliott said.

He said with careful planning B.C. can have both parks and mines.

His third point was that inflationary trends could make it hard for B.C. to compete in world metal markets.

And finally, he said there is a group of people who would restrict free movement of prospectors and who question the right to strip or use other methods essential to finding ore bodies.

10 Special CPR Trains For Holidays

MONTREAL — Canadian Pacific will operate 10 extra passenger trains to serve railway travellers during the Christmas and New Year's holiday periods.

The "holiday specials" will provide extra travel capacity to accommodate the holiday rush in addition to the regular daily transcontinental passenger service offered by "The Canadian."

Six of the special trains will serve points between Eastern Canada and Vancouver, three in each direction. The other four trains will serve Western Canada, with two trains in each direction between Winnipeg and Vancouver.

All 10 holiday trains will include coaches, sleeping cars, a dining car and a scenic dome lounge car.

DATES GIVEN

Trains will depart from Montreal and Toronto on Dec. 16, Dec. 18 and Dec. 20, join up in Sudbury and proceed westward to Vancouver.

The eastbound special trains will leave Vancouver Dec. 16, Dec. 20 and Dec. 31 en route to Montreal and Toronto.

In Western Canada, westbound trains will leave Winnipeg for Vancouver on Dec. 26 and Jan. 2. The eastbound trains between Vancouver and Winnipeg will depart on Dec. 22 and Jan. 2.

BCT Purchase Is Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Approval of the B.C. Telephone Company's application for purchase of the Okanagan Telephone Co. was reported today by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

B.C. Telephone offered $27.30 a share for Okanagan stock and has lined up more than 96 per cent of the outstanding shares. Total outlay will be about $13,000,000.

(In Vancouver, officials of BCT said that cheques will be in the mail to registered Okanagan stockholders within 10 days.)

Barlow Suffers Top Torture In Leafs' Camp

By DOUG PEDEN

Just like war, losing is hell.

Whether it is baseball, hockey, football or any other professional sport, being with a winner is wonderful. In days of success, confidence is king, rules are relaxed, everybody is friendly and the future seems reasonably secure.

Playing with a loser is misery. And if the losing habit stays around long enough, it becomes plain torture. Doubt becomes a constant companion, training rules are more rigid, practice sessions are more strenuous and more frequent. The usual unfounded rumors of dissension and other things make the rounds. Knowing that personnel changes are almost inevitable, players become jittery and wonder who is being offered as trade bait while long-distance tolls continue to mount behind closed doors of the front office.

BOBBY BARLOW

Victoria Maple Leafs, who hit the top of the Western Hockey League happy heap last season with a Patrick Cup championship, are having their turn in the torture chamber. Battered and bewildered, they have lost eight straight games and skidded into last place. This week they have been going through twice-daily training sessions as coach Frank Mario relentlessly drilled the champs on fundamentals and attempted to restore cohesion and confidence.

However, the worst torture is the mental anguish that comes from doubt and helpless frustration. And none of the Leafs has been suffering more than Bob Barlow, the man who scored 42 goals for Victoria last season and added another 10 in playoffs.

Barlow is in a slump. Not just an ordinary, irritating slump. A Mount Everest of slumps.

Last Year 17 Goals, This Year One

Just a year ago today, the Leafs had played 21 games and lost only three. In those 21 games, Barlow had scored 17 goals, tops in the league.

Going into Saturday night's game against Seattle Totems at Memorial Arena, the Leafs have again played 21 games. This time they have won only six and Bobby has exactly one goal.

How does it feel to be a scoring star who can't score?

"Terrible," Barlow said Thursday. "I feel guilty about letting the team down after being the leading scorer last year. I'm getting paid to score goals and unless I am scoring I'm not helping the team.

"It's funny how things turn out," he said. "I worked hard all summer to keep my weight down so I could start the season in good shape. Then this happened. That's sport, I guess.

"I keep reminding myself of my first season with Seattle, four years ago. I had scored only 11 goals at Christmas and finished the season with 47. I scored 36 goals in the last 35 games.

"I just hope it can happen again. If I can get shooting again I think it can happen. I know I won't be satisfied unless I do have a good season."

Has the 31-year-old native of Hamilton, who scored 27 goals in his rookie pro season with Cleveland and who has averaged more than 38 in his four Western League campaigns, been doing anything different this season?

"I haven't been getting into position for shots as well as I did last year," Bobby commented. "I'm not a stylish scorer. I have to get into that slot in front of the net and pick up those 'garbage' goals. I know I have to do more shooting and I've been practising this week on getting into the right position at the right time.

Tries 'Power of Positive Thinking'

"We have all been working on trying to improve the team's positional play. Frank has had us staying on our wings more. He has also had us working on hitting the blue line in full stride, something we haven't been doing. We all feel we'll solve a lot of our problems if we play better positional hockey.

"Another thing," Barlow said, "is confidence. Last year I was ready to defy the world. I just knew I was going to score goals. This year I have gradually lost my confidence. I was even thinking negatively around home and my wife has been trying to help me."

One thing Mariyln Barlow did this week to help her worried husband was to purchase a copy of "The Power of Positive Thinking"—the book that Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens believes helped him blossom into a scoring star two years ago.

"I've been reading the book," Bobby said, "and I feel better. I also feel better physically. Frank has really worked us this week and the whole team is in better shape. You could notice the improvement today.

"Make no mistake about it, we all intend to win. We're the champions and we know we can make the playoffs. A lot of us have families here and don't want to be traded. We like it here and we intend to stay.

"I really think the team will come out of it Saturday and I feel I'm going to start scoring again.

"There's no way Seattle is going to beat us Saturday night."

Time alone will prove the strength of positive thinking, but the way Robert Barlow said it, you had to be convinced.

Pee Wees Too Young For Tour Says CAHA

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — A letter opposing a proposed tour of Europe by two peewee teams has been mailed to officials of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, Gordon Juckes of Melville said today.

Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said the CAHA frowns upon international competition for players less than 15 or 16.

In addition, Juckes said, President Fred Page of Vancouver had instructed him to remind the QAHA that any European tours must be arranged by the CAHA. He said the tour under consideration began with a letter from a QAHA official to the French government.

The teams, both from the Montreal area, were scheduled to play each other in five games. The tour was to begin in England and move to France.

No CAHA rule covers specifically the possibility that Canadian teams would tour without playing European competition, he said, but a regulation passed recently was intended to prevent all tours by exceptionally-young players.

Chicago Shares Luxury Quarters With Big Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Who's that with a piece of first place in the National Hockey League? Holy hat tricks! It's New York Rangers!

While Chicago Black Hawks were thumping Boston Bruins 10-2 in one NHL game Thursday night, the Rangers moved into a first-place tie with the Hawks by beating Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

Another highlight of the night's hockey was a goal by Bobby Hull, his first since Nov. 19.

The goal enabled him to keep an edge on his younger brother and team-mate, Dennis, who also scored in the Hawks' scoring spree against the Bruins. Bobby now has 10 goals and Dennis nine.

Chicago and New York enjoy their first-place eminence by virtue of 26 points each, one more than Toronto Maple Leafs, who did not play Thursday.

Stan Mikita of Chicago kept his firm grip on the top slot in the individual scoring race as he scored one goal and picked up four assists.

Chicago's star was Doug Mohns with three goals. Ed Van Impe scored two goals, Phil Esposito one, Ken Wharram one and the Hull brothers one each.

Ron Stewart and Ed Westfall scored for Boston.

At Detroit, Harry Howell opened the scoring for New York at 4:26 of the first period. Gordie Howe replied for the Wings at 5:20 of the same period to tie it at one goal apiece as they went into the second.

DOUG MOHNS
. . . three goals

Don Marshall and Earl Ingarfield for New York hammered home two more nails in Detroit's coffin in the second period.

Ted Hampson scored for Detroit at 13:15 of the last period but hopes of a come-back died when Rod Gilbert smashed in New York's fourth at 14:59.

The night's action ended with the last three teams in the standings, Montreal, Boston and Detroit, with 21, 16 and 12 points respectively.

In Toronto, coach Punch Imlach scratched left winger Eddie Shack as a possible starter in weekend games. Shack returned home after spending a night in a Montreal hospital. He suffered a mild concussion and a 15-stitch cut over his right eye Wednesday night in a collision with Ted Harris of Montreal Canadiens.

UNHAPPY HAP PLANS MAJOR TEAM SHUFFLE

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Bruins, winless in seven games, were threatened with a major personnel shakeup today in the wake of a 10-2 National Hockey League blitz by Chicago Black Hawks.

"We're not going to just shake up lines or defences this time," Boston general manager Hap Emms said angrily after the Bruins' woeful performance before a crowd of 11,541, the smallest Boston Garden turnout of the season.

Asked if the Bruins would would practise today, Emms snapped:

"Practice? That's all they have been doing. It's about time they got down to work."

NEW LION-TAMER TAKES CHARGE

Preparing to step into the shoes and office of Herb Capozzi, retiring general manager of B.C. Lions, is Dennis Veitch, 34. His prime function will be to "create a climate in which Dave Skrien can coach." Veitch apprenticed for the job by serving five years as the Lions' minor football coordinator.

Two Pairs Share Rich PGA Lead

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—The teams of Billy Farrell-Dave Lichardus and Doug Sanders-Al Besselink fired 62s Thursday and took a two-stroke lead with 127 midway through the $275,000 PGA best-ball golf championship.

The pace was 17 under par. After 36 holes, it took a score of at least 138 to qualify for the final two rounds of the 72-hole tournament, richest in pro golf history, which will pay the winning pair $50,000.

DUO DROPS

The Jack Nicklaus-Arnold Palmer combination, which led the first round with 63, dropped in a second-place tie with the team of Howie Johnson and Chris Blocker at 129, two strokes off.

Brothers Jay and Lionel Hebert who finished second in the inaugural tournament last year, were in third spot at 130.

The cutoff will leave the low 60 scorers and ties in the concluding two rounds from a field of 120 teams which started Wednesday.

HELPED EACH OTHER

Sanders and Besselink made the most of best-ball team play. Five times, one or the other went into the water and five times the player with the dry ball birdied the hole.

Besselink carded six birdies in Thursday's round, which tied the course record, and he's stroked 13 of them in their first 36 holes.

"We don't play safe," said Besselink. "But we played together for years as amateurs and we know how to club each other (advising on which club to choose)."

Sanders hit three birdies in a row between the sixth and eighth holes.

Farrell and Lichardus burned the back nine of the west course in 30 to come home with 62. They had 10 birdies and missed an eagle by two inches at the seventh hole, when Lichardus hit out of a bunker.

Farrell contributed six of the birdies.

A win in the tournament would do a lot for their earnings. So far they have won less than $5,000 between them.

Palmer and Nicklaus were decidedly unhappy about their second round, in which Palmer put his ball in water hazards four times, Nicklaus once.

"It was a wild day," said Nicklaus. "We went in the water at every possibility."

Between the two of them, they missed only one hazard.

"We didn't do anything well," said Palmer.

Defending champion Butch Baird and Gay Brewer Jr. carded a 69 for 135 total and dropped eight strokes back.

STILL CELEBRATING

American League Had Record Year

BOSTON (AP)—The American League, still celebrating Baltimore Orioles' four-game sweep of Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series, has reported a record year in 1966.

President Joe Cronin said today 66 major league and American League baseball records were broken or tied last season.

The breakdown showed 20 major league records bettered and 22 tied, and nine league marks erased and 15 tied.

Cronin also formally proclaimed Frank Robinson of Baltimore the league slugging champion with a mark of .637, highest since Mickey Mantle of New York won with .687 in 1961.

Robinson, who won the triple crown with a batting average of .316, 49 homers and 122 runs batted in, easily captured the slugging crown. Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota was runner-up with .538.

Hoyt Wilhelm, Chicago White Sox relief specialist, broke five of his major league records. They included most errorless games, 229; most games as a reliever, 764; most victories in relief, 99; most games finished in relief, 485, and most innings pitched in relief, 1,428.

Mantle, hobbled much of the season by injuries, broke two major league records by hitting eight homers in six consecutive games and hiking his career strikeout total to 1,500 by fanning 76 times. Mantle also tied the major league mark by hitting seven homers in five straight games.

Bobby Knoop of California Angels set major league records by a second baseman in participating in six double plays in a game against Boston May 1 and by making 12 putouts against the Red Sox Aug. 30.

Another major league record showed that American League clubs also set a mark by having 15 managers during the season.

BRAIN BOYS TEST . . . . . . THE MUSCLE BOYS

Golfers Healthier Than Anybody

By THOMAS A. REEDY

LONDON (AP)—The brain boys turned the spotlight on the muscle boys and came out today with the conclusion that golfers are healthier than anybody.

The experiment was conducted by university professors and scientists among cricket players, golfers, Olympic oarsmen and about 140 ordinary students.

The winners:

Dai Rees, 53-year-old professional, British senior champion and former captain of the British Ryder Cup team which beat the Americans in 1957 and has been unable to repeat it ever since.

Neil Coles, 32-year-old professional, leading money winner on the British circuit and a perennial threat in every major tournament.

Oarsmen came second in the tests, third were the students and the cricketers placed last.

Dr. John Jeffreys, head of the Physical Education Department at Leicester University, commented on the results of the tests:

"We were surprised that golfers were fitter because they were older, mostly around 35. But it seems that walking is the secret."

The tests were given on a bicycle machine, pedalled at various speeds with instruments recording pulse rates, blood pressure, oxygen intake, breathing rates and general efficiency.

Battle-Ready Leafs Set To Add to Totes' Woes

Seattle Totems ran out of magic Thursday night in Oakland and Victoria Maple Leafs are hoping that Western Hockey League troubles are only starting for the Totems.

Totems, arriving in Oakland with four straight victories and six wins in their last seven games, went down to a 3-2 defeat when the Seals bounced from behind with two third-period goals.

Totems make their next start Saturday night at Memorial Arena when they tackle the Leafs, who will be coming off a week of intensive drills with the intention of snapping an eight-game losing skein.

In another game played Thursday, Vancouver Canucks gave up the first three goals and finally dropped a 6-3 decision to the Blades at Los Angeles.

EVANS FIRED WINNER

Totems took the lead in the first period when Guyle Fielder and Jim Powers raced in at full speed on Seal netminder Jack McCartan. Fielder pushed the puck ahead and Powers' shot from point-blank range was right on target.

Mo Mantha drilled a long high shot from just inside the blue line midway through the period to tie the game, but Don Chiz got that back with 38 seconds remaining.

After a scoreless second period, Bob Kabel deflected John Gravel's shot into the net to tie the game again and Jack Evans weaved through several Totem defenders two minutes later to fire home the winner.

TWO-GOAL EFFORTS

Willie O'Ree and Norm Johnson each fired two goals as the Blades snapped a two-game losing streak with their win over the second-place Canucks.

Leafs, in last place, one point behind San Diego and five back of Los Angeles, had hoped to have a new player in action when they tackled the Totems. Instead, they'll be one short.

However, André Champagne, assigned to Victoria by Tulsa in a trade for rookie Neil Clark, is remaining in Tulsa for medical treatment. Clark has already arrived at Tulsa.

"Champagne has been suffering from mononucleosis," explained Victoria manager Buck Houle. "He's lost 30 pounds and there's no sense bringing him here if he's not ready to play."

Houle was working on another trade, with a WHL club, that could give the Leafs another new centre by Saturday night.

Coach Frank Mario, who has been trying to improve positional play and power-play production as well as over-all condition of the team during strenuous practice sessions this week, was optimistic today.

"There's been a decided improvement this week," said Mario. "They all seemed to be skating better.

BRIT SELBY GOES HOME; OUT A YEAR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brit Selby, former National League rookie star who was sent down this season to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, will be flown to Toronto to recover from a broken ankle.

A Canucks' spokesman said Thursday that Selby will be out for the rest of the season. He broke an ankle bone in a collision Wednesday during a game at San Diego, Calif.

Selby, Rookie of the Year in the NHL last season when he played with Toronto Maple Leafs, will be fitted with a cast and flown to Toronto.

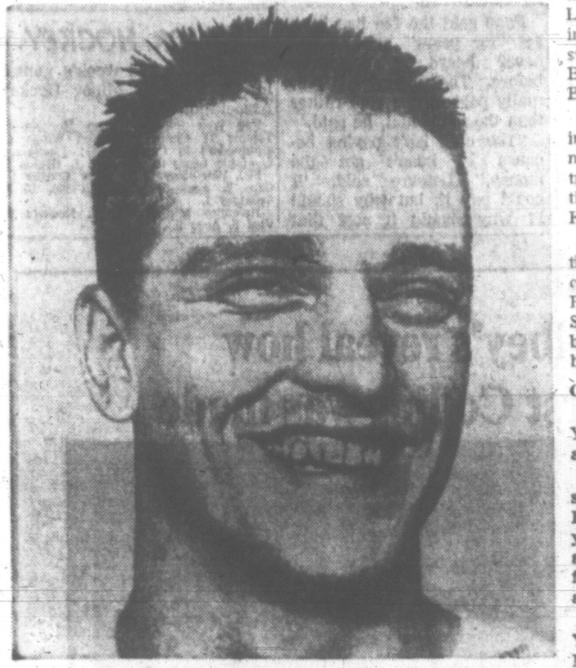
Yankees Swap Maris For Cardinals' Smith

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP)—Lee MacPhail, working feverishly over the shattered New York Yankees, continues to operate at his favorite market place—the National League.

The new Yankee general manager shipped Roger Maris and his $75,000 salary tag to St. Louis for third baseman Charley Smith Thursday.



ROGER MARIS . . . wasn't surprised.

It was MacPhail's second deal since being hired to help rebuild the Yankees, who finished the 1966 season in the American League cellar for the first time in 42 years. Ten days ago he swapped third baseman Clete Boyer to Atlanta for outfielder Bill Robinson.

It was MacPhail, then working for Baltimore, who engineered the biggest inter-league trade of 1965 when he dealt three players to Cincinnati for Frank Robinson.

MacPhail can hardly expect the same kind of instant success for the Maris swap that Robinson brought to Baltimore. Smith is a journeyman third baseman who carries a lifetime batting average of .243.

CHANGES PICTURE

But the deal does open up the Yankees' outfield picture quite a bit.

"We want to make a fresh start," said New York Manager Ralph Houk. "With two fine young outfielders, Steve Whitaker and Bill Robinson, vying for jobs, we want to give them a chance."

It was an open secret that the Yankees were ready to unload Maris, who only five years ago broke Babe Ruth's record for home runs when he hit 61 in a 162-game season.

"I wasn't at all surprised," the slugging outfielder said after being told of the deal. "I rather expected it. In fact, I expected to be traded ever since 1962."

Smith, who has played for the Los Angeles Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies, Chicago White Sox and New York Mets as well as St. Louis, exclaimed: "I'll be darned."

NAMED MVP TWICE

Maris, twice chosen the American League's Most Valuable Player, dominated baseball in 1961 with his blistering home run pace.

After his record-shattering season, he rocketed into baseball's higher slary class but his production slipped noticeably. He hit 33 homers in 1962, 23 in 1963 and 26 in 1964.

He was crippled by injuries through most of 1965, appearing in 46 games and hitting only eight homers. He underwent surgery for the removal of bone chips at the base of his right hand after the season and played in 119 games last season, managing only 13 homers.

The Cardinals feel that Maris can come back for them just as Orlando Cepeda did last year after they acquired him from San Francisco. Cepeda, considered washed up by many baseball men, batted .301 for the Cards after being traded for pitcher Ray Sadecki, who won only six games.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Fifth-Place Finish Pleases Canadian

LONDON (CP) — There were no tears Thursday night from Paul Yoshimasu of Winnipeg, 32-year-old ten-pin bowling champion, when he finished fifth at the international masters tournament after leading the 24-man field early in the three-day competition.

"Placing fifth against this competition is a real honor," the stocky Canadian right-hander said in an interview as the tournament ended. "The standard of competition was terrific."

YOUNGSTER WON

The championship was won by John Wilcox, 19, of the U.S.

Yoshimasu, who won the Canadian singles title for the first time last spring at Fort William and shares the doubles title with Norm Heywood of Winnipeg, took the lead Wednesday then slipped to second that night.

Thursday afternoon he dropped back to third and he continued to slip in the evening play.

"I lost some important matches. Some of them I should have won, probably. But when you're bowling well and still lose, it can be tough."

LOT OF IMPROVEMENT

Yoshimasu said he was impressed by the improvement shown among bowlers from outside North America, traditional home of the game.

"They all use the basic style with the same personal variations that anyone has, but they're all very good.

"To be frank, I look like an amateur out there sometimes. Most of these guys are very young. They've been given a proper grounding in the game and they've worked hard.

"I think bowling in Canada probably is behind a lot of these countries now — just like hockey."

Rich Subsidy Promised In New Puck Agreement

By ALLAN EATON

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A new agreement that includes sweeping changes is expected to be finalized next month between the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, it was learned today.

The new five-year pact would replace the present 10-year agreement, UPI learned, and includes such revolutionary clauses as:

- Reinstatement of professional players to amatuer status after a player has remained out of hockey one year, and been cleared by a joint NHL-CAHA committee.
- A universal draft of all over-age juniors, with NHL clubs paying the CAHA $3,000 per player, and minor professional clubs $2,000 per player.
- An additional annual "assistance" subsidy of several hundred thousand dollars to be paid the CAHA by professional clubs for development of minor hockey.
- Elimination of provincial branch-to-branch transfers.
- Elimination of all professional sponsorships involving amateur teams.
- Changes in amateur hockey rules without sanction of the NHL and its referee-in-chief.

The new agreement already has been completed in draft form and is expected to be given the CAHA stamp of approval at the executive committee's semi-annual meeting in Winnipeg next month.

It was described by a high-ranking CAHA official as a good agreement. "Now we must prove to them (the NHL) that we can get the job of player development done," he added.

The CAHA has long expressed disappointment with agreements between it and the NHL. The amateur body served notice of motion at its annual meeting 18 months ago in Victoria, B.C., that it no longer would co-operate with the NHL under the existing agreement which formally expires in June, 1967.

Opposed to pro sponsorships and lack of financial support, the amateur body convinced the NHL it could develop more players if sponsorships were abolished and the money given to amateur hockey.

Signings of amateur players of junior, and younger age, already have been frozen. (A junior is any player under 20 years of age by May 31.) Until this year, the professional clubs were drafting players 17 and 18.

The CAHA agreed there were isolated instances of more advanced 17 and 18-year-old players ready to graduate to professional ranks, and was prepared to make exceptions to the 20-year-old minimum, but the pro clubs insisted there be no exceptions.

A dispute is currently brewing between the NHL and the minor pro clubs regarding the draft of amateur players, but this is not expected to affect the overall aggreement. (The NHL wants the first 72 choices, with the next 45 going to the 15 American and Western league clubs. The eight AHL and seven WHL clubs have rejected this, noting last year's draft gave the NHL clubs the first 24 choices, and them 45, three per team.

Amateur reinstatement of professional players after the one-year "sit-out" will be decided by a five-man committee comprised of three CAHA representatives and two NHL members, with balance of power alternating from year to year.

ANNUAL SUBSIDY

In addition to the draft price, the NHL will pay the CAHA a straight annual subsidy for minor hockey development. It is proposed that it be $75,000 for 1967, jumping to $200,000 in 1968 (after pro clubs have concluded existing sponsorship commitments), with an eventual aim of $500,000 a year.

Draft money would be given to clubs which developed the player, tracing his minor hockey career (through branch registration cards) back three or four years.

The additional subsidy would be distributed to the provinces for training camps and minor development.

"And it would be their responsibility to stop dragging their feet and get going on some good minor hockey programs," said one official.

TRANSFERS OUT

Elimination of branch-to-branch transfers is designed to support this plan. Records show for example that as many as 30 B.C. players in one season have been playing with junior clubs on the prairies because of lack of top-notch junior programs in B.C.

Freedom of rule changes without NHL approval is not expected to result in many changes, but does give the amateur body a greater degree of autonomy.

After the new agreement has been approved next month by the CAHA executive, it will be ratified at the annual meeting in Saskatoon in May.

Bret Hanover Picked Again

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bret Hanover has been voted Harness Horse of the Year and becomes the only three-time winner of the honor in the history of harness racing.

Owned by Goohard Downing of Shaker Heights, Ohio., and trained by Frank Ervin, the four-year-old stallion has been retired to Castleton Farm in Lexington, Ky., beginning with the 1967 season. His transfer to the farm was the result of a reported $2,000,000 deal.

During 1966 Bret Hanover had 17 victories in 20 starts with two seconds and a third. He earned $407,534 to raise his lifetime total for three racing seaons to $922,616 — a record for the sport.

Ellsworth's Luck Could Improve In New Uniform

CHICAGO (AP) — They call southpaw Dick Ellsworth the unlucky pitcher, a tag that may vanish when he changes from a Chicago Cubs to a Philadelphia Phillies baseball uniform next season.

The Cubs traded their one-time $50,000 bonus baby to the Phils for right-hander Ray Culp and a substantial sum of cash.

In seven seasons with the Cubs, Ellsworth was often left dangling because of errors or shabby hitting. His record was 84-110, the high-point being a 22-10 season in 1963.

Culp was 7-4 last season and had a winning record in each of his four campaigns with the Phils.

Europe's Ski Slopes Beckon Canadians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's national ski team will make a three-week tour of three European countries Jan. 1 to Jan. 24.

Team manager Peter Webster said the team of six men, five women and two coaches will tour Switzerland, Austria and Germany. The team will be selected after Christmas.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Putting dent into Victoria's domination of "Bowler-of-the-Week" competition is Duncan's Clive Walton. He topped Times-sponsored competition in ninth week with 214-335-349—898 series in Duncan Mixed League to capture honors in men's fivepin division. Walton now becomes eligible to compete in "Bowler-of-the-Year" rolloff in May.

Chuvalo Predicts It'll Be Dull Bout

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—The victim of both Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell says it will be a dull, listless fight when the two meet for the world heavyweight championship because their styles are too much alike.

George Chuvalo, 29, Canadian heavyweight title holder from Toronto, lost 15-round decisions to both in title fights in the last 18 months. He is also the only man Clay hasn't been able to knock out in a championship fight.

"Clay should win," said Chuvalo, who is certain he will get another chance at the winner of the Feb. 6 bout in Houston. His confidence was heightened Tuesday when Clay announced during signing ceremonies with Terrell that Chuvalo will be next in line.

"Clay will be the aggressor," said Chuvalo. "He is a better puncher, a faster puncher and has more variety in his attack than Terrell. It's difficult to make a fight with Terrell. He sticks out his left and runs or grabs, but does little fighting. And he seldom uses his right hand.

CLAY PUNCHES

"Clay, on the other hand, throws a lot of punches even when he's going back. And with Terrell, he will be on the attack, putting on the pressure."

Asked what kind of fight should be expected, he said:

"Because their styles are similar, it could make for a poor fight. Terrell always makes a poor, listless, dull fight. It won't be like when I fought those two, I was always moving in and punching. These guys are too similar in style."

Chuvalo said: "I'll be rooting for Clay. Terrell would be easier for me to defeat, but there'll be a much more lucrative payday with Clay. People don't want to come out and see Terrell because of the many poor fights he has been involved in. But they'll pay to see Clay and I'm rooting for him."

Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, said Terrell has also promised Chuvalo a shot at the crown if he defeats Clay.

"We're in good position just as long as we don't blow any bouts between now and then."

Chuvalo has a record of blowing bouts against fighters of average calibre. But during the last few months he has been keeping busy by meeting and defeating novices.

GREENLEE MAKES IT

Easterners Dominate All-American Voting

NEW YORK (AP)—Notre Dame, the national champion, and Michigan State, the runner-up, each placed three men on the Associated Press, annual All-American football team.

They are Tom Regner, offensive guard; Nick Eddy, offensive back, and Jim Lynch, linebacker, from Notre Dame; and Clint Jones, offensive back; Bubba Smith, defensive end, and George Webster, defensive back, from Michigan State.

Steve Spurrier of Florida, the Heisman Award winner, is quarterback and Mel Farr, UCLA, rounds out the backfield.

The team was based on recommendations of the AP football board of sports writers and sportscasters, who also voted weekly on the top 10 teams.

The voters concentrated their ballots almost entirely to the east. Washington end Tom Greenlee and UCLA back Mel Farr were the only players selected from the far west.

The team:

OFFENCE

Ends—Jack Clancy, Michigan and Ray Perkins, Alabama.
Tackles—Cecil Dowdy, Alabama and Gary Bugenhagen, Syracuse.
Guards—Tom Regner, Notre Dame and LaVerne Allers, Nebraska.
Centre—Jim Breland, Georgia Tech.
Quarterback—Steve Spurrier, Florida.
Backs—Mel Farr, UCLA; Nick Eddy, Notre Dame; Clint Jones, Michigan State.

DEFENCE

Ends—Bubba Smith, Michigan State and Tom Greenlee, Washington.
Tackles—Loyd Phillips, Arkansas and George Patton, Georgia.
Middle Guard—Wayne Meylan, Nebraska.
Linebackers—Paul Waumoff, Tennessee; Jim Lynch, Notre Dame, and Bob Matheson, Duke.
Backs—George Webster, Michigan State; Tom Beier, Miami, Fla., and Frank Loria, Virginia Tech.

ANGRY FATHER . . . . . . PREPARED TO SUE

Recreational Hockey Expensive

VANCOUVER (CP) — The father of a young hockey player says he is prepared to take the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to court rather than pay a $35 transfer fee to have his son play "recreational hockey."

Al Lefevre of suburban Burnaby says he is ready to fight the CAHA on principle and not for the money.

Lefevre, who moved his family to Burnaby from Trenton, Ont., said his son Allan played juvenile hockey in the east and paid a $12 fee to register in the Burnaby Minor Hockey Association.

"Now the CAHA wants $35 for a transfer fee," he said.

Jim McKeever, a youth from Fort William, Ont., is in the same position because his parents also refuse to pay the transfer fee. Neither boy can play for Burnaby Legion's junior B team until the money is paid.

"This isn't for any high-powered junior A team," said Lefevre. "This is for a couple of kids who just want to go out and play recreational hockey."

Lefevre met Wednesday night with Fred Page of Vancouver, president of the CAHA, but said he received no satisfaction.

Page said the fee has been set "for years" and he has never heard a complaint before. The money is normally paid by the club rather than the individual, he said.

"The club isn't paying because it hasn't got the money," Lefevre said. "I could pay if, but why should I? Why should it cost that much before they'll let a boy play hockey?"

He said he signed no CAHA card for his son and anything his son might have signed would be worthless because he is still a minor.

"If the thing drags on, I may have to fight it out on that basis," said Lefevre.

Red Wing Hands Shuffled Around

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League have exchanged three players with two other Detroit Red Wing farm clubs.

Hornets sent goalie Joe Daley, defenceman Bart Crashley and forward Craig Cameron to Memphis of the Central League.

In return, the Hornets will receive goalie George Gardner and forward Gary Marsh from Memphis and defenceman Jim Eagle from San Diego of the Western League.

Plateau Skiers Start Saturday

COURTENAY — It's "go for snow" time.

The Forbidden Plateau ski season is expected to get under way Saturday. A two-foot fall of powder snow was reported earlier this week and regular operation of the tow has been set for Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

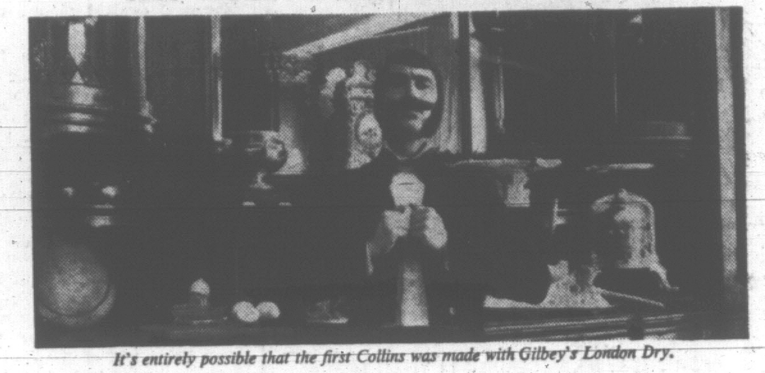
Gilbey's reveal how the first Collins was made



It's entirely possible that the first Collins was made with Gilbey's London Dry.

HOW WAS THE first Collins made? It was made by the Headwaiter at a London restaurant. Not surprisingly, his name was Mr. Collins. It's entirely possible that he mixed the drink with Gilbey's London Dry Gin because this gin has been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink.

Original Tom Collins

My name is Mr. Collins,
Headwaiter at Limmers
Corner of Conduit Street,
Hanover Square
My chief occupation is filling of brimmers
For all the young gentlemen frequenters there.

Tallest of all the "brimmers" made by Mr. Collins was a mixture of gin, lemon juice, sugar and 'charged' water. Today, it is know the world over as the Tom Collins.

Speedy Tom Collins

Today of course you can mix your Collins much more speedily. Where Mr. Collins had to squeeze fresh lemons you can use frozen lemonade. And where Mr. Collins had to crack his ice from the block you can take yours straight from the freezer. But you still begin with Gilbey's London Dry. Its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

'STEP TOWARD PEACE'

N-Ban in Space Agreed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson said Thursday the United States, the Soviet Union and other countries have reached agreement on a treaty that would bar nuclear weapons from outer space.

Johnson, in a statement read to reporters at White House press headquarters here, said the draft treaty prepared by the outer space committee of the United Nations represents an "important step toward peace."

Announcing he would forward the treaty to the Senate early next year for ratification action, the chief executive said:

"It is the most important arms control development since the limited test ban treaty of 1963."

The 1963 treaty, since ratified by most of the world's nations but not by France and Communist China, forebade nuclear testing in the atmosphere. Underground testing is still permitted.

Terms of the new treaty would bar weapons from outer space and would guarantee free access by all nations to all parts of the moon and other celestial bodies—including access to any installation that man might erect there.

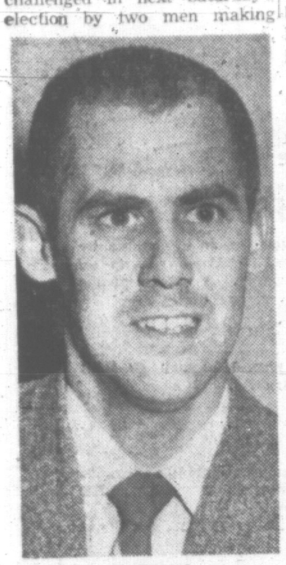
CURRAN-SHORTING ALSO RUN AGAIN

Pair Making First Bid For Saanich School Seats

Two incumbent school trustees in Saanich are being challenged in next Saturday's election by two men making their first bid for public office.



CURRAN

SHORTING

The incumbents are George Curran, who has been on the board for six years, and Dr. Donald Shorting, who has completes his first two-year term.

Mr. Curran, a former vice-chairman of the board, is now chairman of its finance committee and has been responsible for this year's difficult negotiations over teachers' salaries.

In earlier years he pressed strongly for the industrial education program now being widely introduced in the schools. His main interest at present is implementation of "the good points" of the Downey-Hartrick report.

Dr. Shorting says that in his first term "I've probably not contributed as much as I've learned." He adds, "But after two years I know what is wanted and needed."

He wants more experimentation in teaching methods, more flexibility of program to suit individual student needs, with an enriched program for the gifted and special remedial programs for culturally deprived youngsters.

He says that the only way to reduce class sizes is to go ahead quickly with a building program and he would also like to see speedy progress in adopting the "desirable and applicable" recommendations of the Downey-Hartrick report.

The challengers in Saanich are Dennis Glew, 1210 Alturas, and Reginald Parlby, 621 Sedger.

Mr. Glew, a forester, became interested in running for office when he read press reports about the Downey-Hartrick report. He says, "I was perturbed by the state of affairs that the report revealed. I decided there was no use just talking about it. I would have to run for office if I was going to improve the situation."

He wants a reduction in pupil-teacher ratio, more school libraries and improvement in relations between the board, administrators, teachers and the public.

Mr. Parlby, a construction supervisor, says "Fundamentally, I want to see the best education possible for youngsters at least expense to the taxpayers. I have equal concern for the interests of the students and the ratepayers."

He says that in his work, which includes much school building, "I have seen some things that have not pleased me. Money is being wasted."

Mr. Parlby said he thinks his business experience could help the school board, especially in this period of heavy school construction.

Area Official Lauds Club

The Victoria Chinatown Lions Club came in for some high praise Wednesday when they were visited by their new district governor.

District governor Clark Matthieu of Port Angeles commended the club's work in their recent Lantern Festival, their contribution of a new $2,000 heating system to the Chinese hospital and their extensive Red Cross swimming program.

The new governor presides over 1,600 Lions in 43 clubs on Vancouver Island, the Olympic Peninsula and the lower mainland.

BLOODY FIGHTS KILL 31

MOSCOW (Reuters)—At least 31 persons were killed and hundreds injured in bloody clashes between militant teen-age Red Guards and workers in China last weekend, Tass News Agency has reported.

In a report from Peking, Tass said 13 persons, most of them workers, died when "revolutionary pupils" battled with workers organized by the city council in Wusi, in eastern China.

15 SPEAK TO 55

Small Audience Hears City Hall Candidates

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The candidates almost outnumbered the audience at Thursday night's all-candidate election rally in Victoria High School Auditorium.

Seventeen candidates for mayor, alderman or school trustee jammed the platform at the auditorium to address the 55 persons present.

Mayoralty candidates Ald. Hugh Stephen, Ald. Clyde Savage and Frank Hunter gave 10-minute speeches outlining their stands on various civic issues.

The 11 aldermanic candidates were given three minutes each in which to get their points across, as were the three candidates for school trustees.

Most of them didn't make it.

Mr. Hunter repeated his pledge to again make Victoria a major Pacific port.

"It is still the last port of call after crossing the Pacific," he said. "It used to be a major port and can become one again."

Ald. Savage reiterated his promise to work for closer cooperation between Victoria and other municipalities with the ultimate aim amalgamation.

"If you elect me you will elect a man opposed to red tape. I believe in getting things done," he said.

Ald. Stephen said strong leadership was needed at city hall.

"We all realize that the tax dollar is not inexhaustible," he said. "As a busines man must learn to allocate his limited resources on a priority basis, so must the city.

"We must also learn the hard lesson that before a dollar can be spent it must be earned."

• • •

Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott, an aldermanic candidate seeking his third term in office, reviewed his accomplishments during the past two years drawing special attention to the solution of the Dardanelles road problem and the planned solution to the Johnson Street bridge bottleneck.

Ald. Percy Frampton, seeking his second term on council, pledged that he would continue in his role of watchdog of the people's tax dollar.

Hugh Ramsay, seeking re-election to a council he left after serving two terms, said he would fight for greater cooperation between municipalites and continued urban renewal.

Newcomer on the civic politics scene Ian Stewart, a lawyer, promised support to any "realistic" formula for solving the hospital construction program and to take all matters up "carefully but judiciously."

Eric H. Garman, retired forester seeking his first term on council, promised "sane, sincere civic government for an enlightened, interested electorate."

Lloyd Clarkson, formerly a school trustee now seeking council status, won the hearts of the slim audience by inviting them to "stretch" during the first 10 seconds of the three minutes allotted him.

After one hour and 20 minutes of speech-making the audience reacted with appreciative attention as he promised government with reason.

Mrs. Evelyn MacKenzie, oft-time loser at civic polls, said she would keep trying for office until elected.

She said she would take a vital interest in hospitals, senior citizens and any program designed to prevent accidents.

William Scott, another perennial loser at civic elections, once again lashed out at "the establishment" and sharply critized Victoria' debt load. He said federal and provincial governments should pay more to municipalities.

Emil Kingsfield said he would press for a larger police force because "in Victoria we are raising a generation of switch-blade artists." He added that if people saw fit to vote for him he wanted "Frank Hunter as my mayor."

William G. Smith assured the audience that he would continue to work hard for pollution and noise control and stressed that he was not new to civic politics having once been the reeve of a small community in New Brunswick.

Charles Thompson, retired city hall employee, also promised active work against pollution.

"It's disgraceful that each summer when you go to the beach you see signs posted saying 'No swimming'," he said.

Seeking office as school trustee, Joseph Haegert said he was not seeking office for prestige.

"My children are grown up now so I can devote the time required," he said. "We need men on the school board. A woman may be fine as mayor but to handle schools you need a man."

Daphne Temple disagreed. "I think we need a woman on the school board," she said.

Mrs. Temple promised aid for the teachers' work burden but added that she had "no magic wand to solve all of the problems."

E. J. Wood said it is obvious things are out of hand when taxpayers' dollars had to be spent to provide parking lots for children in high school. If elected he said he would call for a full study and evaluation of the entire school system.

HOME GARDEN

Time Now For Good Soaking

By HILDA BEASTALL

For those gardeners who put away pots of bulbs into a dark cool place to root, here is a reminder that they should be checked.

Hilda

You may have buried them under soil or compost in the garden, or you may have put them into a dark, cool storage cupboard. Wherever they are, even the late potted bulbs of October will now have plenty of root showing at the drainage holes.

Top growth of narcissi, or daffodils, will be showing, and the first need of the plants will be a thorough soaking in a pan of tepid water, letting the suplus drain away later.

This will approximate a warm spring rain in the soil, and if this if followed by a temperature around 55 to 60 deg. F. for a week or 10 days, rapid advancement will be noticed.

BUDS VISIBLE

Depending to some extent on the variety of narcissi being grown, the buds should be visible between the leaves when they (the leaves) reach a height between four and eight inches.

From that time until the buds commence opening, the temperature during the day may be increased to just over 70 deg. F., although at night it should drop back to 60 deg. F.

If sunshine is available during the bud growing period, so much the better for the general sturdiness of leaves and flowers but once flowering commences, less heat will prolong the life of the blooms.

Potted bulbs should not be soggy wet, nor should they ever be dry.

LIGHT FEEDING

One small feeding of fertilizer after the blossoms are cut off will help rebuild the bulbs for planting into the garden to bloom two years hence.

Using the same bulbs the following year in pots is a waste of time and space, for although a top size narcissus mother-bulb will produce from five to seven stems of bloom the first year, there may be none the next year.

Good bulbs are however worth keeping for garden use. The leaves must remain green as long as possible while the feeding of fertilizer is going to work to bebuild the bulbs. Plant them out of the pots into the garden by early April, and continue watering as long as the leaves are green.

Special Mass Marks Year Of Thanks

A year of thanksgiving for the achievements of the Vatican Council in Rome will reach its official close tonight.

To mark the occasion, Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, will conduct high pontifical mass in St. Andrew's Cathedral at 7:30 p.m.

Men and women from other parishes of Southern Vancouver Island are expected.

Bishop De Roo attended all of the four Vatican Councils in Rome. When the last council concluded in December, 1965, Pope Paul decreed that the year to come should be observed as a jubilee year in the history of Christianity.

He appealed to Roman Catholics everywhere to offer thanks for the progress made towards Christian unity throughout the world.

"We shall mark the close of this year in a spirit of thanksgiving," the bishop said.

IDEAS ASKED

Bishop De Roo has invited men and women of all Roman Catholic parishes on Vancouver Island to present ideas in writing as to the best way of forming a pastoral council.

He says the council will be concerned with consultation, research and the promotion of organized action at the diocesan level. It will provide channels of communication between the bishop and the people.

"This type of council was recommended at the Vatican Council," said Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the diocese of Victoria.

"It will be broader in scope than a parish organization because it will include the whole diocese of Vancouver Island."

ASSIGNED to a tour of duty which will take him into courtrooms in the Deep South is U.S. Customs Court Judge James L. Watson, 44. He will serve in Texas, Georgia and Florida. A former state senator from New York's Harlem, he is the son of the first Negro jurist ever elected in New York.

Stevens, 88, Completes Park Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Today's politicians might do a better job of running the country if they took a brisk daily walk to tone up their mental processes, says an 88-year-old retired cabinet minister.

H. H. Stevens, trade minister in two pre-war Conservative governments, commemorated his 88th birthday Thursday by completing a two-mile hike around Stanley Park in the brisk winter weather.

"When you are walking you get rid of your worries and you take a more reasonable and unprejudiced view of things," Mr. Stevens said. "I would recommend walking for today's politicians.

"When the House of Commons isn't busy, they loaf around and develop a bored attitude to the nation's business. The more exercise they get, the better the country will be."

UN Place for Viet?

SANTA'S GREETINGS SPARK STREET BRAWL

LOUVAIN, Belgium (Reuters) — Saint Nicholas, alias Santa Claus, was involved in a street fight Wednesday because he gave the season's greetings in French in this Flemish-speaking area of Belgium. A French-speaking student dressed in the traditional robes of Saint Nicholas, was on his way to a party with friends when they were attacked by more than 100 Flemings. About a dozen French-speaking students joinued in and before police broke up the melee several students were hurt.

Film World Has Finally Produced Thinking Man's Writer

BRADBURY
. . . he likes it

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie world has finally come to grips with Ray Bradbury, thus correcting a grievous omission.

Universal now is bringing to movie theatres Fahrenheit 451, the company's first big venture in international film-making. It was directed by the new-wave Frenchman, Francois Truffaut, in his first English - language film; it stars Oskar Werner, and Julie Christie in a dual role.

The film is a futuristic horror tale of a cowardly new world in which zombie-like citizens stare at television and are forbidden to read books, which are destroyed by fire crews (burning point: 451 degrees fahrenheit). It is a thinking man's movie, but it may also be enjoyed on a purely science-fiction level.

That is the nature of Ray Bradbury's work, which may help explain why he was long the most unproduced of major writers.

The author was talking about his checkered history in Hollywood after attending his sixth screening of the movie. "I like it," he said glowingly.

ADAPTED MOBY DICK

Bradbury wrote a memorable science fiction film, It Came From Outer Space, and adapted Moby Dick for the John Huston-Gregory Peck movie. Most of his other screen work has been in transforming his books into scripts that never were filmed.

"Fahrenheit 451 was optioned by three or four producers before Truffaut got it," said Bradbury, who resembles an owlish accountant. "It took Truffaut four years to put the deal together.

"The Martian Chronicles has been in the hands of such producers as . . . David Susskind, who wanted to put it on Broadway as a musical comedy.

"Finally it is going to be produced on the stage in Paris by Jean Louis Barrault next Jan. 15. It will be a full-scale production employing film, ballet and puppets, who will play the Martians."

Why have film producers neglected Bradbury all these years?

"I think Hollywood producers have had a resistance to fantasy," he explained, "although there have been some great films in that line—Here Comes Mr. Jordan, Things To Come, The Thief of Baghdad (1940), The Man Who Could Work Miracles and even the Dracula-Frankenstein - mummy pictures of Universal."

A few years ago, producer Walt Disney gave us a Robin Hood who was so genteel he looked almost apologetic every time he skewered an enemy with his trusty bow.

Now he gives us a very gentlemanly version of Red Hugh O'Donnell, the Irish hero of the 16th century who was such a terror to the English they shut him up in Dublin Castle for safekeeping.

True, O'Donnell is rather more war-like than Robin and actually shows teeth when cutting down English villains with his mighty broadsword. But he never quite loses the image of a do-gooder, drawn reluctantly into battle.

Peter McEnery as Red Hugh is partnered by the gentle English beauty, Susan Hampshire, and between them they infuse lots of sweetness into what must have been a very grim piece of history.

* * *

The credit lines proudly announce that this new Disney historical was made at the Pinewood Studios, near London, England. But the plaster castles are unmistakably Irish and impeccably constructed in the Disneyland manner.

The fine color photography wafts us back to the Ireland of 1587 when it was garrisoned by English troops against the threat of Spanish invasion.

When the chieftain of the O'Donnell clan goes to the greater reward, his son Hugh takes over. According to legend, he has been chosen to unite the clans of Ireland against English oppression.

This means he must call on the chieftain of the gallant McSweeney clan, so the chieftain's beautiful daughter can inspire an all-out battle for freedom.

Alas, Red Hugh is tricked into visiting aboard an enemy trading vessel. He is trapped, abducted and made prisoner in an English castle to await the pleasure (or venom) of Queen Elizabeth the One.

Soon the screen is ablaze with flashing swords and hailing arrows and we know it will all lead up to a mighty duel on the castle stairs. The English villain will have his sword knocked out of his hand, but the Irish hero will be too gentlemanly to skewer an unarmed man.

It simply isn't done, y'know.

$35 MILLION DONATION

Mellon Art Treasures Given to Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Philanthropist Paul Mellon has given Yale University one of the world's outstanding private art collections, a $35,000,000 body of British works he has gathered during the last 15 years.

Along with the collection of 17th, 18th, and 19th-century paintings, watercolors, drawings and books, Mellon also presented his alma mater funds to build a gallery and library where they can be displayed. The building's cost is estimated at between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000.

The gifts were announced Thursday by Kingman Brewster Jr., president of Yale.

The collection, regarded by the university as the greatest body of British art outside Britain, is composed of 1,000 oil paintings, 3,000 watercolors, prints and drawings and 4,000 rare books.

The oils and watercolors are representative of what is known as the Golden Age of British painting from 1697 to 1851 and include 29 Hogarths, 35 Turners, 66 Constables, and 55 Gainsboroughs.

Mellon, 59, is president of the National Gallery of Art in Washington. His father, Andrew W. Mellon, treasury secretary under three presidents, gave the gallery to the government as a $70,000,000 gift more than 30 years ago.

One Million Beat Smoking Habit

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 1,000,000 persons have overcome the habit of smoking, the health and welfare department said Thursday in releasing a survey on smoking in Canada.

The study also shows that of the estimated 5,000,000 Canadians who still smoke more than 45 per cent have seriously tried to quit.

Health Minister MacEachen says the "results . . . are significant when it is realized at least 300 young Canadians acquire the habit daily."

All-Candidate Meeting Flops

NORTH COWICHAN—The issues in the municipal election here are cloudy, and, if attendance at a Thursday evening meeting is a criterion, public interest is almost nil. An all-candidates meeting drew only 18 people.

Three incumbents and three newcomers are contesting three seats.

All but one were at the meeting and only Tom Burge, one of the challengers, suggested the election was a vote of confidence in the present council.

He said: "The people have to decide if it is time for a change."

Mr. Burge said recreation was being made a big issue but his chief concern was with more important matters like roads, water and sewer services.

IDEAL SITE

He said: "If we are going to have recreational developments they must be sited where they will do most good to the people they are intended to serve."

This was a reference to municipal council plans to build a $300,000 ice arena at Fullers Lake, two miles south of Chemainus on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The plan is held up because its legality is being challenged in the courts.

Coun. Dennis Hogan staked his seat on the progress made by council in the field of recreation. He is chairman of the recreation commission.

He also said: "We have a lot of work to do in providing water and sewer service, without which we don't have a modern community."

Coun. George Whittaker said: "Firstly I believe in spending the ratepayers' dollar to get the last cent of value from it.

TAX LURE

"If we can keep the taxes low we will attract industry and retired people to the district."

Mr. Whittaker said residents should realize it is the presence of major industry which allows North Cowichan to have the low general rate of 10 mills.

He said: "We should keep the rates as low as we can and yet provide the services required."

Mr. Whittaker said he is against the siting of a new municipal hall three miles north of Duncan.

He agreed that as a matter of civic pride it should be moved from the city into the municipality.

However, he urged a site nearer the business and social centre—Duncan.

SECESSION?

He said: "The municipality will still have to do much of its business in Duncan where the banks, post office and lawyers are.

"This re-location of the municipal hall is just what it would take to start a real movement for secession.

"I hope not. All I can see for residents of the south end if they join the city is a big increase in taxation, and they would be ill-advised.

"I'm against ceding this part of the municipality to the city. The answer is complete amalgamation.

"It's what the Albernis did. It's what is going to happen in the Fraser Valley, and it's the modern trend."

Mr. Whittaker added: "I look forward in the long run to the day when the whole of School District 65 will be one magnificent municipality."

Earl English said he would work to stop the bickering which he claims besets the present council.

He said co-operation in council would lead to more efficient administration.

Joseph Haddock, one of the men fighting the recreation bylaw in the courts, made recreation his chief topic.

He said Frank Blanc and himself are fighting for one reason.

They feel council usurped authority by pressing the bylaw in the north end after the whole municipality had previously rejected a composite bylaw by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Haddock said council has plans for a sport complex at Fullers Lake and not just an arena.

He said: "Putting these facilities so far away from the cnetres of population is just beyond me.

"The courts will rule on the legality of the bylaw, but the people must decide whether or not the council's action was moral."

'MASON-DIXON LINE'

He claimed council's action increased the animosity between north and south of the municipality and established a "Mason-Dixon line".

"If I'm elected the council will have to listen to the voice of the people," he said.

Mr. Haddock said council has not asked for public opinion on the siting of a new municipal hall.

"Its arbitrary decision in this matter is typical of the attitude of the present council."

Coun. Gerry Smith was unable to attend.

In the city of Duncan four candidates are running for three seats, incumbents James Saunders, Robert Mason, Homer Alex and newcomer Martin Lukaitis.

There have been no meetings, there appear to be no issues, and the decision is one of personalities.

BOOKLET on Harmac union dispute by Anne Royle of Nanaimo has attracted widespread attention in union circles. The booklet, called "Canadian Challenge," deals with the bid by the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada to take over membership of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers. At present the International union is still official bargaining agent although 95 per cent of the workers have gone over to the Canadian union.

$500 Gift Has Strings Say Kinsmen

DUNCAN — The Kinsmen Club here will spearhead a drive to raise $12,000 for the purchase of a downtown building as a recreation hall.

The club will make a grant of $500 to Teen Town . . . but there are strings attached.

Bob Lewis, Kinsmen president, said Thursday: "We will make the $500 grant but Teen Town must raise $12,000 by the end of the year before proceeding with the project."

Teen Town has an extended option on the former, Frozen Food Centre, Station Street. Purchase price is $17,500 with a $6,700 down payment.

Duncan Kinsmen also stipulate Teen Town and the investigating committee bear in mind they must work toward eventually turning the hall over for joint ownership by the city and North Cowichan council.

Thirdly, the Kinsmen stipulate the building is to be administered by a revived Community Centre Association.

Mr. Lewis said: "We felt we had to lay down some guide lines and hope Teen Town accepts them."

POWER FAILURE COOLS FEW NANAIMO SUPPERS

NANAIMO—Residents here were in the dark for 15 minutes Thursday night.

The clock had just struck five when every light in the city suddenly went out.

As housewives searched for candles, B.C. Hydro technicians located the fault to a jumper at the Pine Street power station.

Said a Hydro spokesman today: "It was just one of those things that can happen at any time." A reserve jumper was brought into operation before too many suppers went cold on the city's dead stoves.

But it wasn't all over for at least one department store. At Simpson Sears a fuse-breaker conked out, filling the fuse room with smoke.

Firemen had to use fans to clear the smoke before the fuse could be repaired and power restored. During the outage, vital services were kept going on their own emergency power supplies.

Shift System Seen If Alberni Votes No

PORT ALBERNI—Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce was asked Thursday to support a $3 million school referendum which will be put before voters Saturday.

School trustee William Beckingham told the chamber that existing schools can't hope to cope with the influx of children each year.

Last year, 770 grade one children entered Alberni schools as opposed to only 257 who left.

He said a shift system will have to be implemented if the referendum fails.

In addition to providing new classrooms, the referendum allows for structural alterations to existing schools on the advice of the fire marshal.

The referendum has been continually criticized during the past two weeks, mainly because a sizeable portion of it is non-shareable.

Higher Fines For Pollution Society Urges

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—A newly formed water pollution control society was told Thursday there should be much higher fines for violations of the provincial Pollution Control Act.

Tom Parkin, general organizer for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said the present fine of $250 is ridiculous.

"Five thousand dollars would be more like it," he said.

Mr. Parking said the $250 fine would not deter large organizations from polluting water resources.

About 100 persons attended the inaugural meeting of the society, formed to make known the concern of residents in this Vancouver Island community, over the possible pollution of Buttle Lake by discharge of effluent from the Western Mines Ltd. operation at the lake.

Arson Ruled Out In School Fire

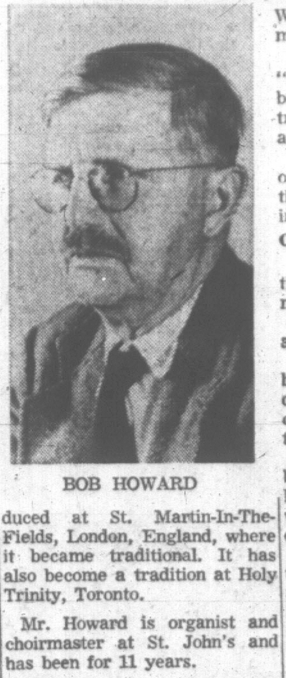
CAMPBELL RIVER — Arson has been ruled out in a recent fire which badly damaged Cedar School here.

School trustees were told the children whose classrooms were destroyed have now moved into the new Central elementary school which opened this week.

Loss in the Cedar fire, including a first-class library, is covered by insurance.

Duncan's Mister Music Devoted to Youngsters

By DON DINGWALL



BOB HOWARD

DUNCAN — Few men at 75 years of age still do a fulltime job and fewer still do a fulltime job and then spend every spare moment devoted to encouraging the young in music.

Such a man is C. A. (Bob) Howard. He is Mister Music in this city.

Founder and director of Duncan Music Club, Bob Howard retired from this post only to let himself be talked into founding the St. John's Players.

In these latter years he has blossomed as a composer in his own right.

He has composed the music and lyrics for several of the St. John's Players' operettas.

SAVED ROYALTIES

Previously he had written the music for two of the Duncan Music Club productions.

He did it to save the club from having to pay royalties to obtain the scores of established shows.

Mr. Howard's working day is put in as the maintenance man at King's Daughters' Hospital.

Wednesday was a typical day for him.

He finished a regular shift at the hospital, went home to supper and by 7:30 was in St. John's church hall rehearsing teenagers for a Christmas pageant.

The pageant is something the restless and tireless Bob Howard decided to present when St. John's Players faded from the scene temporarily this winter.

The pageant was first produced at St. Martin-In-The-Fields, London, England, where it became traditional. It has also become a tradition at Holy Trinity, Toronto.

Mr. Howard is organist and choirmaster at St. John's and has been for 11 years.

Serious choral work is his first love and he was founder and conductor of the Duncan choristers' until the Second World War drained away all the manpower.

Mr. Howard says now: "musical life in Duncan could be improved if people took the trouble to read music and work at singing while they are young.

"We would have more talent on which to draw but it seems there are too many distractions in our easy life."

ONE REGRET

The main regret of his life is that he didn't start writing music earlier.

His musical talents are inborn and self-taught.

And as a choirmaster he can be a hard taskmaster. Hundreds of Duncan adults and children can testify to his ability to bawl them out.

Mrs. Howard says: "He can bawl them out but the children love him because they know he worships the ground they walk on."

Bob Howard has the fiery temperament associated with artistic types. But when he blows up at rehearsals he simmers down just as quickly.

His work with young people is all done for the love of children and his love of music.

He says: "The only thing I demand from them is regular attendance and obedience."

That small repair or renovation job can be done before Xmas.

JOINT FRENCH, SOVIET DECLARATION

Gravity of Viet Nam War Blamed on U.S.

PARIS (AP)—France and the Soviet Union declared today the war in Viet Nam endangers that country's neighbors and is "the principal obstacle to the relaxation of international tensions" and "lasting peaceful relations among numerous countries."

In a joint declaration released six hours after Soviet Premier Kosygin flew home after a nine-day state visit, the two governments said they deplored the Viet Nam war as "a situation whose gravity is the result of external intervention."

Although the source of the intervention was not identified, previous statements left no doubt the United States was meant. Kosygin said repeatedly during his visit that the U.S. is guilty of aggression in Viet Nam.

The war occupied a large part of the conversations between Kosygin and French President de Gaulle, and the joint declaration noted the two governments would continue "to exchange their views on this question."

It said both nations are firm in their attachment to the principles of the UN charter and "were fully resolved" to use all of the UN's possibilities to spare present and future generations "from the calamities of atomic war."

They described nuclear problems as being of "capital importance"—not only the non-dissemination of atomic arms but also the banning of their manufacture and the destruction of existing stockpiles.

The declaration said the two leaders also:

—"Discussed the question of convening a future pan-European conference to examine the problems of European security and continent-wide co-operation." But no time was suggested for such a meeting.

—"Underscored the importance their governments attach to the problems of aid for economic progress to the peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America."

REFLECTS THINKING

The declaration reflected de Gaulle's frequently stated interest in pursuing detente, or relaxation of tensions, between the eastern and western blocks. The statement said:

"In the opinion of the two parties it (detente) must result in the development of relations in all fields and among all European countries in the image of the co-operation being organized and developed between France and the Soviet Union."

Such a transformation of European relations, the declaration said, "could progressively create favorable conditions for a discussion of the great problems facing Europe and could finally lead to an understanding on their solution."

About two-thirds of the 3,000-word declaration communique was devoted to strictly French-Soviet relations and extension of co-operation between Paris and Moscow.

Technical, scientific and economic agreements have been recently concluded between the two countries, the declaration noted, and French and Soviet leaders discussed plans for long-term co-operation in these areas.

The two leaders also "noted with satisfaction" the signing last month of an agreement setting up a "hot-line" teletype between the Kremlin and de Gaulle's Elysee Palace.

Wide-Ranging 'Remedies Code'

Manitoba Plans Safeguards On Credit, Help for Victims

By ALLEN SACKMANN

WINNIPEG (CP)—An avenue to relief for the citizen tangled in the web of modern living was proposed Thursday in a wide-ranging remedies code introduced to the Manitoba legislature in a government white paper.

The precedent - setting document, welcomed by government and opposition members, sets out planned safeguards for persons with a complaint against government administration and for individuals using credit, provides compensation to victims of crime and free legal aid to indigents.

Provincial Secretary Stewart McLean, who introduced the paper during throne speech debate, said: "With the increasing pace and complexity of commercial and social relationships, existing safeguards of the private person are not adequate to protect him in many of the situations in which he is increasingly involved."

Mr. McLean proposed that the white paper be referred to a committee for consideration and also with regard to legislation that might arise from it during the current session. Legislation is being drafted at the present time, he said.

The code apparently will break new ground for Canadian provinces in compensation to crime victims and procedures to protest government administration.

Appointment of a legislative commissioner for administration is thought to be in answer to often - repeated opposition pleas for an ombudsman, although the commissioner's powers are restricted.

DEFINES DUTIES

His duties are defined as being "concerned with faults in administration" and "an additional instrument" for members of the legislature to protect the citizenry.

An independent officer to be appointed by the Crown and an act of the legislature would be required to dismiss him.

Complaining citizens would take their case to their MLA who, if it was warranted, would pass it on.

The commissioner could examine the complaint if it did not fall within the jurisdiction of the courts or deal with actions or decisions of Crown agencies, commissions, boards and corporations.

He would not be permitted to criticize government policy or examine decisions of government discretionary powers unless it appeared to have been affected by a fault in administration.

In the course of an investigation, the commissioner could order production of documents with the exception of cabinet or cabinet committee papers.

RETAINS RIGHT

"The government will always retain the right to refuse the production of documents," the paper said in a restriction criticized outside the house by both Liberal Leader Gil Molgat and NDP Leader Russ Paulley.

If the commissioner finds the complaint is justified, he reports it to the minister of the offending department. If no action is taken, his only recourse is to report this in an annual report to the legislature.

Explaining the compensation for crime victims section, Mr. McLean said increasing crimes of violence emphasize the need for relief.

Plans are to give aid to persons injured while during execution of a crime, when an arrest is being made or attempted and while attempting to prevent an offence.

Adjudication of claims would be handled by a special board—with no recourse to appeal—which would not consider cases involving less than $150. Before submitting a claim, the victim would have to fail at attempting to obtain compensation from all other sources.

PROPOSE SAFEGUARDS

Broader safeguards and assistance are proposed in the field of consumer credit and legal aid to indigents.

Mr. McLean said it is important, in the field of consumer credit, to put the consumer and credit grantor on the same basis and protect unwary consumers against unscrupulous dealers. He said the principle will be, "Let the seller exercise caution. . . ."

Provincial government licensing will be expanded to cover several categories of credit grantors and provisions will be made to require, among other things, full disclosure of the cost of borrowing. A central registry of transactions will be established and a consumer protection bureau will be set up.

Legal assistance to indigents will be expanded to cover criminal, civil, bankruptcy and divorce cases. Mr. McLean said divorce is no longer considered a "legal luxury" and solicitors will be appointed to both prosecute and defend in divorce proceedings.

Accident Fees Lowest On Continent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers' fees for settling car accident claims in British Columbia are among the lowest in North America, the royal commission on automobile insurance was told Wednesday.

Allen M. Linden, professor of law at Osgoode Hall in Toronto, told the commission the B.C. rates are equal to one-tenth of the damages awarded, compared with an average of one-third in the United States.

He said the B.C. system of car insurance and the law as applied to victims of traffic accidents is "by and large the best I know of."

Prof. Linden was a witness called by the All Canada Insurance Federation.

He said U.S. lawyers in traffic cases usually work on the basis of a percentage of damages recovered, or the so-called contingency fee basis, which is not legal in B.C.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, DEC. 9, 1966—PAGE 23

Arthur Mayse

After testing the air and looking at Thursday morning's sky, I took off for town with the intention of replacing my 15-year-old tire chains.

One service station didn't stock chains, another was out of them, so I headed for our larger downtown marts.

The clerk who waited on me, or rather permitted me to attract his attention after a lengthy stalk, listened indulgently.

Then, on a rising inflection, he said, "Tire chains?"

I confirmed the request. The lordly fellow said, "Oh, no. We haven't any tire chains. Are you expecting a hard winter?" With a half-smile at his own wit, he added, "You might try so-and-so's."

Somewhat whipped down, I trekked to so-and-so's, which sold chains, but was reduced to the smallest sizes. Next stop, same story.

At that point I took to the telephone. Three calls brought only polite negatives, although one party offered to order me a set and another suggested snow-tires. On the fourth — where I should have put in at the beginning — I scored.

All this cost me a fair amount of time, and didn't improve my temper. I'm still sufficiently ruffled, in fact, to hope that first salesman finds himself spinning unshod wheels on one of our nastier hills at its iciest.

Which brings to mind a plaint uttered by countless newcomers to Victoria from less lovely but brisker cities: "What on earth keeps so many merchants in this town from re-stocking when they run out of something?"

★

A note to various hot-gospeleering opponents of fluoridation:

Will you please, for the sake of an already overflowing wastebasket, quit bombarding me with what Vancouver columnist Eric Nicol chose to write against the tooth-saving treatment of drinking water.

Mr. Nicol, though entitled to his views, is neither a doctor nor a medical researcher. As an opinion-writer, he has expressed his opinion.

I have my opinion too, and have stated it here before. In my view, based on the pronouncements of authorities I prefer to believe, fluoridation can't come too soon.

Further, despite your horror-pictures of children allegedly turned into dental misfits by overdoses of the enamel and bone-toughening agent, I remain unimpressed. Radium, misused, can also produce grim results. Would you ban the medical use of radium and other tamed tigers of modern medicine?

And how about iodized salt? That's what I think . . . and, brethren and sistren, your propaganda-storm of unsigned missives will hereafter be ignored.

★

I could tell you about the three Christmas parties being planned by Canadian Forces Base and the Fleet School at Esquimalt for handicapped, retarded and underprivileged kids . . .

Or about the wonderful midget game sanctuary maintained by a local specialist behind his business-section office for a covey of quail and a raccoon-about-town who lives on pigeons . . .

Or about the bright-eyed moppet named Bernadette who watched a sweep scouring our home chimney, and asked if we were getting it cleaned out for Santa Claus . . .

But instead, I bid you listen to one of the sounds that pace every newsman's desk hours.

This is the intermittent, metallic whine and chatter of the shortwave radio on its stand back of the city desk.

Day and night, it looses into our newsroom big, robust police voices querying and replying, relaying information and orders about illegal parkings, suburban disturbances, suspected prowlers and traffic crackups.

The other day, just as dark was falling, the voice of the law boomed loud and clear from a clatter of static.

Holdup? Car crash? Uh-uh!

What we got, lustily carolled in a rugged baritone, was "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

The unknown harbinger in blue made it through "Peace on earth, good will to men," before he vanished from the airwaves to administer peace on earth and—we may hope—mercy mild.

But not, I trust, to write some guy a ticket.

DWARFED BY 200-FEET LONG crane boom, workmen (arrowed) today began erection of the mammoth floating hoist at Esquimalt. The Marine Boss, one of the largest floating cranes in existence, will be used by Victoria Machinery Depot to construct a $9-million oil rig for use off the west coast of B.C. The crane, towed here from San Francisco, is capable of lifting 500 tons at a time. Owned by Murphy Pacific Marine Salvage Co., of California, it will be in use here about a month, lifting 250-ton section to the top of the rig which, when completed, will be as tall as a 30-storey building.

Apathy Shocks Acting Mayor; Urges Big Vote

'Strong Mandate' Vital to Winner

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Shocked by the poor turnout at Thursday night's all-candidate rally, Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott today made a last-minute plea for a big turnout of voters in Saturday's elections.

"The city is entering one of the most crucial periods in its history," he said. "It is of vital importance that our next mayor, whoever he may be, receive a strong mandate from the people.

"I fully realize the difficulties facing the voters in this year's mayoralty race. The choice is not easy. But it will be made tomorrow whether 100 per cent of the eligible voters turn out or whether only 30 per cent turn out

"I urge all Victoria voters to go to the polls Saturday and cast their ballot for the people of their choice so that whoever is elected will know he has the confidence of the people."

The acting mayor said he was greatly dismayed at the lack of interest shown in the all-candidates meeting. (See Page 17.)

Voters Missed Opportunity

"It was the one opportunity the people had of seeing, hearing and meeting the men who will represent their interests next year," he said. "I sincerely hope that tomorrow will tell a different story and that the voters will be en masse to exercise their democratic right."

Acting Mayor Parrott's plea may still fall on apathetic ears.

Advance polls in the city report only a sprinkling of voters who will be absent from the city on Saturday.

Returning officer Morran Waller said a few more absentee ballots had been cast during the past three days than were cast in advance of the last mayoralty election.

"The vote is running slightly ahead of last year," Mr. Waller said. "But it's so slight that it could hardly be called a gain."

Mr. Waller made the statement this morning with a full day of advance polling time left.

Only voters who signed an affidavit stating they would be out of the city on election day were permitted to vote in advance.

Polling Places Close at 8

Polls for the main vote open Saturday at 8 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. with the Victoria Ballroom, 1600 Government, the only polling station in the city.

The 28,376 voters in Saanich have 13 polling stations.

They are: Cloverdale School; Frank Hobbs School; Glanford School; Gordon Head Elementary School; Lansdowne Junior High School; Seaview Plaza; St. Josephs' Parish Hall; Mount View High School; Prospect Lake Community Hall; Royal Oak Secondary School; St. Luke's Hall; St. Martin's in the Field Hall; and Tillicum School.

Returning officer Gordon Hayward reported the turnout at the advance poll is "very light."

Voting place in Esquimalt is the municipal hall at 1229 Esquimalt Road.

Residents in the View Royal panhandle, voting on the proposed amalgamation with Esquimalt, cast ballots at Unit 15 of the Craigflower Motel, 101 Craigflower Road.

Oak Bay voters cast ballots at the municipal hall, 2167 Oak Bay Avenue. In addition to electing three councillors, voters will also decide whether or not they want fluoridation of the water supply.

Winner Known Close to Midnight

Polling stations in Central Saanich are at the Brentwood Women's Institute Hall, the municipal hall and the Farmer's Institute Hall on Keating Cross Road.

Sidney voters cast ballots at the municipal hall while North Saanich residents vote at the parish hall, 1319 Mills Road.

Unless there is a runaway victory for one of the Victoria mayoralty candidates it is expected to be close to midnight before the name of the new mayor emerges.

With a staff of 32 ballot box clerks plus 11 relief clerks to assist, Mr. Waller and his assistant returning officer George Merz anticipate little difficulty in getting final results out after the polls close.

"Voters can make it a lot easier for us if they remember a few simple rules," said Mr. Waller.

"One cardinal rule is that only the pencil provided in the voting booth can be used to mark a ballot. The person using his own pen or pencil automatically destroys his vote.

"Voters must — and there are no two ways about it — they must use the pencil provided."

Mr. Waller also warned that a ballot is rendered useless when voters insist on voting for more candidates than there are seats vacant.

"For example, there are four vacancies for two-year terms as aldermen," Mr. Waller said. "That means you can only vote for four candidates. If you vote for five or more the ballot is no good and the vote wasted."

The same applies for the one-year aldermanic term being sought by two candidates.

"And," he added, "would you please stress that a tick is not the proper way to mark a ballot. It must be a cross. Ballots marked with a tick are spoiled."

UNITED FRONT BARGAINING APPROVED

The Labor Relations Board has approved joint certification of unions at each of the west coast's big three shipyards.

The move, affecting Victoria Machinery Depot, Yarrows and Burrard Dry Dock, was announced today.

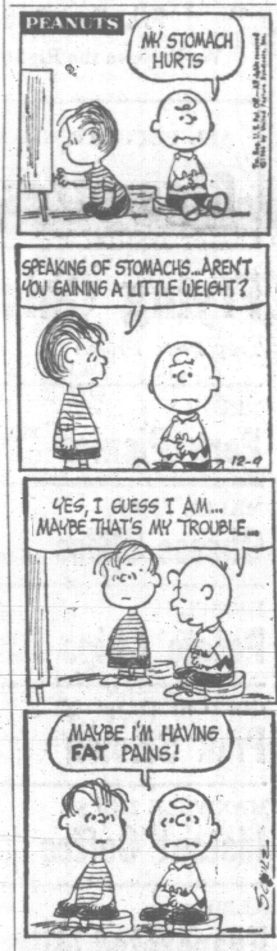
It followed agreement among all unions to go along with the joint certification moves made earlier by the majority of the unions.

Under the change, each union maintains its identity for grievances and jurisdiction but bargaining comes under a common united front.

Instead of 36 individual union certifications at the three shipyards, there will be one certification for all unions at each company.

HADFIELD GUESS: 525

Longest Death List Ever Predicted for Year's End



PEANUTS
MY STOMACH HURTS
SPEAKING OF STOMACHS...AREN'T YOU GAINING A LITTLE WEIGHT?
YES, I GUESS I AM... MAYBE THAT'S MY TROUBLE...
MAYBE I'M HAVING FAT PAINS!
12-9

Eight British Columbians died in traffic mishaps during Safe-Driving Week which ended at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday and motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield wasn't heartened.

"Obviously this is an improvement from the 11 last year and it may be an indication of a better December monthly total too," he said in an interview.

"But I still think it's inevitable we'll go beyond the record of 500 fatalities set last year and I'll bet the drivers end up with a total of not less than 525 dead by this Dec. 31."

Mr. Hadfield said originally he had thought that between 550 and 600 persons would be killed during 1966 on the province's roads.

At this time last year, there had been 444 fatalities compared with this year's cumulative total of 481.

Grim as his prediction that 36 more people will die in the province before the Christmas rush is over, it was less sanguine than the actual toll chalked up last year.

A total of 67 persons were sent to their graves by traffic accidents during the month of December alone in 1965. In both 1964 and 1963, the December fatalities numbered 31.

NAMED B.C. engineer of the year, Victoria consultant S. J. Cunliffe today was given professional engineer's association award at Vancouver, B.C. This Meal Cost Pair $50 Each

Two party goers who stole Chinese food from a delivery van were fined $50 each in central court today.

Jerry Joseph Yalloway of 2183 Epworth and Edward Hawryluk of 1747 Stanley, both 21, pleaded guilty to theft of goods worth less than $50.

They admitted they had been drinking at a party Nov. 27 when a Don Mee delivery van parked nearby to make a delivery. They took two orders worth $7.85 from the van.

"Not the least bit funny," said Magistrate Ostler in passing sentence.

The accused agreed they "would be the first to yell" if someone came into the store where they both work and stole something.

Jubilee Workers Get 11%

Royal Jubilee Hospital workers have accepted an 11 per cent wage boost offer from management.

Ald. Robert Baird, chairman of the hospital's personnel committee, said today the first five per cent would be retroactive to Oct. 1 with a further six per cent on Jan. 1, 1967.

Other benefits to be received by the Hospital Employees Association include four weeks annual vacation after 10 years service.

There is a proviso that the four weeks cannot be taken consecutively.

During negotiations, Brian Waddingham represented the association with laywer E. E. Pearlman representing the board.

BANK OF B.C.

Bennett Won't Invest

Premier Bennett has taken one of his famous second looks at his plans to invest personally in the Bank of B.C. — and decided against it.

Monday he told reporters that he and his family would invest a "substantial" sum in the new bank's shares to show everyone his confidence in it and he urged all citizens to do the same.

Thursday he said he will not make any personal investments after all because as finance minister he is not an ordinary citizen.

"The only law on the subject would permit him to buy shares but it's a question of how delicately a person wants to regard his position," Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

He pointed out Mr. Bennett has shown "abundant caution" in the past to avoid any possible suggestion of a conflict of interest between his private and public life.

Mr. Bennett, explaining his switch, said personally owning some of the bank's shares "could prevent me from doing business with the new bank in my capacity as finance minister.

"I can be of much greater service to the bank by being unfettered in doing provincial business with them than I could possibly be as a shareholder in the new bank."

But, he added, he still urges other citizens to buy shares in the bank.

TEMPERATURES SEEN RISING FOR WEEKEND

It's not bright.

But the weekend weather is at least brighter than was expected.

A storm front to the west is bringing in warmer air which will boost Victoria temperatures above the freezing point.

Although the themometer dropped to 30— degrees overnight, it shouldn't go below 37 tonight.

And daytime temperatures will be around 45 Saturday.

Intermittent rain showers will give way Saturday to cloudy, but probably dry, weather.

Winds tonight will be southeast 25 to 35.

VARIOUS NATIONALITIES are represented among Victoria school choirs participating in Christmas Carol Festival at Metropolitan United Church tonight at 8. Front (left to right) are Randi Bergum, 12, Norway; Miss C. Broadhurst, teacher, England; Beverley Wong, 11, China. Rear: Jeminah Ram, 12, East India; Susan Bacon, 13, France; Darlene Lynch, 12, Canada. Festival is sponsored by Victoria Lions Club.

Rosalie Wouldn't Surrender Until Every Queen Had Crown

Mrs. W. H. DeCosta, affectionately known to Victoria's millinery circles as Rosalie, died from cancer in Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday.

From her little shop on Blanshard Street, Rosalie created hats for some of Victoria's best-dressed women and taught others to design hats for themselves. She also gave time each week to teaching hat-designing at the Silver Threads Centre on Centennial Square.

●

When told she would have to undergo an operation for cancer, Mrs. DeCosta was busy producing hats for the Miss Victoria contestants. She carried on until all the hats were completed and she had seen the contestants on the stage for the first night.

Mrs. DeCosta so endeared herself to the young contestants that, after she was admitted to hospital, they arrived en masse with armloads of flowers.

Friends said it was typical of Rosalie that she continued designing and making hats on her hospital bed. She made them, not only for customers, but for nurses and fellow patients.

MRS. DeCOSTA
. . . Rosalie

With the help of her many friends, she produced millinery styles for a number of fashion shows in aid of the B.C. Cancer Fund, and over a period of two years, raised more than $2,000.

"Rosalie continued making beautiful hats until she could no longer see clearly or coordinate the movements of her hands," a friend said.

"It was the work she loved best."

●

Mrs. DeCosta, who lived at 2032 Neil Street, is survived by her husband, Wilfred; two sons, Glenson, Toronto, and John, Miami; three grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. C. Coull, Cobble Hill; and three brothers, Leonard Finch, Toronto; Albert Finch, Miami, and William Finch, Toronto.

Rev. J. A. Roberts will conduct funeral services in McCall Brothers chapel Saturday at 3:30 p.m., followed by cremation. Flowers are declined but donations may be sent to the B.C. Cancer Fund, 1900 Fort Street.

Holiday Tea and Sale At Retarded Centre

A new venture proved to be a "best-seller," Wednesday afternoon, when the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded held a Christmas tea and sale.

For the first time, adult program attenders at the Elford Occupational Centre offered unique candle-holders and planters for sale — which they had hand-fashioned from ordinary pieces of driftwood. Gleaming highly-polished pieces of wood held shiny, split-leaf plants, a perfect gift for the "green thumb" at Christmas.

HOURS OF WORK

The skillful fingers of the attenders had polished long, slender pieces of driftwood to a dull satiny sheen and set candles into them for an attractive table centrepiece or decor accessory.

One particularly exquisite holder was fashioned with candles at one end, and a life-like, delicately tinted and carved figure of a seagull poised for flight at the other. The sum realized from the sale was $655.59.

The crowds of guests who attended couldn't resist buying the items offered on the "jewelry tree," which featured gift ideas ranging from pendants and earrings to key chains — wonderful "stocking-stuffers."

WIDE VARIETY

The novelty booth was doing a roaring business as the attenders sold such pretty and yet practical items as nylon net scrubbers and foam-padded hangers. A wide variety of ceramics was also featured.

More than one family's meal was bought at the home baking stall where full dinners of macaroni and cheese with trimmings were offered. And many a Victoria family will be eating one of the rich fruit-filled Christmas cakes or holiday candies which were sold. Candies, cakes and cookies of all description, designed to tickle even the most reluctant appetite could be found at this stall.

There were jars, jars and more jars of all sorts of preserves offered too, made by attenders.

The lure of hand-crafted prizes at the Lucky Seven table proved too irresistible for the gamblers in the crowd, and the raffles of a doll-based lamp and hand-knitted mohair rabbit proved just as tempting.

DISPLAY OF RUGS

The focal point of the sale was the huge display of rugs — all shapes, sizes and colors — made by the attenders. Guests were quick to take out orders for one of these unique floor-covers.

Mrs. F. Draden, Mrs. W. Birtwistle and Mrs. R. Stringer convened the sale and working with the attenders at the various booths were the Victoria Jaycee-Ettes and volunteer workers of the adult program at the centre.

The tea area was doing a roaring business too, as guests gathered for a moment of relaxation and conversation before continuing their shopping. Attenders served a seemingly endless supply of dainty and delicious sandwiches and cakes throughout the afternoon. Mrs. Birtwistle supervised the tea arrangements, and the centre's executive director, Mrs. W. Clark, handled the tickets.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Holiday Meal-Toppers Save Time and Work

By Penny Saver

By now, every woman is probably caught up in a whirl of shopping, packaging, hiding gifts from eager "peepers" and baking holiday cakes, cookies and goodies by the tableful. In short, she is probably so tired by the time the dinner hour rolls around that she really hasn't the energy to think of something special to serve her hungry family. Above all, she has been working with baking goods for so long that she more than likely couldn't stand the thought of baking something else for dessert.

I found a wonderful boon for this woman. It's a simple way to make pies. Not only can she meet the demands of her hungry family at dinner time, but this is the perfect thing for all those special pies and tarts she's planning for the festive season. This item is a package of ready-made pie dough. There's no mixing, nothing to add—all you have to do is roll it out.

shells. Price is 27 cents. This pastry is bound to save you hours

The one-pound package of fresh pie pastry makes three pie of work, especially now when those hours are so precious.

A treat that everyone in your household will really go for is a delicious banana cream pie. Sound like a lot of work? Not with the frozen pies that sell in this store for 49 cents. Other cream delights are chocolate and coconut pies. Store these in your freezer, and defrost as you need them. Take them out of the freezer just as you start dinner, and they'll be ready to serve by the time you've finished.

That old-time favorite, ice cream, comes dressed in holiday flavors. Three pints of rich, creamy ice cream are full of holiday fruit to tease the palate. Price is 75 cents.

For colorful and tasty desserts, another flavor is in squares of three different colors. This "checkerboard" meal—topper is in shades of red, green and peppermint—the perfect seasonal dessert. This flavor sells by the three-pint box for 79 cents.

Your family will love these desserts. Give Penny a call at 382-3131 if you want to know where she shopped.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. Some months ago you told us how to figure out a person's normal calorie intake. Could you please do me, and probably a lot of other readers a favor, and print that information again?

Lowman

A. I think you are referring to how many calories you require to maintain your ideal weight. Simply multiply your weight by 15. For instance if you weigh 130 pounds you body will require 1950 calories a day. That many are needed just to maintain that weight. If you want to lose weight, you will have to cut the calorie intake. If you cut from 1950 to 1200, you will lose between one-and-a-half and two pounds a week.

Q. I am not overweight; five feet, four inches and weigh 120 pounds. My problem is a large abdomen. Will daily exercising help even if my calorie intake is very high? I take a lot of high calorie liquids.

A. If you were overweight, you would have to count calories too. The only way to slim the abdomen since you are not overweight is by doing special exercises regularly. You can do this. You did not say why you drink a lot of high calorie liquids. If you continue doing so, I would think your weight would increase. If any of my readers would like to have my tested exercises for the abdomen send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Q. My measurements are: Bust 36, waist 25 and hips 40 inches. Is there any way I can lose three inches from my hips by Christmas? I can diet and lose weight, but my hips remain the same.

A. You should have started a little earlier. If you diet and lose weight, you surely will lose some from your hips since you will lose all over. However, special hip slimming exercises will speed the loss in that measurement and redistribute your weight more attractively. You can make a little improvement between now and Christmas.

Q. I am 16 years old and have auburn hair and brown eyes. My skin is very fair, with a few freckles on my nose. I am planning for my first formal. I am going to make it myself. What colors do you think I should consider? I am five feet tall and weigh 103 pounds.

A. Green is one of your most flattering colors, not a dead green but an "alive" green. Blues, whites and creams are also good.

BAZAAR REALIZES $570

Yellow and mauve chrysanthemums, greenery and holly gave color to the K of P. Hall recently when the Centennial Chapter, No. 87, Order of the Eastern Star, held its annual bazaar. Also adding to the scene were the dainty Christmas centrepieces that decorated individual tables.

Mrs. J. Fletcher, worthy grand matron of British Columbia, opened the event. Proceeds of approximately $570 were realized.

Guests were greeted by worthy matron Mrs. P. Fediw and general convener was Miss Joan Stancombe.

Presiding at the head table were worthy matrons of other chapters in the area. They were Mrs. L. Chaney, Mrs. M. Davies, Mrs. M. Hindle, Mrs. D. McLaughlin and Mrs. C. DeYaeger. Similarly honored were grand officer, Mrs. J. Lunson, and past matron, Mrs. J. Kettles.

TEA CONVENER

Mrs. L. Marshall was in charge of tea arrangements. Assisting her were Mrs. M. Whiteside, Mrs. D. Guy, Mrs. M. Buxton, Mrs. V. Werthner, Mrs. R. Owens, Mrs. D. Lewis, Mrs. A. McLeod, Mrs. R. Gibson, Mrs. M. Brown and Mrs. I. Williamson.

Stall conveners were: Home baking, Mrs. D. Perrins, Mrs. E. Stancombe and Mrs. M. Menkes; sewing, Mrs. D. Leason, Mrs. M. Husband and Mrs. M. Emery; $1 and under, Mrs. M. Hamilton, Mrs. E. Keown and Mrs. M. Lee; candy, Mrs. M. Price, Mrs. M. Bridgeman and Mrs. J. Kettles; white elephants, Mrs. M. Ellis and Mrs. E. Robertson; penny raffle, Mrs. E. Pickering, Mrs. M. Coombs and Mrs. A. Poole; cards, Mrs. W. Wicks.

Bingo games were arranged by P. Fediw, W. Pace and W. Wicks. In charge of contests were Mrs. J. Irwin, Mrs. E. Buckingham, Mrs. M. Perkin and Mrs. A. Kerridge. Treasurers were Mrs. H. Douglas, Mrs. J. Graham and Mrs. C. Butler.

B.C. Native Daughters Mark Official Visit

Donations of gaily wrapped gifts to be presented to the Canadian Mental Health Association were collected at the meeting of Victoria Post No. 3, Native Daughters of British Columbia, Thursday evening in The Inn. It was also voted to send a donation to the Christmas Tuberculosis Seals Committee.

Chief factor Miss Marjorie Gilles presided at the meeting and introduced grand factor Miss Jean Lorimer and grand secretary Mrs. J. Fouracre who were making their official visit, and presented them with gifts. They had been entertained at dinner in the Dominion Hotel prior to the meeting.

Plans were discussed for a luncheon to be held in February at The Inn.

A social hour followed the meeting. Gifts were exchanged, and in charge of the tea was Mrs. J. Rawlinson, assisted by Mrs. E. Corbett, Mrs. R. Creech and Mrs. B. Brown.

Heirloom Jewelry Chosen As the Bride's Talisman

An opal and rhinestone pendant and matching earrings was the only jewelry worn by Harriet Isabella Owens when she became the bride of Willard Rudolph Honeycutt, Usk, Wash. The heirloom jewelry accented her exquisite petal pink gown of satin. The floor-length gown was highlighted by a bodice of lace and sequins. A rosette headpiece in the same delicate pink shade held her shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mrs. Isabella Owens, Alexander, Man., and the late Harry R. Owens, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Honeycutt of Harrison, Arkansas.

Oak Bay United Church was decorated with arrangements of white chrysanthemums for the ceremony. Organist W. R. Kroeger played "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven," and accompanied soloist Alan Husband who sang "O Promise Me" while the couple signed the register. Const. Robert E. Owens gave his sister in marriage.

Miss Margaret Milligan, Yosemite, Calif., was maid of honor. She chose a floor-length gown of pale blue taffeta. A matching bow held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Lynda Owens, flower girl for her aunt, was dressed similarly to the maid of honor. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

Keith Honeycutt was best man for his brother.

A vase of pink rosebuds topped the three-tier wedding cake at the reception following in the Transit Road home of Mrs. B. Sharpe. The cake was flanked with pink tulle and pink candles in silver candelabra. Arthur E. Hensley proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For travelling on honeymoon to Washington, the new Mrs. Honeycutt chose a double-knit suit in pumpkin and silver grey tones, complemeneted by brown accessories and a corsage of yellow garnet roses. The couple will make their home in Usk, Wash.

Of Personal Interest

TO THE MAINLAND

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will cross to Vancouver, Saturday, where he will be attending a luncheon in the social suite of the University of British Columbia Faculty Club. Following the luncheon, His Honor will act as chairman of the Rhodes Scholarship Selection Committee.

Mark Anniversary

Gifts of silver were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Charles Eveleigh, Saturday evening, when they, their daughter Diane and Miss Mary Storey held a party to mark the couple's 25th wedding anniversary. Focal point of the refreshment table was a large anniversary cake, decorated with yellow rose buds. There were 14 guests attending.

Taxi Service

A "London cab" and driver transported guests from the parking area to the Towner Park Road home of Brig. and Mrs. F. M. Cabeldu when their son, Mr. John Cabeldu and Mr. Clive Piercy entertained at a cocktail party Saturday evening. The unique invitations sent to the 200 guests attending were printed with a cartoon map route to the party. During the evening, guests enjoyed a smorgasbord dinner and dancing.

Fete Miss Wilcox

White carnations en corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Gwen Wilcox when she was entertained at a shower by Mrs. Tom Smith in her Pandora Avenue home. The honor guest's mother, Mrs. D. Reid, received pink carnations. A decorated box contained the gifts presented by Mrs. D. Minks, Mrs. W. Cane, Mrs. M. Fairbairn, Mrs. D. McLean, Mrs. I. Armstrong, the Misses Gail Wilcox, the bride's twin sister and Cheryl and Christine Duyvejonck.

Attend Wedding

Guests travelling to Victoria to attend the recent wedding of Miss Harriet Owens and Mr. Willard Honeycutt included Mr. and Mrs. K. Honeycutt and sons, all of Mossy Bank, Wash.; Mrs. A. Leitch, Brandon, Man.; Mrs. I. Owens, Alexander, Man.; Const. and Mrs. R. E. Owens, Lynda and Gary, and Mr. and Mrs. B. Jordan of Richmond; Mrs. J. Tivy and Debbie of Vancouver, and Miss Margaret Milligan, California.

Returns Home

Miss Susan Humphries left Victoria by plane Thursday morning for her home in Calgary. A fourth-year residence student of the University of Victoria, Miss Humphries will spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Humphries, in the prairie city. She will return to Victoria early in January.

Welcome From Santa

"Santa Claus" will be on hand to greet the members of Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club and their friends when they attend the club's annual Paddy Lanigan eggnog party Saturday evening in the clubhouse. Cocktails will be served from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. and dancing to Irving Lozier's Orchestra will follow.

OPENED BY RECTOR

Church Bazaar at Ganges

Archdeacon R. B. Horsefield, rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Ganges, officially opened the Christmas bazaar of the Saltspring Island Anglican Women's Auxiliary recently held in St. George's parish hall.

The sum of $325 was realized at the affair. President and general convener Mrs. G. Laundry welcomed the guests.

Guests' tables were bright with colorful arrangements of cedar boughs and cones and Christmas baubles. Mrs. J. L. Horrocks was in charge of the tea, assisted by Mrs. Stuart Bannister and Mrs. Walter Norton. Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. H. T. Minchin, Mrs. H. Ashby and Mrs. J. Barker were in charge of the serviteurs.

Managing the various stalls were: Christmas gifts, Mrs. G. H. Holmes, Mrs. W. H. Saunders, Mrs. R. T. Cook and Mrs. A. D. Perry; Christmas tree, Mrs. E. N. Harbin and Mrs. Anne Montgomery; needlework, Mrs. A. W. Barber and Mrs. V. L. Jackson; home baking, Mrs. Edward Parsons and Mrs. S. A. Thompson; delicatessen, Mrs. E. H. Gear and members of the evening WA; plants and holly, Mrs. Jesse Byron and Mrs. T. E. Harcus; garden produce, Mrs. Gordon Ruckle and Miss Gwen Ruckle.

Handling tea tickets were Mrs. Harold Price and Mrs. W. Y. Stewart.

Willows School Fair

Approximately $1,200 was realized, recently, when Willows School Parent-Teacher Association held a fall carnival in the school. Opening the successful event was Mrs. T. N. Curteis, and general convener was Mrs. R. A. Phillips.

In charge of the various stalls that were featured were: Christmas gifts, Mrs. M. W. Davidson; home baking, Mrs. W. J. Williams; sewing and jewelry, Mrs. J. M. Jamieson; toys, Mrs. W. F. McWilliams; books and records, Mrs. R. A. Fatt; groceries, Mrs. P. Boland; candy, Mrs. T. E. Mitton; plants, Mrs. F. Biscoe; and white elephant, Mrs. F. Belcher.

A major attraction for many guests were the games of skill, operated by R. A. Phillips. Mrs. L. Carlow and Mrs. J. Kirkham managed a cakewalk, and Mrs. S Forbes supervised the fishpond.

In charge of the baby-sitting service was Mrs. E. Manson, and Miss Gail Brittain supervised the checkroom. Handling the game tickets were Mrs. D. A. Smith and Mrs. J. Flatman. Door prizes were managed by Mrs. B. Salmon, Mrs. E. Williams, Mrs. M. Sommers, Mrs. H. E. Alder, Mrs. M. L. Fallis, and Mrs. D. Harvey-Smith.

Colorful Decorations Add Zest to Bazaar

Scarlet-berried holly, wine-red hydrangeas and a fir tree added color and warmth to the parish hall of St. David's Church-by-the-Sea, Saturday, for the church's annual bazaar which netted proceeds in excess of $425.

Guests were welcomed by Rev. H. Gordon Walker and Mr. Walker. After being introduced by Women's Guild president Mrs. K. M. Lewis, Mrs. Leslie Wallwork officiated at the opening.

Mrs. J. M. B. Nicoll was in charge of afternoon tea arrangements, being assisted by Mrs. T. Anderson, Mrs. W. T. Kebie, Mrs. P. C. Seddicum, Miss Kathleen Cullum, Mrs. W. Inkman and Mrs. J. Kidson. Tea tickets were sold by Mrs. P. W. Williams.

The Woman's Auxiliary had a candy stall which was convened by Mrs. Fred Tanner while Mrs. Alex Grieves sold Christmas cards, which she had made herself, proceeds being earmarked for the Girl Guide company she heads. Mrs. E. Mackinrot was in charge of a contest.

Stall conveners were: Home cooking, Mrs. H. Walker, Mrs. H. Dawson and Mrs. J. Day; stall of needlework, gifts and novelties, Mrs. A. L. Hays, Mrs. E. Keddie, Miss Nancy Lee and Mrs. Neville Life; Lucky Dip and children's novelties, Mrs. John McAlpine and Miss Pamela Glover; superfluities and books, Mrs. F. Mutrie, Mrs. W. Ronald, Mrs. C. M. Fevang and Mrs. R. O. Udall.

ISSUE WARNING

TORONTO (CP) — Four medical specialists warned Wednesday there is no guarantee that women will not suffer side effects in taking birth-control pills or estrogen hormones.

Dr. Samuel Norris, one of a panel of four doctors speaking to the Mount Sinai Hospital women's auxiliary, said that taking any drug is a calculated risk.

Dr. A. J. L. Solway, a heart specialist, admitted he prescribed estrogen but "only when requested by a patient." He threw doubt on a popular belief that estrogen could produce youthfulness in women.

Dr. Alfred Margulies, a psychiatrist, said he was concerned about the possibility that women may start to use the estrogen hormones as a crutch in a relentless and useless pursuit of eternal youth.

Such attitudes could bring many women to the psychiatrist's door, he said.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Some Things Just Can't Wait

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend and I are both seniors at the University of Colorado. We were planning to get married right after graduation in June, but we eloped in October. When we went home for a weekend we told our parents.

They said we should keep it a secret, announce our engagement at Christmas, and have a big church wedding like we planned in June.

Well, I think I'm pregnant, so I doubt if we can wait that long. I hate to disappoint our folks, but what can I do? Mother so wanted me to have a June wedding. How can I tell her?

SECRET BRIDE.

DEAR SECRET: Tell her that a June wedding is for the birds because you have a date with a stork around that time. She'll understand.

DEAR ABBY: Is it ever advisable or forgivable to tell your sister that her husband is cheating on her?

She loves him dearly, and they have a lovely home, a beautiful family and status in the community. He was a woman-chaser before their marriage, and apparently he hasn't completely settled down yet. If my sister knew how her husband was chasing around she would leave him and break up her home, causing much heartbreak for herself, her husband and the children.

And yet, knowing what I do, it is so hard for me to remain silent. The kind of women he runs with could cause untold misery at home. (Disease; I mean). I haven't discussed this with my husband, or anyone — except you. What would you do in my place?

PERPLEXED.

DEAR PERPLEXED: I would confide what I believe to be true to my husband, and let him speak to my sister's husband. Under no circumstances would I tell my sister.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I broke up a month ago, and he told me to keep the engagement ring.

I received a letter from his mother asking me to please send the ring to her.

If he didn't want the ring back enough to come and get it, do you think I should give it to his mother?

CURIOUS.

DEAR CURIOUS: It all depends on where the ring came from. If he bought it with his own money and told you to keep it, keep it. If the ring belongs to his mother, or if she gave her son the money with which to buy it, I would send it to her.

DEAR ABBY: I am surprised that I have not been accused of shop-lifting. More than once I have had the money in one hand and the item I wanted to buy in the other, and I spent anywhere from 10 to 15 minutes trying to find a salesperson who would take my money. So help me, it would sometimes be a lot easier to just walk out without paying. I'll bet a lot of people do that when they had every intention of paying.

NO FOOLING.

Lady Luck Aids Berlin Escape

BERLIN (Reuters)—An East German family of five stumbled across to West Berlin today, eluding guard dogs, searchlights and a hail of fire from Communist border guards.

Casually planned and inexpertly carried out, the escape was rated by West Berlin police as one of the luckiest they had seen.

The family — a 37 - year - old butcher and his wife and 18-year-old son and two young daughters—set off from the Potsdam district in the small hours without any plan of where they should cross.

They didn't even have any detailed knowledge of the border zone.

Before long they blundered into trip wires that set off alarms and brought searchlight beams stabbing after them.

But the light didn't fall on the escapers and the guards had to blaze away vaguely in the direction where they supposed their quarry to be.

Then the family had to cross a 400-yard plowed field with no cover at all.

Somehow, they managed to evade watch dogs chained to long wires that permitted them to run up and down for about 100 yards.

After climbing through a deep ditch, the refugees had to cross three barbed wire fences. They hurled the younger children across first and then scaled the wire.

They reached safety with only slight injuries

HIDING THEIR FACES from photographers are some of 173 persons charged in connection with Nov. 25 Grey Cup eve riots in Vancouver. About half were told they would not be tried but remainder will be directed to plead to charges. (CP Wirephoto)

Mass Trial Studied In Grey Cup Riots

VANCOUVER (CP) — A total of 170 youths and men and three young women jammed into magistrate's court here Thursday on a variety of charges arising from a near-riot following the Grey Cup parade here Nov. 25.

Eighty-eight persons, most of them ranging in age from 18 to 25, were told immediately the crown was entering a stay of proceedings on unlawful assembly charges.

But the prosecutor warned he might at a later date proceed with the charges after identification is completed.

Another 42 were remanded to Jan. 5 pending a decision by the prosecutor on whether to seek one mass trial or eight or 10 separate trials of persons in groups.

WINDOWS SMASHED

City prosecutor Stewart McMorran told the court that between 11,000 and 13,000 persons and 200 police officers were involved in the outbreak, during which hotel windows were smashed and youths engaged in bottle-throwing duels and struggles with police.

Fines ranging from $10 to $50 each were levied on a number of others in court on charges of being drunk and creating a disturbance. Several others were remanded after pleading guilty, and others were ramanded for trial on charges that included possession of an offensive weapon and obstructing a police officer.

Flood Warnings In Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Flood warnings were issued for every major watershed in southwestern Ontario today after the weather office forecast more rain for the already-soaked land.

Homes at Paisley, Wingham and Gorrie were evacuated Thursday night when the Maitland and Teeswater Rivers overflowed after a five - inch rainfall this week and warm weather melted 14 inches of snow.

The Nith River flooded at New Hamburg and 12 families were evacuated.

The threat of serious damage from floods in some areas of southern Ontario appeared to have subsided Thursday night although levels of some rivers continued to rise due to the rain and melting snow.

At London, the Thames River reached near-flood levels and then dropped, leaving only a few flooded basements.

C. R. Leuty, Ontario government projects engineer for the Upper Thames Conservation Authority, said there would be no serious danger unless there was heavy rain.

Record high temperatures were reported in several southern Ontario centres Thursday, as snow disappeared across the province.

Toronto's high temperature of 63 broke the previous record of 55 on Dec. 8, 1861.

Plan Avoids Lining 'Fat Purses' of Aged

OTTAWA (CP)— Needy pensioners will get an extra $60 a year under the government's guaranteed income than they would under a flat $25 increase in the old age pension, Health Minister MacEachen said Thursday night.

He said an estimated 500,000 old-age pensioners will get the full $30 tacked onto the regular $75 pension. Another 400,000 would receive varying amounts according to their income.

He began debate on second reading of the government's bill guaranteeing incomes of $105 to persons receiving the old-age pension.

FAT PURSES

By restricting the supplementary pension to the needy, the government was making $60,000,000 more available to those in need rather than lining already-fat purses, he said.

Under the Conservative and New Democratic Party proposal for an across-the-board increase of $25 some 50 senators and about 12 members of the Commons would get increased pensions, he said. They wouldn't be eligible under the government plan.

The government's scheme also saved $100,000,000 a year for taxpayers since this was the difference in cost between its plan and that of the opposition.

The government plan was one that was intended to fill the gap between now and 1976 when the Canada and Quebec pension plans would begin paying off.

TAX INCREASES

This was much better than imposing a permanent tax increase on Canadians. And the tax increase to meet the government plan would be much lighter than raising the pension for all.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said his party will try to get improvements in the bill, "but there is no doubt as to how we will vote on it." It would be "irresponsible on our part" to vote against the measure, even if it was incomplete.

He said the pension should be tied to the wage index as is the Canada Pension Plan. This would guarantee retired persons an income that would rise with the economy. Otherwise, if the old-age pension base stayed at $75, the total pension package would fall behind.

NEW GROUP CHARTERED TO SAVE RED ENSIGN

A second organization has been formed to restore the Red Ensign and the Union Jack to Canadian flagpoles.

It is called the Our Flags of the Century Association, and its aim is to restore the Red Ensign and preserve the Union Jack by means of a national plebiscite.

"We have received our provincial charter," said founder George Burnham, 2943 Bridge Street.

Mr. Burnham was also a founder of the Red Ensign Club. He said he broke away because of the club's apathy.

Halt 1-Man Blockades In Commons—Groos

OTTAWA (CP)—The surprise settlement Thursday of the West Coast ports tie-up also ended Gilles Gregoire's Commons pressure-play to force a government guarantee to keep the upper St. Lawrence open this winter.

The Quebec independent refused unanimous consent Wednesday for permission to hold an emergency debate to legislate an end to the coastal dispute.

Commons rules require a 48-hour interlude for such a move. The rule can be waived only with unanimous consent of the members.

Mr. Gregoire said his consent would only be forthcoming if the government agreed to have ice-breakers keep the river open from Montreal to the Atlantic.

BLACKMAIL

Terming it blackmail, George McIlraith, the government House leader, said he'd try again Thursday for unanimous consent. As it turned out, he didn't have to as stevedoring companies accepted a government proposal to settle. This ended the need for emergency debate.

But general Commons annoyance with the lone-wolf move by the Quebec separatist was reflected Thursday when David Groos (L—Victoria) proposed a rules change to prevent a recurrence of the blockade. He received general desk-thumping applause.

Mr. Groos asked the government to take responsibility for initiating a change so that a single member can never block the House again on a matter of national importance.

ASSIST SHIPS

Mr. Gregoire rose and asked Transport Minister Pickersgill whether government ice-breakers would help ships get through the St. Lawrence. A similar question was asked by Maurice Allard (Ind.—Sherbrooke).

Mr. Pickersgill said the same policy will be followed this winter as in past winters.

Replying to Michael Forrestall (PC—Halifax), Mr. Pickersgill also said he had told a Halifax audience earlier the government would take "no extraordinary steps to accelerate winter navigation" in the St. Lawrence. Nor did he intend to "take steps to impede it."

The question of St. Lawrence navigation is tied up with fears in the Atlantic ports that winter navigation in the St. Lawrence will hurt their business.

Oil Sands Developer Dies at 78

Funeral services will be held Saturday for a pionerring researcher widely acknowledge as the world's leading authority on Alberta's oil sands.

Dr. Karl A. Clark, late of 8489 Dencross Terrace, near Bazan Bay, died Thursday in Royal Jubilee Hospital. He was 78.

Dr. Clark developed the hot water process of extracting oil from the Athabasca oil sands, a process to be implemented in a $240,000,000 extraction plant to go into operation at Fort McMurray in northern Alberta early next year.

For his work done under the auspices of the Alberta Research Council Dr. Clark in 1955 was awarded the gold medal of the Professional Institute of the Public Services of Canada for outstanding achievement in applied science.

Born in Ontario in 1888, Dr. Clark received his master's degree from McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont., and his doctorate from the University of Illinois in 1915.

CONSULTANT

He joined the Alberta research council in 1920 and remained with the council until 1954, acting as a consultant until 1964.

In 1962 Great Canadian Oil Sands Co. adopted the results of his pioneering research in a pilot plant to be constructed in northern Alberta.

In 1964 Dr. Clark retired to Vancouver Island.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Dora Wolverton Clark; three daughters, Mrs. C. R. Ruttan of Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y.; Mrs. Michael Sheppard of Sheffield, England, and Mrs. George Harsh of Bellevue, Wash.; and a son, Malcolm W. Clark of Edmonton.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday from Sands Chapel of Roses, Sidney, with Rev. Harry Pike officiating.

Shoplifter Deported By Court

A 21-year-old girl who pleaded guilty last week to shop-lifting was ordered from the country by Magistrate Ostler Thursday.

Gail Haczela, a San Francisco resident who had been residing at 1410 Hillside, was told to be out of Canada today and not return for 18 months.

She had been in jail for the past week while a probation officer prepared a background report for the magistrate.

The girl was arrested after she was spotted putting goods from a Shop Easy store in her purse Nov. 25.

Police recovered five spools of thread, a tin of ginger, seven feet of elastic, four spoons, two knives, a pound of coffee and two tins of shrimp.

Shoplifter Remanded

Stephanie Lata, 1133 Caledonia, was remanded to Dec. 20 for sentence after she was convicted in central court Friday of theft under $50.

She was caught by a security officer at a downtown store Nov. 24 with several grocery items for which she had failed to pay.

Youth Groups May Co-Operate In Building New Headquarters

Plans to expand the Boys' Club of Victoria may include a permanent headquarters for the Junior Achievement program now under way in this city.

Eric Mallett, B.C. Telephone Co. manager and chairman of the Junior Achievement board of directors, suggested combining the groups.

It would be to the advantage of both since they are each concerned with youth development, he said, although the two organizations are otherwise unconnected.

Directors of the boys' club will discuss the suggestion in connection with a building expansion campaign due to begin in the new year.

A permanent board of directors for Junior Achievement Inc., Victoria branch, consists of Mr. Mallett, vice-chairman William Henderson, of Standard Life Assurance; secretary-treasurer James Stephen; retired banker; school district superintendent Joseph Chell; Joseph Bourque, Bank of Montreal; Walter Laing, Bapco Paint; Roy Lund, B.C. Hydro; Gordon Murphy, B.C. Telephone; Cecil Prowse, Ocean Cement; Clare Copland, CFAX radio.

Meanwhile, 92 city students, mostly in Grades 11 and 12 and about half boys, half girls, have organized four companies under sponsorship of Victoria firms.

They will be selling products aimed at the Christmas trade through a door-to-door campaign and salesmen each will be properly identified.

In their second-floor warehouse premises donated by Bapco above its 700 block Yates store, the students are making corsages, King Alfred cakes, wall plaques, candles, bookends and rose trellises.

The phone company is sponsoring Telco; Eaton's is sponsor of Jateco; Hudson's Bay Co. sponsors Centennial, and Woodward's is sponsor of Rows and Rose. Company names were chosen by the students, who form their own boards of directors and administer their affairs as a corporation, with the help of advisors from the sponsors.

Their capital was raised by the sale of $1 shares to the public, who can expect up to 30 per cent dividend when the companies liquidate at the end of the school term.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our grateful thanks and appreciation for the messages of sympathy and floral offerings received. And thanks also to McCall Bros., Padre Douglas Kendell, doctors, nursing staff of Surg. 2, Veterans' Hospital for the wonderful care attention given the late Mr. Samuel Grexton.—Ann, Vic and Diane Grexton.

I wish to extend my grateful thanks and appreciation for the many kindness, cards and letters of sympathy and flowers from neighbors and friends in the bereavement of my dear husband, Sydney Pearce. A special thanks to Rev. Murray Henderson, Dr. Heimlich and nurses and staff of 3rd Floor Central, Royal Jubilee Hospital.—Nellie Pearce.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BOLTON—In loving memory of my dear son, David Trevor Bolton, who passed away suddenly Dec. 8, 1961.

I think of his sayings
And treasure his smile,
I keep in my memory
My love of the past,
And always and always Forever will last.

—Lest we forget, Mom.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

In his discussion of the double of a contract when opponents have bid under their own steam, Al Morehead points out that there is one double you should never make. That is when you hold massed trumps against the declarer and your double may tell the declarer how to play the hand against you.

Opening lead—♣K

West's double of four spades really had nothing to commend it. North and South had not staggered into game. They did not have a misfit. Once South had bid a spade the bidding went right to game. West did hold four trumps but there was no guarantee that he would make a club trick and at best he could not expect to set declarer more than one trick.

If West had not stuck in his double South would almost surely have led a low spade from his hand at trick two. West would have played the three spot and dummy's queen would have held the trick. From that point on South would have been down one.

The double told South how to play the hand. He led the jack of spades at trick two. West's king fell to dummy's ace. South returned to his hand with the nine of diamonds and led the eight of spades. West covered with the nine. This lost to dummy's queen and another spade lead accounted for West's ten. West cashed his queen of clubs and forced South to ruff another club but this didn't worry South. He still had a trump to pull West's three spot and the rest of the diamond suit gave him his ten tricks.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Television offered probably the greatest collection of specials of the season in prime viewing time Wednesday.

It is unfortunate that the networks should thus force the viewer to choose because all of them were worthy of attention but not all of them received it.

Stephen

Sometimes Canadians get one step up on their American counterparts because the specials receive the pre-showing treatment here.

It was thus in the case of NBC-TB's presentation of Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit." So it was dismissed with little concern.

But close attention was awarded ABC-TV's "Christ Is Born," another in the Sage of Western Man series which have proven to be milestones in the history of television.

The husband and wife team of John Secondari and Helen Rogers used the color cameras as paint brushes to blend shadow and light in retelling the time old story.

Nothing was lost as the lenses caught the rich rough beauty of the country where the first act in the drama of Christianity was originally enacted.

The program, with narrative assistance from actor-director John Huston, also traced the story of the Jewish people back to the times of Abraham and Moses, and created a picture of the world at the time of Christ's birth.

The hour carried the stamp of stirring and dramatic excellence which will bear repeating at this time of year each season.

CBS-TV, meanwhile, presented the second of the Frank Sinatra specials, A Man and His Music. If only the network and Sinatra had left it at that, it would have been another sparkling program of song by the master of them all.

The first won two Emmies and one Peabody award for the crooner's solo performance. This time around he brought forth his singing daughter, Nancy. But she's in a class of her own with a quality which will never approach the level created and sustained by her old dad.

It should have been left to Sinatra himself to carry the hour which he has proven he can do with the old songs which will never fade away.

The last of the specials caught was Intertel's The Lion and the Eagle, a study of Anglo-American relations from Pearl Harbor to Viet Nam.

Alistair Cooke wrote and narrated the documentary which was filled with film footage from the news cameras of the world and carefully edited to fill the program time.

There was nothing new in the knowledge that Britain and the United States share a very special relationship, it was only the way the story was told that made it a cut above the ordinary.

HOPE OF SYSTEM

Vast Majority Good Teachers

Two Greater Victoria school trustees said today they did not mean to imply in a panel discussion Thursday that there are few good teachers in the local school district.

Dr. Carron B. Jameson said, "Obviously the vast majority of school teachers are good teachers and they are the hope of the system. They, most of all, are the persons who want changes made in the system in order to improve it."

Dr. Jameson and Peter Bunn, vice-chairman of the board, described the educational system in B.C. as a "sausage machine. Those who don't fit in get cut off."

Dr. Jameson said the "sausage machine" reference obviously referred to the provincial system and not to the local school district.

Mr. Bunn said the recent Downey-Hartrick report on Greater Victoria school system clearly stated there is preponderance of good teachers.

He added, "We have tremendous potential that has been restrained in the past but is now surging forward. With the encouragement that good teachers are now getting, I am optimistic they will bring about a revitalization of the system."

Bus Tour Promoter Dies at 65

Funeral services will be held in Hayward's Chapel Saturday at 2 p.m. for A. Norman Westwood, who died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday at the age of 65.

Widely known in North American travel circles, Mr. Westwood was vice-president and former superintendent of Gray Line Tours, Victoria. He also served in Nanaimo as district manager for Vancouver Island Coach Lines.

During the Second World War, as a lieutenant-commander, he was in charge of the Royal Canadian Navy's motor transport division on the Pacific Coast.

After the war he returned to Gray Line Tours in Victoria and, after several years as superintendent, was appointed vice-president in 1952.

"He promoted the tourist business all over North America," a spokesman for Gray Lines said, "and he made friends everywhere."

Born and raised in Nanaimo, Mr. Westwood was a cousin of Earle Westwood, former B.C. recreation minister and now B.C. agent-general in London, England.

Mr. Westwood is survived by the widow, Dorothy, at home; a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Barclay and two grandchildren, Johnny and Kirsty at Fort William, Ont.; a sister, Mrs. E. Jorre de St. Jorre, Victoria.

Flowers are declined but donations may be sent to the B.C. Cancer Fund, 1900 Fort Street.

Mastermind Sentenced To 15 Years

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters)—Ronald (Buster) Edwards, 35, suspected mastermind of the 1963 Great Train Robbery which netted £2,600,000 ($7,800,000) today was imprisoned for 15 years.

Edwards was hunted by police throughout the world for three years after the August, 1963, robbery in which a London-bound mail train was stopped in lonely countryside and its contents of used sterling banknotes seized.

Edwards surrendered to police last September but denied all complicity in the robbery.

He explained fingerprints found at the farm the robbers used as their hideout by saying he had been engaged to clean up the place.

The judge completed his summing up today and the jury took 105 minutes to find Edwards guilty of conspiring to rob the train and also of robbing it.

He was given a 12-year term on the first charge and 15 years for robbery. The sentences are concurrent.

After the verdict the prosecutor said £343,448 of the haul had been retrieved—none of it from Edwards.

Seven men convicted of the robbery were given 30-year terms but two of them later escaped from prison. Five others were given shorter sentences.

With the conviction of Edwards only one wanted man named by the police, Bruce Reynolds, a car dealer, so far has eluded capture.

Musicians, Writers Compete

All writers and musicians residing in British Columbia are eligible to compete in the literary and music categories of Vancouver Centennial Committee's cultural competition.

Closing date for all entries is Dec. 31, 1966.

Entry forms are obtainable from Vancouver Centennial Committee, 1366 West Broadway.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 02-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mark White, age 9, of Lamino, Iowa, for his question:

What kind of teeth does a whale have?

The biggest whale eats a ton of food a day — but his monstrous jaws have no teeth at all. Instead, he has a mouth full of whalebone called balleen. This is why he is known as the baleen whale. The sperm whale also is a giant, but he is much smaller than the giant blue balleen whale. But the sperm whale does have teeth. There are many other whales, and experts divide them into two groups. The toothed whales have real teeth. The balleen whales have balleen instead of teeth.

The big balleen whale does not need teeth because he does not eat anything big enough to bite or chew. What's more, he could not swallow a chunky gob of food because his throat is only about as wide as a grapefruit. He feeds on soupy sea food salad called plankton. Sea water teems with tiny scraps, most of them too small for our eyes to see. There are miniature seaweeds called alga, swarms of one-celled animals and a vast assortment of fish eggs. This floating sea food is called plankton.

The giant whale patrols the world's oceans for the thickest patches of plankton. His huge head is 25 feet long and his huge mouth holds enough water to fill a small swimming pool. The balleen hangs from the roof of his mouth in long strips somewhat like tough, bendable plastic. Hundreds of strips hang down in two curtains, one on each side of his upper jaw.

When he feeds, the big mouth opens and in goes water teeming with plankton. Then the giant closes his big mouth and the balleen folds back inside. Scraps of plankton are trapped in the long, pliable blades of balleen and the whale uses his immense tongue to squeeze out the water. He then swallows a tank-size helping of his soupy salad.

The sperm whale has teeth, about 50 in his lower jaw and sometimes a few in his upper jaw. But they are not meant for grinding and chewing. He uses them to grab and bite off chunks of food. He swallows his meaty sea food whole. With a couple of gulps he could devour a shark. But hs favorite food is the giant squid who lives deep on the ocean floor. Smaller toothed whales gobble meaty sea food near the surface.

The hungriest toothed whale is the grampus. The sperm whale is more than twice as big — but the grampus is greedier and so deadly that he is called the killer whale. What's more, he is a cannibal who dines on his own relatives. Dolphins and porpoises are small members of the whale family and the grampus devours them along with seals and polar bears. He grabs a porpoise, shakes and crushes it in his toothy jaws and swallows it whole. His hungry stomach is 20 feet wide and stretchable—and the greedy grampus likes to stuff it with about 20 seals or porpoises.

Cuba Stamps Attack U.S. Viet Nam Raids

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's propaganda campaign against the United States is entering the postage-stamp field.

The government has issued three stamps in a series called Genocide in Viet Nam which it said "outlines the indiscriminate attacks of the American air force on the Vietnamese people."

A two-cent stamp shows dead livestock and razed fields on a background of the red, blue and yellow flag of North Viet Nam. A U.S. Air Force plane is shown making drops.

The three-cent stamp, representing chemical warfare, shows dead and dying Vietnamese, with a gas mask labelled U.S. superimposed on the scene. The third stamp, selling for 13 cents, shows rifle-carrying women and children being attacked by bombs from U.S. planes.

The stamps were issued in conjunction with the organization of a commission to "reveal, investigate and publicize Yankee crimes in Viet Nam."

Former Convent Pupils to Form Own Alumnae

A new chapter of the Alumnae of the Sacred Heart is being formed in Victoria for former pupils of the world-wide Convents of the Sacred Heart.

A meeting will be held Sunday at 4 p.m. in the board room of St. Joseph's Hospital. Attending will be Reverend Mother M. Carter and Mother McNamara of the Point Grey convent.

Others attending are asked to use the Collinson Street entrance to the hospital and to inquire at the information desk. Further information is available from Mrs. P. N. Burnett, EV 5-3503.

City Skin Diver Wins 4 Prizes

Victoria skin diver Allan Hook has recently won plaudits for his underwater photography in a Washington State underwater film festival. Four of his entries won prizes in the competition, including two gold medals for an 8-mm. film and for a color slide.

Other color slides took a third prize and honorable mention.

Mr. Hook, of 766 Hutchinson, a machinist, has been skin diving about five years, and placed first in a national skin diving competition three years ago.

HEARING TOLD:

'RCMP Steered Bug Job'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Private investigator Weldon Graham testified Thursday that two RCMP officers steered him on to an assignment from union organizer Pat O'Neal.

The assignment, he told a provincial royal commission hearing, led to the bugging of a rival union's convention at a downtown hotel.

In the fourth day of the inquiry, Mr. Graham said he had been told by Mr. O'Neal that his International Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers Union was being harassed and intimidated by the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada and that the Canadian union had taken $40,000 from the fund of the international's Nanaimo local.

Mr. O'Neal had tipped him off about the Canadian union's convention and suggested it might be the place to gain evidence of the conspiracy, he said.

The RCMP contacts, he said, had indicated to him that it would be a bugging job.

Top RCMP security and intelligence branch officers are sitting in on Mr. Graham's evidence. Commissioner R. A. Sargent has stated he will rule out any evidence prejudicial to national security.

Mr. Graham testified he had been visited at his office by Cpl. Harry Reed and Constable E. P. Ouellette.

NEAR FUTURE

He said Cpl. Reed told him he would hear in the near future from the union man, and on the following day he was reached by Pat O'Neal.

"We discussed various ways and means—the better method to eavesdrop on the convention," he said. "I advised him that I thought electronic devices could possibly do the job.

"He said it was my business as to how I conducted the investigation. All he wanted was results."

Mr. Graham said he checked the legality of the operation with his lawyer and was told there is no specific law against bugging.

He said he met with Mr. O'Neal later and discussed "certain aspects of Communist technique in the labor movement."

MET PARTNER

Earlier, R. N. Griffin testified the RCMP men had met his partner a week before the bugging incident. He pointed out Cpl. Reed and Constable Ouellette from a group of spectators as the men he had seen.

He said he and Mr. Graham placed eavesdropping equipment in rooms at the Ritz Hotel one week after the meeting with the RCMP men.

Mr. Griffin also identified Mr. O'Neal in the gallery and said he, Mr. Graham and Mr. O'Neal had a 40-minute conversation Oct. 28 in a cocktail lounge.

RECALLS NAME

The conversation centred around communism on the West Coast and certain persons in the Communist field. He recalled the name of Orville Braaten was mentioned. Mr. Braaten is an executive board member of the Canadian union.

The witness said Mr. O'Neal made out a cheque for $250 drawn on the international union and gave it to Mr. Graham asking: "Is this enough to cover it?"

He said his ex-partner nodded his assent.

"When we left the hotel, Graham said we would need electronic equipment for the investigation," said the witness.

LEFT HOTEL

The detective firm was to try and establish what the "Communist group within the union" was attempting to do, said Mr. Griffin. On Nov. [illegible], after electronic equipment was found in room 309 of the hotel, Mr. O'Neal came to the firm's office carrying a tape recorder.

Mr. Griffin said O'Neal left "in somewhat of a hurry" after being told by Mr. Graham what had taken place.

The hearing continues today.

DENTAL FEES JUMP 18% IN PROVINCE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A general 18 per cent increase in minimum fees was approved Thursday by the British Columbia Dental Association. A spokesman said it amounts to about what dentists are now charging.

"This is the first time our fees have been reviewed since 1961, and it represents a 3 per cent increase per year," said association president Dr. Sheppard Margolese. "Most dentists have been increasing their fees by this much as costs go up."

MRS. DENMAN

Little Information Available

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Recent publicity given to the 100th anniversary of St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church includes the information that the foundation stone was laid on Aug. 30, 1866, by Mrs. Joseph Denman, wife of Rear-Admiral Denman, then commanding the Royal Naval Station at Esquimalt.

This statement intrigued me. What was Mrs. Denman like, I wondered. So I went to the provincial archives to try to find out.

Forbes

Strangely, there is little information available. If there is more (and I was told it is probable) then it is hidden in letters, reports and diaries waiting for someone to dig it out.

I discovered that the Denmans arrived at Esquimalt in 1864. Also that the admiral preferred the sea to the shore and that he took his flagship HMS Sutlej on long voyages over uncharted waters and to remote Indian villages.

In those days the admiral's wife could travel in her husband's ship so Grace Denman frequently went with him.

* * *

She was aboard when the Sutlej sailed to Ahousat to pick up the murderers of the captain and several crew members of a ship called the Kingfisher. Shots were fired and some in the village were killed.

When Sutlej men went ashore they found a small Indian girl had been made an orphan. They took her aboard ship and Mrs. Denman decided to adopt her.

She brought her back to Victoria, outfitted her in the latest fashions and a few months later took her off in the flagship on a voyage to Valpraiso.

The child was christened Margrette but to the ship's crew she was "Maggie Sutlej." They petted and spoiled her and they showered her with gifts.

On the return trip from Valpraiso the little girl died. Her name is recorded on a sandstone monument in Pioneer Square, near Christ Church Cathedral, erected to the men of Sutlej who died on this station and to "Maggie Sutlej" who was buried at sea.

* * *

The Denmans were at the Esquimalt base for two years. When they did come ashore they took part in all the leading social events and gave dances and receptions on the quarterdeck of the flagship.

In 1864 they were prominent among guests at the first ball given by Vancouver Island's Governor Arthur Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy in Cary Castle.

The admiral and his lady were also among guests at a ball in New Westminster given by mainland Governor Seymour and Mrs. Seymour to mark the anniversary of HRH the Prince of Wales.

They were here during the fierce arguments between Victoria and New Westminster as to which would be the capital of the united colony of British Columbia.

When New Westminster was named and Governor Seymour came to Victoria to host a ball at Cary Castle in an effort to soothe the feelings of the outraged Islanders, the Denmans were high on the guest list.

* * *

Their names appear among VIPs at the laying of the cornerstone of the Female Infirmary at the head of Pandora Avenue in 1864. They attended concerts in the Victoria Theatre, always sitting "in front seats in the dress circle."

At a farewell ball for retiring Governor Kennedy in October, 1866, the opening quadrille saw Mrs. Denman with the governor, Mayor Franklin with Mrs. Kennedy and Admiral Denman with Miss Kennedy.

A short time later Armiral and Mrs. Denman left Esquimalt in the Sutlej for England.

So they were not present when St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church was completed and consecrated by the Bishop of Columbia on Dec. 12 that same year.

With all these comings and goings the only picture I could find of Grace Denman was aboard the flagship and in which she is standing well back of the admiral and his officers.

It's easy to imagine her as the belle of the ball and, at the same time, as a gracious and dignified lady fulfilling the duty of laying the foundation stone of an historic church, a hundred years ago.

DICKEN'S CHARACTERS are appearing on shop windows in Oak Bay village. Idea of local businessmen, the art work has been done by talented students from Oak Bay Senior Secondary School. Two 17-year-old, grade 12 students, Maureen Macphail and Maureen Danes, made $80 from the work. And they have also won commissions for more. Here Val Everby looks in window of the Oak Bay Flower Shop. Typical of the sort of decorations used is the drawing of Scrooge at the local bank.

Ottawa Studies Steps To Avoid Labor Crises

Dock Men Tackle Backlog

Cargoes began moving in B.C. ports this morning for the first time in 10 days.

The 200 striking dock foremen called off their walkout and waterfront employers resumed hiring of longshoremen.

Seventy ships in Vancouver and other coastal ports were being worked today.

"We've got just about everybody available out handling cargo this morning," said one union spokesman.

In Victoria, 173 men were dispatched for work at Ogden Point, Cowichan Bay, Crofton and Chemainus.

Only ship at Ogden Point was the Grecian Emblem ,where 10 men are loading wheat for Japan.

The back-to-work move ended further layoffs in industries dependent on the docks. About 2,000 workers at pulp, sawmill and plywood plants had been laid off when storage space ran out.

About 3,000 longhoremen were working the ships today.

FORMULA

Details of the formula announced in the House of Commons Thursday and accepted by both sides were not divulged.

The foremen went on strike 22 days ago seeking recognition and bargaining rights. Their picket lines halted work for five days before a court injunction removed them.

When work resumed, employers accused longshoremen of deliberately working slowly, but the Internation Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union blamed lack of proper supervision.

FIRED AGAIN

For a week, longshoremen were fired and then rehired only to be fired again. Then the B.C. Maritime Employers Association refused to call out any more men until given a promise of no slowdowns.

Last weekend, Labor Minister Nicholson proposed a formula which would have allowed grievance procedures and formation of a foremen's unit outside the ILWU.

The foremen accepted this, but employers took this to mean a kind of collective bargaining which they oppose because they consider foremen to be part of management.

FIRST FORMULA

In Ottawa, Edward Strang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers Association, told a Times reporter the formula accepted Thursday represents "an entirely different concept" from Mr. Nicholson's first formula.

Instead of any kind of foremen's association, the procedure would provide bilateral negotiations between individual foremen and employers with a final appeal to arbitration.

"What is outlined now is not a collective agreement," he said.

"It offers a means of expressing grievances, if a foreman wishes, in the normal way with his employer.

"If he is not satisfied with his discussions with his employer he than has an opportunity of having his case arbitrated."

NUCLEAR BOMB THREAT IN VIET WAR URGED

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—California Republican Governor-elect Ronald Reagan said today that the United States should use the threat of nuclear warfare to win peace in Viet Nam.

He told a reporter that his view of the war could be summed up this way:

"I think you win."

He disagreed with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's view that the war might just "fade away" and added: "I don't believe a great power like us should be meeting the enemy on his terms."

He said the nation should use its "full resources" to fight the war. Asked if he meant we should use nuclear weapons, he replied:

"No one, of course, wants to use these weapons but the enemy should never be told we won't. He should go to bed every night fearful that we might."

Long Range Scheme On National Issues

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament must establish permanent machinery to handle crucial labor strikes in essential industries instead of acting from crisis to crisis, Labor Minister John Nicholson said Thursday.

Shortly after the minister had made his surprise announcement of the end of the west coast dock dispute, he was thinking ahead to the next round.

Permanent machinery should be geared to apply only to labor-management disputes "in which safety, security and the national interest are involved," Mr. Nicholson said.

His comments were prompted by similar suggestions in the House in light of the recurring labor crises suffered by the country in the past year.

OTHER THREATS

In the last 24 months there have been three major work stoppages in the transportation field alone, and others have been threatened.

Mr. Nicholson cautioned, however, against trying to rush through major and permanent changes for essential industries in the present "crisis atmosphere."

"But I think the time has come for a change," he said.

Earlier in the Commons Prime Minister Pearson had dealt with questions on the same subject.

Social Creditor A. B. Patterson (Fraser Valley) said it was essential that a set of procedures must be established "to safeguard the national economy by preventing a repetition of these situations which have taken place first in railways, then Air Canada and now shipping."

Mr. Pearson noted that a task force has already been set up under the direction of Dean Woods of McGill University to inquire into this whole area.

He hoped it would report as soon as possible so the government would be in a position to plan long-range action.

Mr. Nicholson indicated this report might take longer than originally anticipated.

Although an interim report might come in six months, he felt a comprehensive review would take a year or more.

CALM STUDY

This would enable Canadians at all levels to consider carefully the possibilities of more orderly methods in a calmer atmosphere than exists at the moment, Mr. Nicholson said.

Canadian labor legislation enjoyed a high reputation throughout the world and it would be unfortunate if important changes were made hastily without adequate study, he added.

Once the task force reported, Mr. Nicholson said the government could then produce amendments "that would make it unnecessary for Parliament to act from one crisis to another several times in the same year."

More Wheat Sold In China Contract

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 35,300,000-bushel sale under Canada's long-term wheat agreement with China was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

The new contract will bring to approximately 93,300,000 bushels the amount of wheat ordered by China under a three-year agreement which took effect Aug. 1.

Under terms of the agreement, the Chinese will take from a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels to a maximum of 280,000 bushels.

As usual, the wheat board gave no dollar value to the sale. On the government's reckoning that every bushel of wheat sold is worth $2 to the economy, the new sale would be worth more than $70,000,000.

MARJORIE FARBER
. . . hypnotized?

Wife 'Froze' Trying to Kill Her Husband

FREEHOLD, N.J. (UPI) — Wracked with sobs and wrenching out the words, Mrs. Marjorie Farber related today how she "froze" when she tried to kill her husband under the hypnotic urgings of Dr. Carl A. Coppolino.

Still pretty at 52, the brunette widow of retired army Lt.-Col. William E. Farber told the Coppolino murder jury that the doctor-hypnotist repeated to her over and over again: "He's got to go. He's got to go."

Mrs. Farber said that at Coppolino's direction, she loaded a syringe at 3 a.m. on July 30, 1963, with a drug obtained by Coppolino and jabbed it into the leg of her sleeping husband.

She said she started to depress the plunger but "froze," unable to go through with it. The trial continues.

FERRY TOLL SET AT 235

ATHENS (AP)—Shipping officials revised the toll in the sinking of the Greek ferry Heraklion to 235 dead or missing today and expressed fear that a number of unlisted passengers may have been aboard.

Hope was fading that there would be more survivors than the 46 brought in by darkness Thursday.

$26 Million Pipeline Proposed for North

The provincial cabinet today authorized construction of a $26 million natural gas pipeline across the north central zone of the province but demanded the promoting companies put more of their own money into it.

A Public Utilities Commission certificate was approved permitting Pacific Northern Gas Co. Ltd. to build the line from Summit Lake, north of Prince George, to Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

The company also has the right to install distribution systems in the 13 communities along the line but must obtain franchise agreements from the municipalities by Feb. 1, 1968.

PNG was formed as a partnership of two major firms, Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. and Great Northern Gas Utilities Ltd., which originally told the PUC they intended to put up $3 million, sell another $1 million public shares and borrow the remaining $22 million.

Because of uncertainties involved in the project, the PUC certificate ruled they must cut the borrowings by raising their investment to at least $4 million and selling at least $3.5 million in shares.

Construction of the line must be completed by Sept. 1, 1968, or PNG would forfeit a $200,000 deposit.

'Two-Faced' Policy Rapped by Zambia

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Zambia took the lead today in presenting African demands for a total oil embargo against Rhodesia that would strike out at South Africa and Portugal as the principal suppliers.

Simon M. Kapwepwe, Zambian foreign minister, delivered a bitter attack in the United Nations Security Council on British proposals for selective mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia, and an offer to consider a limited oil embargo.

He described the British proposals as worthless and said that if the white-minority regime in Rhodesia is not toppled a racial war between black and whites will ensue.

He accused Britain of "abominable dishonesty" and following a "two-faced policy of appeasement to kith and kin while seeking to placate black Africa with patronizing handouts."

He said Zambia, a neighbor

British UN Action 'Not End of Road'

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he does not regard Britain's call for mandatory UN sanctions as the end of hopes for a negotiated settlement to the Rhodesian independence crisis.

Reporters asked the Rhodesian leader as he reached his office this morning if proposals outlined to the UN Security Council in New York Thursday night by George Brown, British foreign secretary, meant the end of the road for negotiations.

Smith replied: "No, I don't believe you ever get to the end of the road."

Asked whether he will carry out his threat and declare Rhodesia a republic now that Britain has taken the issue to the United Nations, the prime minister said: "We have not given this any serious thought. I think what we've got to do is to let the dust settle."

MUM ON LIST

Asked to comment on the list of exports Britain has asked to be sanctioned, Smith declined comment, saying he had not yet seen the list.

Brown asked the Security Council to order a worldwide ban on imports of a dozen commodities vital to Rhodesia's economy including tobacco, copper, sugar, iron ore and asbestos.

CUBA CLASSIC EXAMPLE OF INEFFECTIVENESS

Economic Sanctions Have Never Worked

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The history of sanctions in international affairs offers no comfort to those seeking to overthrow the Rhodesian rebel regime of Ian Smith by such mandatory economic penalties. They never have worked.

Since the days before 1914 there has been no evidence that any delinquent nation has been forced by punitive economic measures alone to change its ways.

The United Nations never has voted mandatory sanctions against any country. The League of Nations invoked such penalties only once.

Outside these world organizations, numerous efforts have been made by individual countries and by alliances to take coercive measures short of war.

One example in recent times is the trade embargo against Cuba by the United States and some of its Latin American neighbors. This was aimed at the overthrow of the Communist regime of Fidel Castro. But he is still in power, even though the Cuban people, undoubtedly have felt an economic pinch.

The United Nations has voted punitive measures in several cases. But they have been in the form of recommendations to the member nations and therefore do not qualify as sanctions under generally-accepted legal definitions.

Both the assembly and the Security Council have recommended limitations on trade with Rhodesia and South Africa—the latter because of its racial policies—but study groups report little or no results. Business is booming in South Africa despite repeated UN condemnations.

The one instance in which the League of Nations voted sanctions came in 1935 after Italy's invasion of Ethiopia. In separate votes, the league assembly ordered an arms embargo, a financial ban and a boycott of all imports from Italy. The sanctions did not include an oil embargo, and they failed to halt Italy's operation. The next year Italy announced the annexation of Ethiopia and the league cancelled its sanctions.

Legal experts agree that one of the major weaknesses of international law is that it lacks the power of enforcement. The UN charter provides for the use of military force to implement sanctions, but the organization itself has no armed forces and the members have shied away from sanctions mainly because they might require enforcement.

Three pounds of wheat to a starving family	15c
A two-course meal for a hungry child	4c
One cotton blanket for a destitute family	$1.15
A sari for an unemployed widow	$1.30

A shopping list that would horrify most Canadian householders—but it is one that is made up daily at Unitarian Service Committee field projects in India.

In the Kodai district, where the items on this list were to be distributed, conditions are so bad that they are almost unbelievable.

Children there often cannot walk at the age of three and four. They have never had enough to eat, and without USC projects, backed by Canadian aid, they never will have.

One pitifully scrawny Indian mother made a 175-mile trek to a USC dispensary with her three-and-a-half-year-old son on her back.

She walked all the way.

When the child was checked in to the hospital, he weighed only 14 pounds.

Situations like this are not isolated. USC workers discover them almost every day.

With courage and determination they do what they can to alleviate the suffering of poverty-stricken Indians.

But always more is needed. Victorians may help by sending contributions to the Share With Asian Children Fund, care of the newspaper. Donations may also be made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas Street.

DISTRUSTFUL and suspicious of a world that has treated her badly, this little Calcutta girl could be helped by Canadian aid.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—Rain and snow in the winter wheat belt of the southwestern section of the U.S. strongly influenced wheat dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

And, to a degree, the lower trend in wheat had some effect on other grains in the futures market.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds featured modest activity today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Routine trade saw flax hold to a narrow range showing an underlying firmness aided by higher linseed oil prices on the continent.

Fair hedging sales appeared in flax and rapeseed. Rapeseed prices reflected declines in the Chicago soybean market.

Oilseeds received some stimulation from the resumption of shipping at the Pacific Coast.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Dull Session Marks Vancouver Trading

Trading was dull on the Vancouver stock exchange before noon today with declines outpacing advances.

Declines outnumbered gains about two to one on the mining board with Highmont heading the list. It lost .10 on 9,400 shares to $1.81 at noon. Western Mines fell .10 to $4.35, Rolling Hills, off .03 to .33, Peel slipped .02 to .13 and Westcoast Resources dropped .04 to .76.

Granduc was the big gainer, climbing .15 to $3.75 on 1,800 shares. Native jumped three to .67.

In the oils, Futurity was off .06 to .64 and Central Del Rio fell .12 to $13.37.

Volume to 11 a.m. was 295,051 shares.

AT TORONTO western oils reversed their downward trend in closing trade on the exchange today. The oil index advanced .19 to a high of 132.74 after falling .43 earlier in the day.

Canadian Superior reached a 1966 high of 31½, up 1¾. Scurry Rainbow gained ⅝ to 20⅞.

Industrials rose slightly. Hudson Bay Co. was up ⅛ to 15½ and Pembina Pipe reached a high, gaining 1 to 11½.

Among speculatives New Imperial advanced 21 cents to 2.31 on 106,000 shares.

AT NEW YORK the market rallied in late trading to register a gain.

As profits were taken on three IBM slumped seven points, United Aircraft, Homestake, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont and Polariod a point or more each.

Norton Co. followed up its rise of 13⅛ Thursday with a jump of 4⅜ to 46½ on a delayed opening block of 45,000 shares, later trimming a couple of points from the rise. The stock was swamped with buyers because of news it has developed an inexpensive method putting sound tracks on home movies.

Carborundum climbed nearly four, Douglas Aircraft more than 3.

AT MONTREAL the recent sharp rally weakened slightly as investors followed the pattern of the New York Exchange.

Gains still held a slight edge over losses, however.

AT LONDON the market was dull today. Rhodesia still was an unsettling factor. Another influence was the latest report from the Bank of England, which lowered hopes of an early end to the "freeze."

Business was at a low ebb, with most leading shares tending to ease.

Dollar stocks improved with Wall Street, although there were a few laggards, including Brazilian Light and Power. Canadian Pacific and International Nickel added four points each and Noranda was firm. Canadian banks improved.

Natural Gas Well Find By Banff Oil

CALGARY (CP)—Banff Oil Ltd. announced today discovery of natural gas at a wildcat well in the Rainbow area 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

J. C. Randolph, Banff president, said in a prepared statement that gas was found in the Keg River formation at a well the company is currently drilling: Mobil Kitu 6-23.

Mr. Randolph also said the development well, in Range 8, west of the 6th Meridian, "is indicated to be a successful followup" to the discovery well one-half mile north.

Interests in the wells and the lands upon which they are being drilled are held 50 per cent by Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., 45 per cent by Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd., and five per cent by Banff Oil Ltd.

BCT Announces 60c Dividend

VANCOUVER (CP)—A quarterly dividend of 60 cents a common share of British Columbia Telephone Co. was announced today by the board of directors.

The dividends will be payable Jan. 1 to shareholders of record Dec. 16, the announcement said.

Quarterly dividends were also announced for outstanding cumulative preference and preferred shares, but the amount was not disclosed.

SELLING
IBM OFFICE PRODUCTS

This is an opportunity for individuals who have a keen desire to become successful professional salesmen in the fast-growing office products field.

In IBM's Office Products Division, the challenge is to discover and implement ways of improving the flow of vital communications through an office. "It's called "word processing" — the use of modern equipment to increase output, making more productive time available to time-conscious business and professional men.

As an IBM Office Products salesman, you are assigned your own exclusive territory (following completion of a comprehensive training program). There you maintain direct, executive-level contact with IBM's present and prospective customers, analysing their typing, dictating and in-plant printing requirements, and make recommendations on what equipment should be installed.

The environment is challenging; the rewards and opportunities for promotion are attractive.

Arthur Mayse

After testing the air and looking at Thursday morning's sky, I took off for town with the intention of replacing my 15-year-old tire chains.

One service station didn't stock chains, another was out of them, so I headed for our larger downtown marts.

The clerk who waited on me, or rather permitted me to attract his attention after a lengthy stalk, listened indulgently.

Then, on a rising inflection, he said, "Tire chains?"

I confirmed the request. The lordly fellow said, "Oh, no. We haven't any tire chains. Are you expecting a hard winter?" With a half-smile at his own wit, he added, "You might try so-and-so's."

Somewhat whipped down, I trekked to so-and-so's, which sold chains, but was reduced to the smallest sizes. Next stop, same story.

At that point I took to the telephone. Three calls brought only polite negatives, although one party offered to order me a set and another suggested snow-tires. On the fourth — where I should have put in at the beginning — I scored.

All this cost me a fair amount of time, and didn't improve my temper. I'm still sufficiently ruffled, in fact, to hope that first salesman finds himself spinning unshod wheels on one of our nastier hills at its iciest.

Which brings to mind a plaint uttered by countless newcomers to Victoria from less lovely but brisker cities: "What on earth keeps so many merchants in this town from re-stocking when they run out of something?"

A note to various hot-go speleering opponents of fluoridation:

Will you please, for the sake of an already overflowing wastebasket, quit bombarding me with what Vancouver columnist Eric Nicol chose to write against the tooth-saving treatment of drinking water.

Mr. Nicol, though entitled to his views, is neither a doctor nor a medical researcher. As an opinion-writer, he has expressed his opinion.

I have my opinion too, and have stated it here before. In my view, based on the pronouncements of authorities I prefer to believe, fluoridation can't come too soon.

Further, despite your horror-pictures of children allegedly turned into dental misfits by overdoses of the enamel and bone-toughening agent, I remain unimpressed. Radium, misused, can also produce grim results. Would you ban the medical use of radium and other tamed tigers of modern medicine?

And how about iodized salt?

That's what I think . . . and, brethren and sistren, your propaganda-storm of unsigned missives will hereafter be ignored.

★

I could tell you about the three Christmas parties being planned by Canadian Forces Base and the Fleet School at Esquimalt for handicapped, retarded and underprivileged kids . . .

Or about the wonderful midget game sanctuary maintained by a local specialist behind his business-section office for a covey of quail and a raccoon-about-town who lives on pigeons . . .

Or about the bright-eyed moppet named Bernadette who watched a sweep scouring our home chimney and asked if we were getting it cleaned out for Santa Claus . . .

But instead, I bid you listen to one of the sounds that pace every newsman's desk hours.

This is the intermittent, metallic whine and chatter of the shortwave radio on its stand back of the city desk.

Day and night, it looses into our newsroom big, robust police voices querying and replying, relaying information and orders about illegal parkings, suburban disturbances, suspected prowlers and traffic crackups.

The other day, just as dark was falling, the voice of the law boomed loud and clear from a clatter of static.

Holdup? Car crash? Uh-uh!

What we got, lustily warollled in a rugged baritone, was "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

The unknown harbinger in blue made it through "Peace on earth, good will to men," before he vanished from the airwaves to administer peace on earth and—we may hope—mercy mild.

But not, I trust, to write some guy a ticket.

DWARFED BY 200-FEET LONG crane boom, workmen (arrowed) today began erection of the mammoth floating hoist at Esquimalt. The Marine Boss, one of the largest floating cranes in existence, will be used by Victoria Machinery Depot to construct a $9-million oil rig for use off the west coast of B.C. The crane, towed here from San Francisco, is capable if lifting 500 tons at a time. Owned by Murphy Pacific Marine Salvage Co., of California, it will be in use here about a month, lifting 250-ton section to the top of the rig which, when completed, will be as tall as a 30-storey building.

Apathy Shocks Acting Mayor; Urges Big Vote

'Strong Mandate' Vital to Winner

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Shocked by the poor turn out at Thursday night's all-candidate rally, Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott today made a last-minute plea for a big turnout of voters in Saturday's elections.

"The city is entering one of the most crucial periods in its history," he said. "It is of vital importance that our next mayor, whoever he may be, receive a strong mandate from the people.

"I fully realize the difficulties facing the voters in this year's mayoralty race. The choice is not easy. But it will be made tomorrow whether 100 per cent of the eligible voters turn out or whether only 30 per cent turn out

"I urge all Victoria voters to go to the polls Saturday and cast their ballot for the people of their choice so that whoever is elected will know he has the confidence of the people."

The acting mayor said he was greatly dismayed at the lack of interest shown in the all-candidates meeting. (See Page 17.)

Voters Missed Opportunity

"It was the one opportunity the people had of seeing, hearing and meeting the men who will represent their interests next year," he said. "I sincerely hope that tomorrow will tell a different story and that the voters will be en masse to exercise their democratic right."

Acting Mayor Parrott's plea may still fall on apathetic ears.

Advance polls in the city report only a sprinkling of voters who will be absent from the city on Saturday.

Returning officer Morran Waller said a few more absentee ballots had been cast during the past three days than were cast in advance of the last mayoralty election.

"The vote is running slightly ahead of last year," Mr. Waller said. "But it's so slight that it could hardly be called a gain."

Mr. Waller made the statement this morning with a full day of advance polling time left.

Only voters who signed an affidavit stating they would be out of the city on election day were permitted to vote in advance.

Polling Places Close at 8

Polls for the main vote open Saturday at 8 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. with the Victoria Ballroom, 1600 Government, the only polling station in the city.

The 28,376 voters in Saanich have 13 polling stations.

They are: Cloverdale School; Frank Hobbs School; Glanford School; Gordon Head Elementary School; Lansdowne Junior High School; Seaview Plaza; St. Josephs' Parish Hall; Mount View High School; Prospect Lake Community Hall; Royal Oak Secondary School; St. Luke's Hall; St. Martin's in the Field Hall; and Tillicum School.

Returning officer Gordon Hayward reported the turnout at the advance poll is "very light."

Voting place in Esquimalt is the municipal hall at 1229 Esquimalt Road.

Residents in the View Royal panhandle, voting on the proposed amalgamation with Esquimalt, cast ballots at Unit 15 of the Craigflower Motel, 101 Craigflower Road.

Oak Bay voters cast ballots at the municipal hall, 2167 Oak Bay Avenue. In addition to electing three councillors, voters will also decide whether or not they want fluoridation of the water supply.

Winner Known Close to Midnight

Polling stations in Central Saanich are at the Brentwood Women's Institute Hall, the municipal hall and the Farmer's Institute Hall on Keating Cross Road.

Sidney voters cast ballots at the municipal hall while North Saanich residents vote at the parish hall, 1319 Mills Road

Unless there is a runaway victory for one of the Victoria mayoralty candidates it is expected to be close to midnight before the name of the new mayor emerges.

With a staff of 32 ballot box clerks plus 11 relief clerks to assist, Mr. Waller and his assistant returning officer George Merz anticipate little difficulty in getting final results out after the polls close.

"Voters can make it a lot easier for us if they remember a few simple rules," said Mr. Waller.

"One cardinal rule is that only the pencil provided in the voting booth can be used to mark a ballot. The person using his own pen or pencil automatically destroys his vote.

"Voters must — and there are no two ways about it — they must use the pencil provided."

Mr. Waller also warned that a ballot is rendered useless when voters insist on voting for more candidates than there are seats vacant.

"For example, there are four vacancies for two-year terms as aldermen," Mr. Waller said. "That means you can only vote for four candidates. If you vote for five or more the ballot is no good and the vote wasted."

The same applies for the one-year aldermanic term being sought by two candidates.

"And," he added, "would you please stress that a tick is not the proper way to mark a ballot. It must be a cross. Ballots marked with a tick are spoiled."

UNITED FRONT BARGAINING APPROVED

The Labor Relations Board has approved joint certification of unions at each of the west coast's big three shipyards.

The move, affecting Victoria Machinery Depot, Yarrows and Burrard Dry Dock, was announced today.

It followed agreement among all-unions to go along with the joint certification moves made earlier by the majority of the unions.

Under the change, each union maintains its identity for grievances and jurisdiction but bargaining comes under a common united front.

Instead of 36 individual union certifications at the three shipyards, there will be one certification for all unions at each company.

This Meal Cost Pair $50 Each

Two party goers who stole Chinese food from a delivery van were fined $50 each in central court today.

Jerry Joseph Yalloway of 2183 Epworth and Edward Hawryluk of 1747 Stanley, both 21, pleaded guilty to theft of goods worth less than $50.

They admitted they had been drinking at a party Nov. 27 when a Don Mee delivery van parked nearby to make a delivery. They took two orders worth $7.85 from the van.

"Not the least bit funny," said Magistrate Ostler in passing sentence.

The accused agreed they "would be the first to yell" if someone came into the store where they both work and stole something.

HADFIELD GUESS: 525

Longest Death List Ever Predicted for Year's End

PEANUTS
MY STOMACH HURTS
SPEAKING OF STOMACHS...AREN'T YOU GAINING A LITTLE WEIGHT?
12-9
YES, I GUESS I AM... MAYBE THAT'S MY TROUBLE...
MAYBE I'M HAVING FAT PAINS!

Eight British Columbians died in traffic mishaps during Safe-Driving Week which ended at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday and motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield wasn't heartened.

"Obviously this is an improvement from the 11 last year and it may be an indication of a better December monthly total too," he said in an interview.

"But I still think it's inevitable we'll go beyond the record of 500 fatalities set last year and I'll bet the drivers end up with a total of not less than 525 dead by this Dec. 31."

Mr. Hadfield said originally he had thought that between 550 and 600 persons would be killed during 1966 on the province's roads.

At this time last year, there had been 444 fatalities compared with this year's cumulative total of 481.

Grim as his prediction that 36 more people will die in the province before the Christmas rush is over, it was less sanguine than the actual toll chalked up last year.

A total of 67 persons were sent to their graves by traffic accidents during the month of December alone in 1965. In both 1964 and 1963, the December fatalities numbered 31.

Jubilee Workers Get 11%

Royal Jubilee Hospital workers have accepted an 11 per cent wage boost offer from management.

Ald. Robert Baird, chairman of the hospital's personnel committee, said today the first five per cent would be retroactive to Oct. 1 with a further six per cent on Jan. 1, 1967.

Other benefits to be received by the Hospital Employees Association include four weeks annual vacation after 10 years service.

There is a proviso that the four weeks cannot be taken consecutively.

During negotiations, Brian Waddingham represented the association with laywer E. E. Pearlman representing the board.

NAMED B.C. engineer of the year, Victoria consultant S. J. Cunliffe today was given professional engineer's association award at Vancouver, B.C. Association of Professional Engineers gives honor to the man who best serves the social needs of his community, Mr. Cunliffe is president of YM-YWCA and a member of several other organizations.

BANK OF B.C.

Bennett Won't Invest

Premier Bennett has taken one of his famous second looks at his plans to invest personally in the Bank of B.C. — and decided against it.

Monday he told reporters that he and his family would invest a "substantial" sum in the new bank's shares to show everyone his confidence in it and he urged all citizens to do the same.

Thursday he said he will not make any personal investments after all because as finance minister he is not an ordinary citizen.

"The only law on the subject would permit him to buy shares but it's a question of how delicately a person wants to regard his position," Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

He pointed out Mr. Bennett has shown "abundant caution" in the past to avoid any possible suggestion of a conflict of interest between his private and public life.

Mr. Bennett, explaining his switch, said personally owning some of the bank's shares "could prevent me from doing business with the new bank in my capacity as finance minister.

"I can be of much greater service to the bank by being unfettered in doing provincial business with them than I could possibly be as a shareholder in the new bank."

But, he added, he still urges other citizens to buy shares in the bank.

TEMPERATURES SEEN RISING FOR WEEKEND

It's not bright.

But the weekend weather is at least brighter than was expected.

A storm front to the west is bringing in warmer air which will boost Victoria temperatures above the freezing point.

Although the themometer dropped to 30— degrees overnight, it shouldn't go below 37 tonight.

And daytime temperatures will be around 45 Saturday.

Intermittent rain showers will give way Saturday to cloudy, but probably dry, weather.

Winds tonight will be southeast 25 to 35.

Rosalie Wouldn't Surrender Until Every Queen Had Crown

Mrs. W. H. DeCosta, affectionately known to Victoria's millinery circles as Rosalie, died from cancer in Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday.

From her little shop on Blanshard Street, Rosalie created hats for some of Victoria's best-dressed women and taught others to design hats for themselves. She also gave time each week to teaching hat-designing at the Silver Threads Centre on Centennial Square.

●

When told she would have to undergo an operation for cancer, Mrs. DeCosta was busy producing hats for the Miss Victoria contestants. She carried on until all the hats were completed and she had seen the contestants on the stage for the first night.

Mrs. DeCosta so endeared herself to the young contestants that, after she was admitted to hospital, they arrived en masse with armloads of flowers.

MRS. DeCOSTA
. . . Rosalie

Friends said it was typical of Rosalie that she continued designing and making hats on her hospital bed. She made them, not only for customers, but for nurses and fellow patients.

With the help of her many friends, she produced millinery styles for a number of fashion shows in aid of the B.C. Cancer Fund, and over a period of two years, raised more than $2,000.

"Rosalie continued making beautiful hats until she could no longer see clearly or coordinate the movements of her hands," a friend said.

"It was the work she loved best."

●

Mrs. DeCosta, who lived at 2032 Neil Street, is survived by her husband, Wilfred; two sons, Glenson, Toronto, and John, Miami; three grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. C. Coull, Cobble Hill; and three brothers, Leonard Finch, Toronto; Albert Finch, Miami, and William Finch, Toronto.

Rev. J. A. Roberts will conduct funeral services in McCall Brothers chapel Saturday at 3:30 p.m., followed by cremation. Flowers are declined but donations may be sent to the B.C. Cancer Fund, 1900 Fort Street.

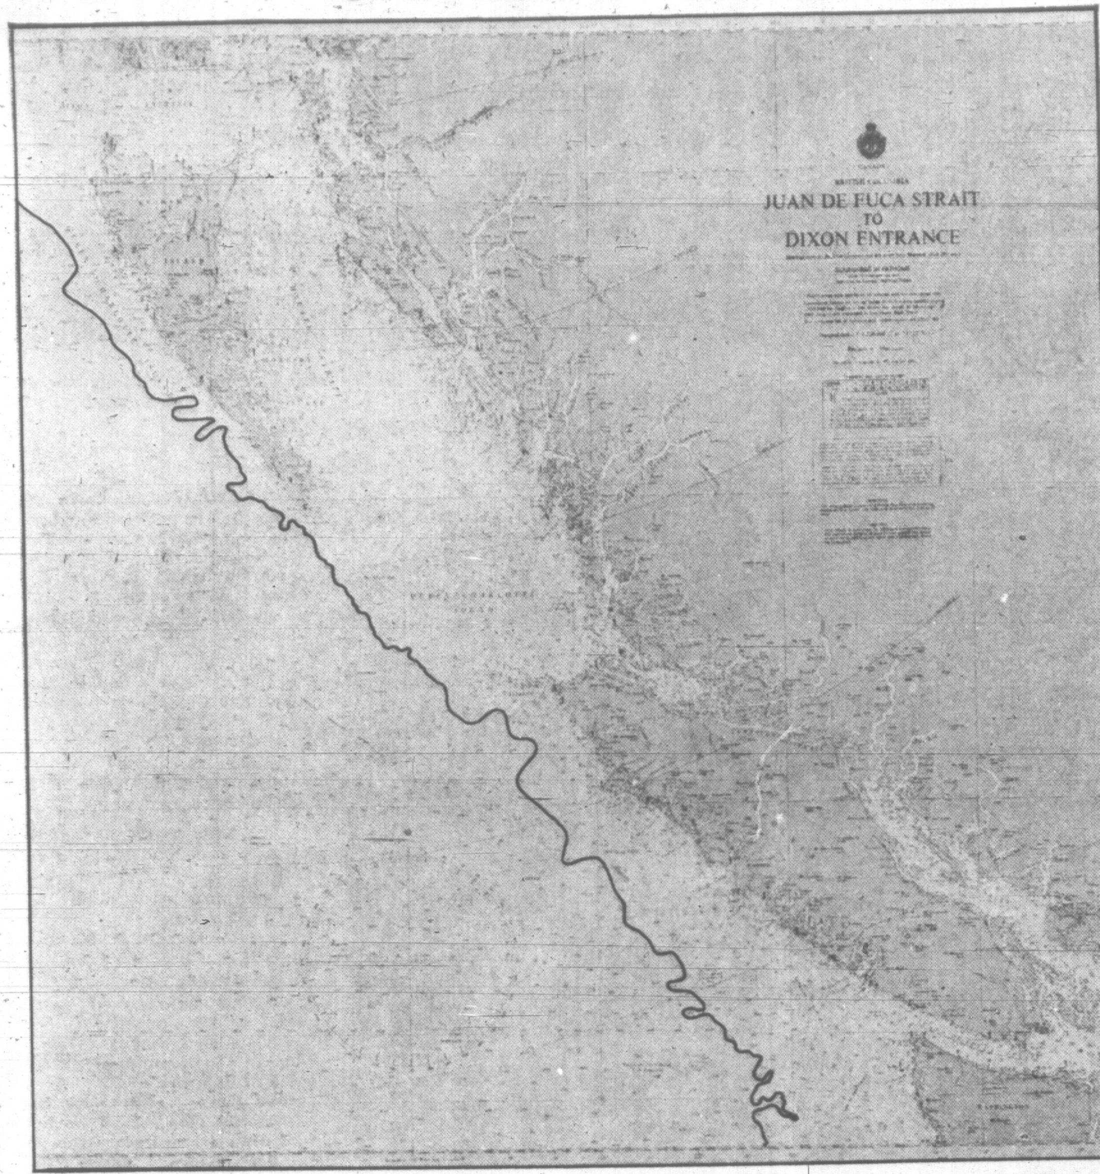
Continental Shelf Opens Wide Issues

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

There's a new release on the Socred hit parade this week called "Buccaneer Bob," sung to a popular drugstore-cowboy tune, which goes:

"Home, home on the shelf
"Where the squid and the porpoises play,
"Where never is heard
"A federal word,
"And our title's not clouded today."



OUTERMOST LIMIT of our continental shelf is delineated by the line on this chart showing its relative narrowness. The shelf itself is a gently undulating submarine plateau extending outward from the B.C. shore to an edge at approximately the 650-foot depth before angling down to the 3,500-foot depth where the line is drawn at the base of its slope and the beginning of the Pacific ocean's true basin.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner last week wasted no time in washing off the dust of three hard weeks on the byelection campaign trail by drafting a cabinet order as a springboard for a breathtaking swan dive deep into international waters.

These are very deep waters indeed.

On June 10, 1964, the world's first codified international law on the subject went into force when Britain became the 22nd nation to ratify the Convention on the Continental Shelf that was formulated during the 1958 Law of the Sea Conference convened by the United Nations in Geneva.

Canadian High Commissioner in London George Drew was the first to sign the convention—and, indeed, he spearheaded the discussion that led to drafting of the terms at Geneva. Another 44 delegates signed although only 22 states formally ratified their agreement within six years.

The first two articles of this convention make it clear that international law will recognize only the Canadian federal government's jurisdiction over our continental shelf whatever any province may say or do.

●

Here's what they say:

"Article I

"For the purpose of these articles, the term "continental shelf" is used as referring (a) to the sea bed and subsoil of the submarine areas adjacent to the coast, but outside the area of the territorial sea, to a depth of 200 metres (about 650 feet) or, beyond that limit, to where the depth of the superjacent waters admits of the exploitation of the natural resources of the said areas; (b) to the sea bed and subsoil of similar submarine areas adjacent to the coasts of islands.

"Article II

"1. The coastal State exercises over the continental shelf sovereign rights for the purpose of exploring it and exploiting its natural resources.

"2. The rights referred to in paragraph one of this article are exclusive in the sense that if the coastal State does not explore the continental shelf or exploit its natural resources, no one may undertake these activities or make a claim to the continental shelf, without the express consent of the coastal State.

"3. The rights of the coastal State over the continental shelf do not depend on occupation, effective or notional, or on any express proclamation."

(All four conventions produced at the Law of the Sea Conference refer to national entities as coastal States to distinguish them from land-locked States.)

●

Alvin Hamilton, then minister of natural resources, made it clear to the House of Commons in a July 25, 1958, speech on the conference that, although barely reported in the press this first world agreement in history on the rules to apply to the continental shelf "is of particular significance to Canada.

"In the long term, this agreement may have consequences of far-reaching importance to Canada in the development of underwater oil and mineral resources," he continued.

"It is not without significance that it was a proposal put forward by Canada . . . that led to the adoption of the Convention on the Continental Shelf nor is it without significance that it was a Canadian proposal to the final plenary session that led to a prohibition against reservations to the three main substantive articles in the convention."

The Convention's first article, makes in inapplicable to the "territorial sea" which, for failure of another convention at the same conference, still remains recognized as the three-mile limit so far as all-inclusive control is concerned and here there is room for argument between the provincial and federal governments.

And this, more than the supposed "mystery letter" about some proposed sea bed research project, may be the real reason for the provincial cabinet's action.

Remember, it is locked in an argument with the federal government over jurisdiction of offshore mineral rights which is to be decided by the Supreme Court of Canada early next year.

●

The B.C. claim to the territorial sea rests on an interpretation that it has a historic right to it from colonial days implied by the Proclamation of Union of the two colonies 100 years ago which defined its boundaries as:

"To the South by the territories of the United States of America, to the West by the Pacific Ocean and the frontier of the Russian territories in North America (Alaska panhandle today), to the North by the 60th parallel of north latitude and to the East from the boundary northwards, by the Rocky Mountains and the 120th meridian of west longitude, and shall include Queen Charlotte's Island and all other islands adjacent to the said territories . . . and Vancouver Island and the islands adjacent thereto."

(Ridiculous as it may sound, this very loose definition still is the legal source of today's ultra-exact surveys of our boundaries with the most delicate and precise instruments — which were used in delineating our northern boundary only in the past two years although the measurements still have to be adopted by legislation.)

●

The province argues that the three-mile territorial sea limit belonged to the colony when it signed itself into Confederation in 1871 and the terms of union (which strangely didn't bother defining what B.C. was) gave back to the province control of mineral resources within its territory, including this territorial sea.

A claim that, by the same unwritten but implied grounds, the continental shelf also was brought into Confederation by B.C., would be consistent with this argument —indeed, its absence would weaken the case.

So, even if an international protocol invalidates the claim, the province must at least pretend the shelf belongs to it in order to enhance the plausibility of its submission to the Supreme Court.

That this is not a carefully documented and long-held conviction of the province is shown by the fact that the cabinet order came as a complete surprise to senior government officials and, apparently, even to the lawyers that are preparing B.C.'s case before the Supreme Court.

●

So hasty was the decision to pass the order that the next cabinet meeting had to adopt a supplementary order to dispel the instant fears of existing foreshore leaseholders that the new reserve would infringe on their rights.

The idea to make the claim sprang directly from Mr. Bonner. And when he explained its significance to reporters he apparently didn't even know the geographical fact that the shelf along the west side of this continent is one of the narrowest in the world.

The provincial government's own atlas of natural resources — produced in 1956 — shows that the continental shelf is barely 100 miles wide at its broadest point along the Queen Charlotte Sound instead of up to 300 miles as he told reporters.

Instead of the 100,000 to 150,000 square miles his calculations added to the province's area, our continental shelf is only about 25,000 square miles in size — considerably smaller than "the big country" riding of Cariboo itself.

However, Mr. Bonner rejoins that the cabinet order itself only asserts the province's jurisdiction over the shelf and does not purport to define the province's boundary.

In the next breath, he says the continental shelf mentioned in the order always was our boundary and if only the tide had gone out far enough it would have been obvious from the start.

●

Well, he can't have it both ways.

Either it was or was not our colonial boundary and if the court finds that the union proclamation read by Governor Frederick Seymour a century ago does not define, in a legal sense if not in direct wording, the continental shelf as a boundary then the generally-accepted view that rights not specifically held by the provinces are held by the federal government would apply.

Mr. Bonner remonstrates that it is impossible to conceive of "a part of Canada being west of B.C."

But Section 4 of the British North America Act would make this administratively possible because it says: "The Parliament of Canada may from time to time make provision for the administration, peace, order and good government of any territory not for the time being included in any Province."

Mr. Bonner, an adroit debater who relies more on diverting quips than on solid research, has an ingenious answer to Section 3 of the British North America Act which says:

"The Parliament of Canada may from time to time, with the consent of the legislature of any province of the said Dominion, increase, diminish or otherwise alter the limits of such province . . ."

Why, maintains the attorney-general, "we never consented to Parliament diminishing our boundary which always has been the continental shelf."

●

Aside from the fact that this smacks of retroactive rewriting of history, it flies in the face of the thesis of a world-recognized authority on the subject.

M. W. Mouton, a captain in the Royal Netherlands Navy and a doctor of law, wrote a 367-page treatise, The Continental Shelf, which won the 1952 Grotius Prize of the Institute of International Law that led to this subject being and gave impetus to the move made a separate study at the Law of the Sea Conference six years later.

He points out that the extent of continental shelves weren't even known until the advent of the echo sounder in 1920 and until now have only been of any significance to fishermen who learned that some coastal areas were more productive than the ocean centre.

At page 269, he refutes directly the arguement used by Mr. Bonner.

"This theory seems to us quite unacceptable. The continental shelf is a relatively new conception," he wrote.

"How could rights concerning a geographical formation exist before people were aware of its existence?

"Or do we have to assume that the rights were born at the same time that the soundings of scientific deep-sea research expeditions . . . started to draw the 100-fathom isobath on the charts?"

●

(Even if the latter doubtful assumption is made, that would give the continental shelf to the federal government because it was charted after the province joined Canada.)

Capt. Mouton made the point that only a new international law, growing slowly over the years by unchallenged individual nation proclamations or by the conventions of an international conference, could decide the rights to the continental shelf.

He also documented the nucleus of an internationally-recognized law of custom by listing the 19 countries and their dependencies who, unilaterally or bilaterally, claimed control over their continental shelves between 1945 and 1950 alone. These included the United States and United Kingdom.

Since the Geneva Convention on the Continental Shelf went into operation, the exploitation rights to the bottom of the North Sea have been divided, by surveyed boundaries, among Britain, Netherlands, Denmark, West Germany and Norway along lines required by the Convention. A similar division is being negotiated, however slowly, by Arab states and shiekdoms that border the Persian Gulf.

In all these cases, international recognition has been extended only to the continental shelf claims of sovereign states, not to those of provinces.

LITTLE KNOWN ABOUT DEEP-SEA VEHICLE'S ACTIVITIES

Pisces Operations Forced Action?

The extensive but little known activities of a Vancouver-based deep-sea submersible research vehicle may have been the peg on which was hung the provincial cabinet order placing a crown reserve on the continental shelf.

Allan Trice, president of International Hydrodynamics Ltd. of Vancouver, today said various provincial departments were aware of its work at extreme depths on lease-contracts to U.S. government agencies.

"We had discussed some time ago sending a letter offering our services to the provincial government but I'm not certain whether or not it was sent," he said.

"We did send a letter last Monday as a result of all this publicity about the continental shelf and the government's interest in exploration projects there."

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, who drafted the order claiming the continental shelf for the province last week, says the move was precipitated by a mystery letter to Premier Bennett that a Sealab–type of underwater operation was being considered off the B.C. coast.

Mr. Bonner said he could not remember who sent the letter and Premier Bennett fended off reporters' inquiries by saying "there must be some mystery in politics."

"It was in the genuine belief of an impending use of the sea bed that I decided we had to make the order," Mr. Bonner insists.

To a direct question whether the letter came from International Hydrodynamics, Mr. Bonner responded "I don't know."

Mr. Trice's firm built a two-man battery-driven vehicle that has made over 100 dives in this area in the past six months — the deepest going to 2,500 feet in Jervis Inlet.

Named the "Pisces" — after a constellation of stars — it weighs seven tons, is 17 feet long and has a potential maximum operational capability of 5,000 feet underwater "but we haven't gone far enough yet to test it at that depth," Mr. Trice said.

He said last month the Pisces, under contract to the U.S. fishery agency, made 29 dives in the Seattle area to familarize them with its potential in carrying out surveys and experiments for the fishery agency.

"We also have a contract with the U.S. Navy to do some work for them in the torpedo range off Nanoose Bay in the Gulf of Georgia which was to start this week but has been delayed to next week," said Mr. Trice.

The Pisces cost $250,000 to build but considerably more is expected to be spent on it to equip it with a mechanical "arm" and other refinements.

PROBE JOB REJECTED

CALGARY (CP)—Edwin J. Madill, former U.S. consul-general here, today asked the Alberta government to withdraw his appointment to the prairie royal commission on living costs.

His action followed a move by Liberal MLA Bill Dickie of Calgary Glenmore, who Thursday night sent a telegram to Alberta Lieutenant-Governor Grant MacEwan asking him to block the appointment.

Mr. Dickie's telegram suggested it was "unfair" to ask Mr. Madill to serve on the three-province commission "as he is on a retirement pension from the U.S. government."

What's Happening to Automobile Insurance Rates in 1967?

1. Are rates going up?

A survey of insurance companies indicates that the premium level of automobile insurance will go up slightly. On a national basis, it will increase less than one per cent. Locally and provincially, there will be wide variations.

For example, in Prince Edward Island, rates will be decreased quite substantially for most drivers. There will be smaller decreases in most parts of Quebec and British Columbia. The changes in Newfoundland and Ontario will be quite small while in other provinces the increases will range around ten per cent. In a number of local areas, increases may be higher.

2. Why the difference?

In most parts of Canada, the number of insurance claims has not increased as rapidly as in recent years but the average cost of each claim has increased substantially. This is due to a number of factors such as the increased cost of hospital care, some increases in medical costs, higher wages to mechanics and body shop employees, and higher compensation to injured persons.

3. Why the improvement?

Better safety legislation and law enforcement, better streets and highways and better driving habits are contributing to the improvement in claims. With costs rising steadily, continuing improvement in driving habits is necessary.

4. What will happen to individual rates?

A great deal depends upon the individual. Depending on a number of factors—if he has bought a new car, had a claim, reached the age of 25 etc.—his rate could go up or down despite the slight change in the general rate levels. Your insurance agent, broker or company representative can give you precise details when the new rates start going into effect beginning January 1st.

5. How About Young Drivers?

The insurance industry is giving more and more attention to young drivers since their problems will become greater in the next few years as more young people reach driving age. In 1967, insurance companies will be using a new rate system for men under 25 who drive their own cars.

Studies indicate that young men at the bottom of this age group, those 16, 17 and 18 years old, are most frequently involved in accidents. The record gets gradually better as the driver nears the age of 25. As a result, during 1967 many companies will be charging more for younger drivers, but less for those who are 23 and 24.

6. Will discounts for driver training still apply?

Yes. Nearly every insurance company in Canada now allows a discount to young drivers who have completed a driver training course which meets Canadian Highway Safety Council standards. For a young person driving his own car, the savings can soon pay the total cost of an approved driver education course.

7. If my rates go up, why? I haven't had an accident for 15 years.

If you were sure that you weren't going to have an accident, you wouldn't buy insurance. And if the insurance company was sure, it would charge you less. About one driver in seven will make an insurance claim during 1967; that driver might be you. And if you do have an accident it will probably cost more than a similar accident in 1966.

$26 Million Pipeline Planned for Province

Northern Areas Will Be Linked

The provincial cabinet today authorized construction of a $26 million natural gas pipeline across the north central zone of the province but demanded the promoting companies put more of their own money into it.

A Public Utilities Commission certificate was approved permitting Pacific Northern Gas Co. Ltd. to build the line from Summit Lake, north of Prince George, to Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

The company also has the right to install distribution systems in the 13 communities along the line but must obtain franchise agreements from the municipalities by Feb. 1, 1968.

PNG was formed as a partnership of two major firms, Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. and Great Northern Gas Utilities Ltd., which originally told the PUC they intended to put up $3 million, sell another $1 million public shares and borrow the remaining $22 million.

Because of uncertainties involved in the project, the PUC certificate ruled they must cut the borrowings by raising their investment to at least $4 million and selling at least $3.5 million in shares.

Construction of the line must be completed by Sept. 1, 1968, or PNG would forfeit a $200,000 deposit.

Seal Skinned for Camera Crew

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has obtained "signed affidavits" that men who skinned a baby seal alive before a movie camera crew were paid to do so, Fisheries Minister Robichaud said today. But he added in a Commons reply for Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) that it took the government two years to get this evidence and it was too late now to bring any charges.

More Wheat Sold In China Contract

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 35,300,000-bushel sale under Canada's long-term wheat agreement with China was announced today by the Canadian wheat board.

The new contract will bring to approximately 93,300,000 bushels the amount of wheat ordered by China under a three-year agreement which took effect Aug. 1.

Under terms of the agreement, the Chinese will take from a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels to a maximum of 280,000 bushels.

As usual, the wheat board gave no dollar value to the sale. On the government's reckoning that every bushel of wheat sold is worth $2 to the economy, the new sale would be worth more than $70,000,000.

NUCLEAR BOMB THREAT IN VIET WAR URGED

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—California Republican Governor-elect Ronald Reagan said today that the United States should use the threat of nuclear warfare to win peace in Viet Nam.

He told a reporter that his view of the war could be summed up this way:

"I think you win."

He disagreed with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's view that the war might just "fade away" and added: "I don't believe a great power like us should be meeting the enemy on his terms."

He said the nation should use its "full resources" to fight the war. Asked if he meant we should use nuclear weapons, he replied:

"No one, of course, wants to use these weapons but the enemy should never be told we won't. He should go to bed every night fearful that we might."

Dock Men Tackle Backlog

Cargoes began moving in B.C. ports this morning for the first time in 10 days.

The 200 striking dock foremen called off their walkout and waterfront employers resumed hiring of longshoremen.

Seventy ships in Vancouver and other coastal ports were being worked today.

"We've got just about everybody available out handling cargo this morning," said one union spokesman.

In Victoria, 173 men were dispatched for work at Ogden Point, Cowichan Bay, Crofton and Chemainus.

The back-to-work move ended further layoffs in industries dependent on the docks. About 2,000 workers at pulp, sawmill and plywood plants had been laid off when storage space ran out.

About 3,000 longhoremen were working the ships today.

FORMULA

Details of the formula announced in the House of Commons Thursday and accepted by both sides were not divulged.

The foremen went on strike 22 days ago seeking recognition and bargaining rights. Their picket lines halted work for five days before a court injunction removed them.

When work resumed, employers accused longshoremen of deliberately working slowly, but the Internation Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union blamed lack of proper supervision.

For a week, longshoremen were fired and then rehired only to be fired again. Then the B.C. Maritime Employers Association refused to call out any more men until given a promise of no slowdowns.

Last weekend, Labor Minister Nicholson proposed a formula which would have allowed grievance procedures and formation of a foremen's unit outside the ILWU.

The foremen accepted this, but employers took this to mean a kind of collective bargaining which they oppose because they consider foremen to be part of management.

FIRST FORMULA

In Ottawa, Edward Strang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers Association, told a Times reporter the formula accepted Thursday represents "an entirely different concept" from Mr. Nicholson's first formula.

Instead of any kind of foremen's association, the procedure would provide bilateral negotiations between indiviudal foremen and employers with a final appeal to arbitration.

"What is outlined now is not a collective agreement," he said.

"It offers a means of expressing grievances, if a foreman wishes, in the normal way with his employer.

"If he is not satisfied with his discussions with his employer he than has an opportunity of having his case arbitrated."

A spokesman for the B.C.

'Two-Faced' Policy Rapped by Zambia

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Zambia took the lead today in presenting African demands for a total oil embargo against Rhodesia that would strike out at South Africa and Portugal as the principal suppliers.

Simon M. Kapwepwe, Zambian foreign minister, delivered a bitter attack in the United Nations Security Council on British proposals for selective mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia, and an offer to consider a limited oil embargo.

He described the British proposals as worthless and said that if the white-minority regime in Rhodesia is not toppled a racial war between black and whites will ensue.

He accused Britain of "abominable dishonesty" and following a "two-faced policy of appeasement to kith and kin while seeking to placate black Africa with patronizing handouts."

He said Zambia, a neighbor

Wife 'Froze' Trying to Kill Her Husband

FREEHOLD, N.J. (UPI) — Wracked with sobs and wrenching out the words, Mrs. Marjorie Farber related today how she "froze" when she tried to kill her husband under the hypnotic urgings of Dr. Carl A. Coppolino.

Still pretty at 52, the brunette widow of retired army Lt.-Col. William E. Farber told the Coppolino murder jury that the doctor-hypnotist repeated to her over and over again: "He's got to go. He's got to go."

Mrs. Farber said that at Coppolino's direction, she loaded a syringe at 3 a.m. on July 30, 1963, with a drug obtained by Coppolino and jabbed it into the leg of her sleeping husband.

She said she started to depress the plunger but "froze," unable to go through with it. The trial continues.

OTTAWA TO ACT

Answers Sought To Labor Crises

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament must establish permanent machinery to handle crucial labor strikes in essential industries instead of acting from crisis to crisis, Labor Minister John Nicholson said Thursday.

Shortly after the minister had made his surprise announcement of the end of the west coast dock dispute, he was thinking ahead to the next round.

Permanent machinery should be geared to apply only to labor-management disputes "in which safety, security and the national interest are involved," Mr. Nicholson said.

His comments were prompted by similar suggestions in the House in light of the recurring labor crises suffered by the country in the past year.

OTHER THREATS

In the last 24 months there have been three major work stoppages in the transportation field alone, and others have been threatened.

Mr. Nicholson cautioned, however, against trying to rush through major and permanent changes for essential industries in the present "crisis atmosphere."

"But I think the time has come for a change," he said.

Earlier in the Commons Prime Minister Pearson had dealt with questions on the same subject.

Social Creditor A. B. Patterson (Fraser Valley) said it was essential that a set of procedures must be established "to safeguard the national economy by preventing a repetition of these situations which have taken place first in railways, then Air Canada and now shipping."

Mr. Pearson noted that a task force has already been set up under the direction of Dean Woods of McGill University to inquire into this whole area.

He hoped it would report as soon as possible so the government would be in a position to plan long-range action.

Mr. Nicholson indicated this report might take longer than originally anticipated.

Although an interim report might come in six months, he felt a comprehensive review would take a year or more.

This would enable Canadians at all levels to consider carefully the possibilities of more orderly methods in a calmer atmosphere than exists at the moment, Mr. Nicholson said.

CALM STUDY

Canadian labor legislation enjoyed a high reputation throughout the world and it would be unfortunate if important changes were made hastily without adequate study, he added.

Once the task force reported, Mr. Nicholson said the government could then produce amendments "that would make it unnecessary for Parliament to act from one crisis to another several times in the same year."

Strangler Caught?

CINCINNATI (UPI) — An 81-year-old spinster was slain in her apartment building today, apparently the sixth victim of the Cincinnati strangler. Police picked up a 29-year-old parole violator for questioning.

One doctor's visit to an isolated Indian village	6c
Three pounds of wheat to a starving family	15c
A two-course meal for a hungry child	4c
One cotton blanket for a destitute family	$1.15
A sari for an unemployed widow	$1.30

A shopping list that would horrify most Canadian householders—but it is one that is made up daily at Unitarian Service Committee field projects in India.

In the Kodai district, where the items on this list were to be distributed, conditions are so bad that they are almost unbelievable.

Children there often cannot walk at the age of three and four. They have never had enough to eat, and without USC projects, backed by Canadian aid, they never will have.

One pitifully scrawny Indian mother made a 175-mile trek to a USC dispensary with her three-and-a-half-year-old son on her back.

She walked all the way.

When the child was checked in to the hospital, he weighed only 14 pounds.

Situations like this are not isolated. USC workers discover them almost every day.

With courage and determination they do what they can to alleviate the suffering of poverty-stricken Indians.

But always more is needed.

Victorians may help by sending contributions to the Share With Asian Children Fund, care of the newspaper. Donations may also be made at the main branch, Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas Street.

Economic Sanctions Have Never Worked

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The history of sanctions in international affairs offers no comfort to those seeking to overthrow the Rhodesian rebel regime of Ian Smith by such mandatory economic penalties. They never have worked.

Since the days before 1914 there has been no evidence that any delinquent nation has been forced by punitive economic measures alone to change its ways.

The United Nations never has voted mandatory sanctions against any country. The League of Nations invoked such penalties only once.

Outside these world organizations, numerous efforts have been made by individual countries and by alliances to take coercive measures short of war.

One example in recent times is the trade embargo against Cuba by the United States and some of its Latin American neighbors. This was aimed at the overthrow of the Communist regime of Fidel Castro. But he is still in power, even though the Cuban people, undoubtedly have felt an economic pinch.

The United Nations has voted punitive measures in several cases. But they have been in the form of recommendations to the member nations and therefore do not qualify as sanctions under generally-accepted legal definitions.

Both the assembly and the Security Council have recommended limitations on trade with Rhodesia and South Africa —the latter because of its racial policies—but study groups report little or no results. Business is booming in South Africa despite repeated UN condemnations.

The one instance in which the League of Nations voted sanctions came in 1935 after Italy's invasion of Ethiopia. In separate votes, the league assembly ordered an arms embargo, a financial ban and a boycott of all imports from Italy. The sanctions did not include an oil embargo, and they failed to halt Italy's operation. The next year Italy announced the annexation of Ethiopia and the league cancelled its sanctions.

Legal experts agree that one of the major weaknesses of international law is that it lacks the power of enforcement. The UN charter provides for the use of military force to implement sanctions, but the organization itself has no armed forces and the members have shied away from sanctions mainly because they might require enforcement.

At least ONE thing they all agreed on: let's start movin' cargo.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Dull Session Marks Vancouver Trading

Trading was dull on the Vancouver stock exchange before noon today with declines outpacing advances.

Declines outnumbered gains about two to one on the mining board with Highmont heading the list. It lost .10 on 9,400 shares to $1.81 at noon. Western Mines fell .10 to $4.35. Rolling Hills, off .03 to .33, Peel slipped .02 to .13 and Westcoast Resources dropped .04 to .76.

Grandue was the big gainer, climbing .15 to $3.75 on 1,800 shares. Native jumped three to .67.

In the oils, Futurity was off .06 to .64 and Central Del Rio fell .12 to $13.37.

Volume to 11 a.m. was 295,051 shares.

AT TORONTO western oils reversed their downward trend in closing trade on the exchange today. The oil index advanced .19 to a high of 132.74 after falling .43 earlier in the day.

Canadian Superior reached a 1966 high of 31½, up 1¾. Scurry Rainbow gained ⅝ to 20⅞.

Industrials rose slightly. Hudson Bay Co. was up ⅛ to 15½ and Pembina Pipe reached a high, gaining 1 to 11½.

Among speculatives—New Imperial advanced 21 cents to 2.31 on 106,000 shares.

AT NEW YORK the market rallied in late trading to register a gain.

As profits were taken IBM slumped seven points; United Aircraft, Homestake, Eastman Kodak, Du Pont and Polaroid a point or more each.

Norton Co. followed up its rise of 13⅛ Thursday with a jump of 4⅝ to 46½ on a delayed opening block of 45,000 shares, later trimming a couple of points from the rise. The stock was swamped with buyers because of news it has developed an inexpensive method putting sound tracks on home movies.

Carborundum climbed nearly four, Douglas Aircraft more than 3.

AT MONTREAL the recent sharp rally weakened slightly as investors followed the pattern of the New York Exchange.

Gains still held a slight edge over losses, however.

AT LONDON the market was dull today. Rhodesia still was an unsettling factor. Another influence was the latest report from the Bank of England, which lowered hopes of an early end to the "freeze."

Business was at a low ebb, with most leading shares tending to ease.

Dollar stocks improved with Wall Street, although there were a few laggards, including Brazilian Light and Power. Canadian Pacific and International Nickel added four points each and Noranda was firm. Canadian banks improved.

Natural Gas Well Find By Banff Oil

CALGARY—(CP)—Banff Oil Ltd. announced today discovery of natural gas at a wildcat well in the Rainbow area 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

J. C. Randolph, Banff president, said in a prepared statement that gas was found in the Keg River formation at a well the company is currently drilling, Mobil Kitu 6-23.

Mr. Randolph also said the development well, in Range 8, west of the 6th Meridian, "is indicated to be a successful followup" to the discovery well one-half mile north.

Interests in the wells and the lands upon which they are being drilled are held 50 per cent by Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., 45 per cent by Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd., and five per cent by Banff Oil Ltd.

BCT Announces 60c Dividend

VANCOUVER (CP)—A quarterly dividend of 60 cents a common share of British Columbia Telephone Co. was announced today by the board of directors.

The dividends will be payable Jan. 1 to shareholders of record Dec. 16, the announcement said.

Quarterly dividends were also announced for outstanding cumulative preference and preferred shares, but the amount was not disclosed.

QUALITY BUYER

or a

BARGAIN HUNTER?

Carefully chosen investments by Victoria Mortgage management provide high-quality protection for its investors. 38% of investment funds are secured by property including SEAFRONT, RIVERFRONT or LAKEFRONT. Every $3,600 invested with Victoria Mortgage is secured by an average of $10,000 Prime Real Estate. Government Bonds and Share Capital add additional security. 7% to 7½% yield on this class of investment is a bargain.
We suggest Victoria Mortgage Debentures are for both the Quality Buyer AND the Bargain Hunter. 7½%—5 year; 7¼%—2½ years; 7%—1 year. To have full particulars mailed, together with our prospectus, merely phone 384-7128.

BUILD A REWARDING CAREER SELLING IBM OFFICE PRODUCTS

This is an opportunity for individuals who have a keen desire to become successful professional salesmen in the fast-growing office products field.

In IBM's Office Products Division, the challenge is to discover and implement ways of improving the flow of vital communications through an office. "It's called "word processing"—the use of modern equipment to increase output, making more productive time available to time-conscious business and professional men.

As an IBM Office Products salesman, you are assigned your own exclusive territory (following completion of a comprehensive training program). There you maintain direct, executive-level contact with IBM's present and prospective customers, analysing their typing, dictating and in-plant printing requirements, and make recommendations on what equipment should be installed.

The environment is challenging; the rewards and opportunities for promotion are attractive.

If you are a recent university graduate and/or have related business experience, write today to:

British UN Action 'Not End of Road'

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he does not regard Britain's call for mandatory UN sanctions as the end of hopes for a negotiated settlement to the Rhodesian independence crisis.

Reporters asked the Rhodesian leader as he reached his office this morning if proposals outlined to the UN Security Council in New York Thursday night by George Brown, British foreign secretary, meant the end of the road for negotiations.

Smith replied: "No, I don't believe you ever get to the end of the road."

Asked whether he will carry out his threat and declare Rhodesia a republic now that Britain has taken the issue to the United Nations, the prime minister said: "We have not given this any serious thought. I think what we've got to do is to let the dust settle."

MUM ON LIST

Asked to comment on the list of exports Britain has asked to be sanctioned, Smith declined comment, saying he had not yet seen the list.

Brown asked the Security Council to order a worldwide ban on imports of a dozen commodities vital to Rhodesia's economy including tobacco, copper, sugar, iron ore and asbestos.
